'I GOTTA DRAG' BOYS RUSH BACK TO WASHINGTON

Doff Modesty Mask; They're 'Somebody.'

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—The representatives of the people are pouring back into the capital these days in anticipation of the second session of the 74th congress, which starts at noon next Jan. 3. Every train carries its quota of happy congressmen, beaming senators, voluble lobbyists, and pompous officials of organized groups—all intent upon helping to shape the nation's destiny during the next months.

Hordes of social climbers also are appearing. The diplomatic corps, sadly depleted in summer, already is at full strength for the gay holiday season. The "career men" of the state department are in training for cocktail parties. Each day more burocrats arrive to set up house at the expense of a generous government.

Glow with Own Importance.

A spirit of satisfaction animates all these persons. Once they set foot on the hallowed soil of the seat of national government, almost all of them automatically become important people. For anyone with a single pretense to a connection with officialdom, Washington is the city of special privilege. The "I Gotta Drag" fraternity flourishes as in no other locality in the country.

Back home a senator or representative may be forced through political expediency to espouse the simple, homely virtues. He dare not pretend to set himself above the voters who keep him in his $10,000 job with all its comfortable prerogatives. On the surface, at least, he must obey the laws with which the ordinary citizen complies as a matter of course. But in Washington many laws are set aside for the congressman. He becomes a privileged character, immune to the rules which govern the conduct of the commoner.

Immunity Plates at Dime Stores.

But the congressman is by no means the only person to claim membership in the "I Gotta Drag" club. The accredited diplomats are by international usage immune from police arrest, but the diplomatic privilege has been extended to include such a wide variety of persons that every fifth car in Washington seems to carry the sacred "diplomatic" plate which can be purchased at the nearest five and ten cent store, but which means that the police must close their eyes to all transgressions of the law.

The social set has learned to wangle itself many of these special privileges. Every one of the seemingly endless governmental departments has set up a special code exempting its employés from many of the annoying provisions which restrain the not-so-favored.

As in most communities, the "I Gotta Drag" tribe specializes in claiming exemption from the laws which govern the regulation of automobile traffic. The police department and the various governmental agencies issue "special permits" which allow the holder to park at the curb wherever appears the magic sign: "Reserved for holders of official permits." There are hundreds of these signs along the curbing in the busiest districts.

Parking Space Holdup.

The driver without a special permit or one of the various small metal plates denoting a connection with the administration has not one chance in a thousand of finding free parking space in Washington. The owners of parking lots, aware of this condition, have a high scale of prices wholly incommensurate with the facilities they offer.

Automobiles carrying a small plate reading, "Member of Congress," are subject to practically no control by traffic officers, who are duly conscious of the uproar that can be raised by any senator or representative whose feelings have been bruised by a suggestion that he obey the usual traffic rules.

These plates are easily obtainable for a small sum and there are several thousand of them in evidence, although there are only 531 members of congress. Policemen hesitate to take a chance and challenge the right

MARTIAL LAW DECLARED IN 3 CHINESE CITIES

Disorders Feared as Official Is Shot.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 26 [Thursday].—(AP)—Martial law was declared throughout Shanghai and Nanking today and severe military restrictions were imposed on Hankow after the assassination last night of Vice Minister of Chinese Railways Tang Yu-jen by gunmen in the French concession.

The military rule was attributed to recent anti-Japanese demonstrations.

A Japanese embassy spokesman at Nanking characterized the assassination of Tang Yu-jen as "glaring evidence of anti-Japanese sentiment, leaving no doubt of the trend of Chinese sentiment toward Japan."

Tang was pro-Japanese. He was the former vice minister of foreign affairs under Wang Ching-wei, former premier of China and president of the executive yuan, who was shot by an assassin Nov. 1, but survived. Wang himself is still in serious condition. Foreigners feared that student outbreaks and other anti-Japanese activities would result.

Sailors Patrol Streets.

Armed patrols of Japanese sailors marched through the streets in the Hongkew [Japanese] area as a precaution against possible incidents arising from the killing.

Tang's chauffeur told the police of the killing. He said his master was killed by two men in Chinese dress who shot him seven times at close range. Tang had just left his automobile to enter a house. The French police said the motive of the crime probably was political.

Tang had arrived Tuesday from Nanking, where he interviewed Maj. Gen. Rensuke Isogai, the Japanese military attaché, who is reported to be studying the important pending Sino-Japanese problem.

Japs Voice Concern.

The Japanese embassy issued a statement deploring the assassination, and describing it as a domestic issue. Commenting informally, Japanese officials voiced concern.

Tang had served the Chinese government as the chief go-between in recent Sino-Japanese negotiations. He quit his post in the foreign ministry when Wang Ching-wei resigned following his wounding. Wang's post as foreign minister of China recently was taken over by Chang Chun, the Japanese educated former governor of Honan province.

From Nanking came reports tonight that a small army of students from Shanghai were approaching the capital by automobile, bicycle and afoot, while all through trafic on the railroad was again paralyzed after the passage of a single train.

Clash on Mongol Border.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Dec. 25.—Armed clashes involving loss of life occurred yesterday between Outer Mongolian forces and Japanese-Manchukuan troops near the border. A Japanese military communique issued today at Hsinking, Manchukuo, reports:

"As a sequel to the incident of Dec. 19, when Manchukuan forces repulsed Outer Mongolians illegally invading Manchukuan territory, another Mongolian force numbering 50 to 60 in motor lorries crossed the border yesterday and were repulsed with heavy loss by the Manchukuan forces, assisted by Japanese troops who happened to be reconnoitering in the neighborhood.

"One Manchukuan soldier was killed and three Japanese were wounded.

Predict More Incidents.

The incident of Dec. 19 was called in Moscow dispatches an attack by 300 Japanese-Manchukuan soldiers in lorries with machine guns eight miles from the Manchukuan border.

The Outer Mongolians' protest and demand for compensation are treated with contempt by army circles here, who, as reported in Japanese newspapers, declare that if Outer Mongolia persists "in closing its doors and keeping in dark about its affairs such incidents might be repeated."

Chinese Quake Kills Many; Towns Crash

CHENGTU, Szechwan Province, China, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Fragmentary reports from southern Szechwan province told today of an earthquake Dec. 18 that shattered entire villages and caused a death toll that may reach thousands.

The remoteness and inaccessibility of the quake area make it impossible to determine the full extent of the disaster.

Primitive, mountain dwelling Lolo tribesmen were the chief sufferers.

Villages and forts near the tops of the mountain range that extend north and south through the affected region were torn from their foundations and hurled into the valleys.

Towns Wiped Out.

The communications system, undependable under normal conditions, brought scanty, incomplete reports of towns of 100 and more families being wiped out.

Freakish landscape distortions followed the upheaval. A mountain was split wide for a distance of a mile. In other places avalanches dammed rivers and formed lakes in what formerly were fertile valleys.

The Yangtze river in its upper reaches dropped five feet suddenly when the tributary Kinsha river was cut off abruptly by such a landslide.

Four Killed in Typhoon.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 26 [Thursday].—The number of deaths reported in the typhoon which swept southern provinces early this week increased to four today. It was learned three died of exposure in Talisay, province of Camarines Norte. Yesterday a boy was reported killed by a falling coconut tree at San Pablo on Luzon Island.

Property damage was believed heavy. Camarines Norte province reports said 50 per cent of the houses of strong construction were destroyed and 90 per cent of the flimsier huts.

CALIFORNIA COAST SHAKEN

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—A distinct earthquake, not strong enough to cause damage, attended [illegible] burglary [illegible] opening of Christmas presents in many southern California homes today.

The shock came at about 9:16 a. m., Pacific time [11:16 a. m., Chicago time], and was felt in Long Beach, portions of Los Angeles, Santa Ana, and along the coast south of here.

ENG SHEE CHUCK IS CELESTIAL SANTA TO 80 JEWISH ORPHANS

Newark, N. J., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The spirit of Christmas whispered to Eng Shee Chuck as he sat in his Chinese restaurant, today.

Eng Shee Chuck summoned many of his relatives. They prepared 80 chow mein dinners and tied red ribbons about 80 toys.

Then they took the offering to the Jewish children's home. Steaming chow mein was substituted for regular dinners and toys were passed to wide-eyed youngsters.

The children sang songs for Eng Shee Chuck and his relatives and Chuck told them some Chinese fairy tales about 1,000 years old.

By his ancestors, he said, it was a wonderful Christmas.

MOTHER KILLS SELF AS MATE CHOOSES RIVAL

Unable longer to endure an uncertain situation, Mrs. Alice Hayden, 21 years old, mother of a baby daughter, last night told her husband, James, 23 years old, a chauffeur, to bring the "other woman" to their modest home at 48 North Leavitt street.

After talking with Miss Josephine Carden, 18 years old, 3447 Franklin boulevard, whom her husband had known for 16 months, Mrs. Hayden asked him to choose between them. Hayden placed his arms about Miss Carden. Remarking that she would not stand in their way, Mrs. Hayden walked into the bedroom.

A shot was heard. Hayden rushed in and found his wife shot through the heart. Nearby in a crib slumbered their baby, Geraldine. While Miss Carden minded the baby Hayden hurried his wife to the Washington Boulevard hospital, but she died en route.

Warren avenue police held Hayden and Miss Carden, niece of a former brewer, for the inquest. Police learned that Hayden, under the aliases of Bert Stone and Harold Finsome, was indicted twice for robbing a Chicago postal substation. The records showed no disposition, but in 1933 he received a year's probation [illegible] burglary.

1936 Big Year; Five Pay Days in February

Midnight next Tuesday will usher in leap year with its 29 day February and its [according to tradition] girlish marriage proposals.

Also it may bring some comfort to harassed family budgeteers who overspent during the holiday season because February, for the first time in 28 years will have five Saturday pay days. This has happened only about a half dozen times in the last 200 years.

A Year For Rare Birthdays.

Among the Chicagoans who were born on Feb. 29 and who therefore will in 1936 have their first genuine birthday in four years is Mrs. Simon Straus, 3154 South Michigan avenue. By annual computation she will be 92 years of age, but February 29 will be only her 22d honest to goodness birthday. Infrequent as her birthdays are, she once went eight years without one. That was between 1896 and 1904. Under the calendar rule centennial years must be divisible by 400 instead of 4 to be a leap year, therefore 1900 was not a leap year.

A Problem In Social Usage.

Mrs. Straus' latest birthday was the occasion of a large family celebration in her honor. This is to be repeated in the coming year. A daughter, Mrs. William Friedman; a son, Joseph, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Robert Hoteller, are already making plans.

About 20 children who were born in various Chicago hospitals February 29, 1932, will celebrate their first birthdays this coming year. The dilemma as to whether only one or four candles shall grace such birthday cakes has always perplexed authorities on correct social usage.

Steps on Bottle with Left Foot; Finds Glass in Right

Pittsfield, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—In 1912, when he was six years old, Everett Blanchard said, he stepped with his left foot on a shattered glass bottle. A few days ago, he said, he felt a pain in his right foot, and extracted a sliver of glass.

Milk Man Captures 25 Pound White Swan

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Ralph Rutledge got a snowy white swan, weighing about 25 pounds, for Christmas. Rutledge, a milkman, said the swan flew over several housetops and alighted near his wagon. He captured it without difficulty.

Chill, Stormy Christmas for Lindys at Sea

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—A stormy, chill Christmas at sea was observed today by America's most notable expatriates—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his family.

Sole passengers aboard the freighter American Importer, Col. Lindbergh and his wife and their 3 year old son, Jon, presumably were snug and warm in the gaily decorated smoking room of the sturdy ship. No word has come from them since they sailed.

Before sailing from New York early Sunday, ship's provisions were made for a Christmas tree, decorations, logs for a fireplace Yule blaze and turkey dinner.

Winter Storms Prevail.

Weather studies by the United States meteorological bureau here, however, told of prevailing winter storms, which would cause the 436 foot freighter to pitch and toss considerably under winter winds and seas.

On the basis of an 18 knot progress the American Importer should have been well along toward mid-Atlantic tonight on its course to England and the refuge sought by the Lindberghs. The freighter should be about 1,500 miles from New York.

It was announced by the line that the ship would not touch at Cobh, Ireland, since no passengers are booked for the Irish port. Under present calculations, and barring unforseen bad weather, the American Importer should arrive at Liverpool Dec. 30 and Manchester New Year's eve. It was not known where the Lindberghs will disembark.

"Not So Quiet" in Europe.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 25.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's self exile from the United States has given rise to much comment here, where his fame was made. It is generally said that the colonel's action was humiliating to the American national pride and admiration is expressed for the frankness with which this is admitted by the New York press. There is also, however, a note of caustic criticism both of conditions in the United States that led Col. Lindbergh to his decision and also of conditions in Europe, where he has come to seek quiet.

Under the headline, "Not So Quiet," George de la Fouchardiere, satiric columnist of the Oeuvre, writes:

"It reminds one somewhat of the frog who dived into the pond to avoid getting wet in the rain. What surprises us is that the American police, who are always so cunning and energetic in the films, have not been able to give little Jon adequate protection.

Calls Houses Noisier.

"But can we quite honestly and without scruple advise Lindbergh to come and settle in France with his little family? Perhaps even here he will find disillusion. Our houses are not as tall but they are noisier and that there is any calm in them is just another illusion.

"Moreover, our gangster industry is extremely flourishing. Perhaps soon we shall have a surplus for export to New York and Chicago. Every day in Paris banks and shops are at-

FREAK SUBZERO BLAST HITS CITY; WARMER TODAY

Christmas brought Chicago a freak cold snap and a snowstorm which surprised the weather forecaster almost as much as it did the public. Zero temperatures are to make a brief return visit this morning, according to the forecast, accompanied by clear weather. It will get warmer in the afternoon.

It was Lake Michigan which saved the city from a continuous cold wave yesterday, according to Forecaster A. W. Cook, and it was also the warm lake air which was responsible for the snowfall which it dropped over the Chicago area while it was holding back the masses of subzero air from the north.

Cold Arrives Ahead of Schedule.

"The cold weather really fooled us in arriving so soon," said Mr. Cook. "It is difficult to forecast accurately when a cold wave will arrive, because we only have a few stations along the Canadian border. This cold mass just came on much faster than we calculated. It will move on eastward, moderating as it nears the Atlantic coast."

Zero temperatures were general throughout the west and central west yesterday, while Chicago's official thermometer hopped up and down freakishly.

During the early Christmas hours the mercury hovered in the upper 'teens. At 7 it was 16, dropping to 6 at 9 a. m. and to zero at 11 o'clock. The record was reached half an hour later—2 degrees below zero—beating the previous low this winter of .8 of 1 degree last Saturday. At the same time it was 3 below zero at the Chicago airport.

Lake Checks Icy Blasts.

Then Lake Michigan had its inning. The wind suddenly veered from the northwest to the northeast, and the temperature rose, reaching 25 degrees at 7 p. m.

At that hour the vagrant wind did another about face and began a drop which the forecaster said would end with zero temperatures again today. At 2 a. m. the reading was 10 above zero at the Chicago airport.

The precipitation recorded for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. yesterday, indicated a snowfall of approximately two inches, but the high wind produced snowdrifts that made the fall seem much heavier.

The storm threw a spoke in the wheel of holiday trafic. Motorists were forced to slacken their speed, pedestrians shivered in the snow filled blasts, and motor coaches and street cars proceeded at a careful pace because of the poor vision. The snow was also responsible for impaired railroad schedules.

Drifts Close Outer Drive.

For several hours last night the outer drive was closed to trafic, because of drifts. Park policemen scattered sand at dangerous intersections, while in many sections snow plows were brought into use.

At the Chicago airport officials reported that plane schedules were maintained, although for a time during the heaviest snow takeoffs were postponed for a short time and inbound planes were ordered to delay landings until the air cleared. Late last night normal air trafic was resumed.

All of the northern half of the continent had a snowy Christmas day, but the northwest felt the full intensity of the cold. Moving down the Rocky mountains, the cold produced zero temperatures in all Minnesota, and extended down to Texas. Southeastward it reached as far as Tennessee.

22 Below in North Dakota.

Chicago florists complained that many of their Christmas flowers were frozen while being delivered through the zero weather, but in the subzero northwest flower dealers didn't even bother to make deliveries.

Devils Lake, N. D., boasted of being the nation's coldest spot with 22 degrees below zero. It warmed up enough during the day to send the mercury 10 degrees higher, but again last night it began a downward dip.

Other ice box readings which rivaled the Canadian report of 30 below at White River, Ont., were: Bismarck, N. D., 14 below; Williston, N. D., 18 below; Moorhead, Minn., 14 below;

Havre, Mont., 16 below; Miles City, Mont., 10 below, and Charles City, Ia., 10 below.

Milwaukee Saved by Lake.

As it spread eastward, the cold mass of air enveloped southern Illinois and central Indiana with seasonal frigid records. In particular, downstate, the arctic weather offered a marked contrast to Milwaukee, where the warm lake air was completely successful in staying off the masses of subzero air.

At Milwaukee the mercury touched bottom at 12 degrees, and rose later in the day to 25, one point below Chicago's high. But Illinois, unprotected by Lake Michigan, had such temperatures as: Kewanee, 9 below; Canton, 7 below; Peoria, 6 below, and Bloomington, 5 below.

PLEA FOR UNION WITH CATHOLICS HITS DISSENTERS

New York, Dec. 25.—[Special.]—An appeal for reunion with the Roman Catholic church, coupled with a scathing denunciation of Protestantism in this country as "bankrupt ethically, culturally, morally, and religiously," has been made to the Protestant Episcopal ministry by a group of 29 high churchmen, it became known today.

The group, which consists of the American Committee of the Church Unity Octave council, is made up of twenty Protestant Episcopal churchmen, two members of religious orders, and seven laymen. Among the latter is Ralph Adams Cram, the architect.

The declaration was contained in a leaflet headed "Ut Omnes Unum Sint" ["That They All May Be One"], which has been circulated by the council with a covering letter by the Rev. Dr. Franklin Joiner, rector of St. Clement's church of Philadelphia and chairman of the committee.

TAKE 36 BODIES FROM WRECKED GERMAN TRAIN

GROSS HERINGEN, Germany, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The bodies of 36 persons were removed today from the smashed coaches of a local train which was sidewiped by the Berlin-Basel express on Christmas eve.

The accident occurred on a bridge over the river Saale. The local had just pulled out of the station, against a signal light, when the express train roared by on a special track, ramming the local and throwing several coaches into the frozen river. Bitter cold hampered rescue workers as they searched the wreckage.

Besides the dead, 22 critically and 50 slightly injured persons were removed to hospitals and dwellings. The local train was packed with a holiday throng. They had just boarded the train at the station. According to railway officials, none of the passengers aboard the express was injured.

ACCUSE DOCTOR IN CHINA OF MOVE TO POISON WIFE

TIENTSIN, China, Dec. 25.—(AP)—At the request of the United States consular authorities, the British police today arrested Dr. John Colbert, a former resident of Albuquerque, N. M., on a charge of attempting to poison his wife.

Colbert, a holder of the Legion of Honor decoration and one of the foremost members of Tientsin's American community, was freed on bail of $25,000 gold. He was bound over to the United States court.

Mrs. Colbert is his third wife. She is one of the leading members of Tientsin society. For some time past she has been a patient in the hospital, undergoing treatment for a heart ailment.

ODD TECHNIQUE MARKS THEFTS IN EVANSTON HOMES

Charles A. Barrow, 807 Judson avenue, Evanston, reported to Evanston police yesterday that clothes and silverware of undetermined value were stolen from his home Tuesday night. A complete set of silverware was taken with the exception of one piece from each pattern which was conspicuously left behind. Police Sergt. Eugene Ruland said the technique in the burglary was similar to that employed by thieves who on the same night entered the home of John M. Scott, 921 Forest avenue, Evanston, son of Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and stole property valued at $1,500.

Students Seek Autonomy for Moslems in Philippines

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 26 [Thursday.]—(AP)—Repercussions of the autonomy movement which recently swept North China provinces were felt in the Philippines today. The Mohammedan Students' association of Mindanao and Sulu asked that those islands be made autonomous. The request was contained in a petition to President Manuel Quezon, who was absent during the Christmas holiday.

STEAL WOMAN'S $350 COAT.

Mrs. Mollie Nickerson, 7827 South Shore drive, reported to the police yesterday that thieves broke into her automobile Christmas eve while she was shopping and stole a fur coat valued at $350.

KELLOGG-BRIAND TREATY HIT AS LEADING TO WAR

Tinkham Would Have U.S. Withdraw Adherence.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.] made public today the text of a resolution he will introduce in the forthcoming session of congress to withdraw the adherence of the United States to the Kellogg-Briand treaty on the ground that it is not a peace pact but a war pact.

Commenting on his move the Massachusetts congressman said that President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull are using the Kellogg-Briand pact "to support English imperialism and to maintain English control of the Mediterranean in the present Italian controversy with Ethiopia, England and the league of nations."

Used "to Involve U. S."

"This pact, falsely and mendaciously called a 'peace pact,' a pact 'to outlaw war,' is now being used to involve the United States in European quarrels and in a European war," said Mr. Tinkham. "It means war for the United States, not peace, and it should be abrogated at once. A resolution to effect that purpose will be introduced when the congress reconvenes on Jan. 3.

"This pact was intended to destroy the neutrality of the United States and is doing so. At the time of its adoption it was openly stated by Prime Minister Briand of France, its co-author, that its purpose was to enlist the aid of the United States in enforcing the covenant of the league of nations. It is now being used precisely for this purpose by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, nothwithstanding that the United States refused to join the league of nations and to enter the league court because the United States was determined not to become involved in the political affairs and the wars of Europe.

Conceived by "Aliens."

"Alien minds conceived this pact, and it was adopted by propaganda paid out of alien funds.

"The pact as originally proposed renounced war as an instrument of national policy. It provided that the nations henceforth should seek the settlement of British disputes only by pacific means. However, it was made a complete nullity and absurdity before it was adopted, first by statements made by Mr. Kellogg, and then by exceptions and reservations made by other governments.

"Mr. Kellogg declared that any war of self-defense would not violate the treaty. The words 'self-defense' were not defined. Each nation was to be its own judge of what constituted 'self-defense.' No nation in modern times has waged a war that it did not claim was in self-defense. Nor is any country likely to make a war in the future without claiming that it is in self-defense.

Reservations Are Cited.

"England reserved the right to make war in unspecified areas whenever her vital interests were affected; in other words, she reserved the right to make war in any place in the world at any time.

"The pact exempted any wars by the league of nations, any wars incident to the Locarno treaty, and any wars incident to the so-called French treaties of alliance.

"Thus the pact did not allow war; on the contrary, it gave the most solemn sanction of specific wars that has ever been given to the world. The naked fact is that this pact was not a 'peace pact' but a 'war pact.' It was a most preposterous delusion and fraud. It is repugnant to common sense and indeed to sanity.

Starts Naval Building.

"This pact when signed was hailed by emotionalists and sentimentalists with the positive assertion that it would abolish war and would result in disarmament. The exact contrary occurred. No sooner had the pact been signed than the nations of the world, with the United States in the lead with a great cruiser program, began to increase their armaments on an unprecedented scale, and they are now more massively armed than ever before.

"Hardly had the pact been signed when a war broke out between Bolivia and Paraguay which continued for three years; then there began a war between Japan and China which has not yet ended; now there is a war between Italy and Ethiopia and one immediately imminent between England and Italy and between Italy and the league of nations. All of these warring nations except Bolivia were signers of this delusive pact which actually sanctions wars and which is entangling the United States in European conflicts.

"It was this 'peace pact,' this pact 'to outlaw war,' upon which the malodroit and disloyal Mr. Stimson, former secretary of state, based his unwarranted acts on intervening in the dispute between Japan and China, which intervention brought the United States to the brink of war with Japan.

Sees Intervention Ahead.

"It is this pact which today is leading the United States to intervene in the affairs of Europe and is threatening the embroilment of the United States in the impending wars there.

"If the United States is to remain a neutral nation, if the United States is to preserve her honor and her independence of judgment and action in world affairs, the Briand-Kellogg pact must be abrogated.

"The American people do not favor our joining every war that breaks out in the vain hope of preserving world peace. They do not favor a pact which has already led to the alienation of two great powers, Japan and Italy, and which if continued can lead only to universal hatred of the United States."

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 25.—(AP)—An apparently blown engine gasket forced the Philippine clipper to return here today shortly after the big seaplane had started for Alameda, Cal., on the last leg of its first air mail flight to Manila and return. The trouble was adjusted quickly and the plane left again on its 2,400 mile flight.

ITALY TO SHOOT 3 ERITREANS IN BACK AS SPIES

Nine Others Sentenced to Prison.

ASMARA, Eritrea, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Three Eritrean spies, charged by Italian police with giving the Ethiopian government information concerning the location of troops in Italy's colonies, were sentenced today to be shot in the back.

The twelve, it was charged, went to Italian Somaliland, where they got government jobs or joined the Italian army. Italian police asserted they had discovered the Eritreans had made an agreement to procure military information for the Addis Ababa government.

Data Sent to Addis Ababa.

The knowledge which the men obtained, the Italians charged, was communicated effectively to Addis Ababa along with drawings and reports.

The official statement of the case against the Eritreans said: "These men compromised military preparations in our colonies." It added that they had organized a political conspiracy "to draw into their circle as many Eritreans as they could, and then to cross the frontier with them to the Ethiopian army and participate in Ethiopian aggression against Italian Somaliland."

One of the men arrested who was later released was the bearer of a military medal of honor. One of his relatives was sentenced to death and another was ordered imprisoned.

Report Ethiopian Defeat.

Ethiopian troops were routed with heavy losses in a skirmish today, Italian headquarters announced. The encounter, fought for hours, resulted when an Ethiopian salt caravan met an irregular company of Danakil warriors fighting for the Italians. The skirmish took place on mountain slopes near the lowlands. [The exact location of the engagement was not specified.]

The duke of Spoleto, cousin of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, took command of the Italian Red sea fleet today.

He was sent out to these waters because of Rome's plan to keep the royal family in close touch with Premier Mussolini's policy in Africa, which the monarchs are supporting.

The United States naval attaché here was the only foreign military observer who attended the ceremonies of the duke's assumption of the command.

Former Cuban Chief of Staf Dies of Accident Injuries

HAVANA, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Former Col. Julio Sanguily, who was chief of staf of the Cuban army under President Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, died tonight from injuries suffered when he was struck by a street car last night. The motorman of the car and a soldier who said he watched the accident testified at a hearing this morning that Sanguily ran from behind a tree and threw himself on the rails in front of the vehicle.

Avers Children Unsafe.

"Nor are children any more secure here than in the United States. They are kidnaped, they are martyrized, they are murdered by brutality or sadism. Only yesterday a boy of 15 drowned his 2 month old niece in a bucket of water.

"So, Col. Lindbergh, while you're turning your back on America's private crimes, you can only expect your tranquillity here to be daily disturbed by that refrain, which is little known in America, 'there is going to be war soon.' You have not gone far enough away, for you are coming where there are still men. Why, when you know how to fly high and fast, have you not sought another planet? And yet even there you may find only new disillusions, for all worlds are the work of the same creator."

Somber Holiday for Hauptmann.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann spent a somber Christmas in New Jersey's death house today. A small wreath hung in the corridor and carols on the radio were the only symbols to mark this day as apart from others.

Col. Mark O. Kimberling, prison warden, said Hauptmann, who faces death in the electric chair in three weeks for the kidnaping and slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., arose later than his usual custom and ate his breakfast in silence.

He read until a late hour last night and heard Christmas carols, including the "Stille Nacht, Heilege Nacht" of his German homeland, before retiring.

The Christmas dinner for Hauptmann and five other men under death sentences consisted of tomato soup, pork chops, mashed potatoes, green peas, mince pie, and coffee.

LINDBERGH'S REFUSAL OF AIR COMMITTEE POST IS DISCLOSED

Boston, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—President Porter H. Adams of Norwich university tonight disclosed that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh recently declined to serve on an important aviation research project, apparently because of his determination to leave the United States.

"I think he wanted to serve very much," said Adams, a former mail pilot with Lindbergh.

Adams had asked the flyer to be a member of a committee to set up a professorship and research project made possible recently by a $250,000 gift to Norwich from Godfrey L. Cabot, wealthy carbon black manufacturer, and aviation pioneer.

Adams said that while plans for a chair at the university had not been completed, Col. Lindbergh "very probably" could have had such a professorship had he wanted it.

FRENCH VETS TO FIGHT AGAINST WAR WITH ITALY

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 25.—War veterans of the Nationalist Union of Combatants warned Premier Pierre Laval today that they are unalterably opposed to war with Italy. It was in keeping with the uneasiness that seems to have been caused in some French circles since the collapse of the Hoare-Laval peace plan that Christmas day was chosen for this demonstration.

Jean Goy, president of the organization, gave notice that the 9,000 sections of the union throughout the country had been requested to bring pressure upon the deputies from their districts.

"Those who went to the front," says the resolution, "can never be brought to admit that they must bear arms against those who, British or Italian, fought side by side with them in the world war.

"We consider it a duty and an act of loyalty formally to declare that our union will not let a single French soldier run the risk of dying in a fratricidal war against Italy."

SLAIN DURING QUARREL.

A quarrel between Claude Bell, 36 years old, colored, 451 East 46th street, and his brother-in-law, Gus Brown, 35 years old, also colored, of the same address, led yesterday to the fatal shooting of Bell. Brown was held by police.

BRITAIN ENEMY OF NONE, FRIEND OF ALL: KING GEORGE

Christmas Message Sent Throughout Empire.

SANDRINGHAM, Norfolk, England, Dec. 25. — (AP) — King George, in a Christmas message broadcast throughout the British empire today, proclaimed Great Britain "a friend of all, an enemy to none."

"In Europe and in many parts of the world," the British monarch said, "anxieties surround us. It is good to think that our own family of peoples is at peace in itself and united in one desire to be at peace with other nations."

Urges Good Will in World.

Expressing hope that "the spirit of goodwill and mutual helpfulness" would spread, King George said:

"It will bring not only the blessing of peace but a solution of the economic troubles which still beset us."

He said the last year, the silver jubilee anniversary of his accession, "called forth a spontaneous offering of loyalty and may I say of love which the queen and I can never forget."

"It is this personal link between me and my people," said the sovereign, "which I value more than I can say. It binds us together in all our common joys and sorrows, as when this year you showed your happiness in the marriage of my son [the duke of Goucester] and your sympathy in the death of my beloved sister [Princess Victoria]."

Sympathy for Suffering.

He offered sympathy to "those who are suffering or in distress whether in this country or in any part of the empire,"

"I send to you all," he said, "and not least to the children who may be listening to me, my truest Christmas wishes and those of my dear wife, my children and my grandchildren who are with me today. I add a heartfelt prayer that wherever you are God may bless and keep you always."

INMATES OF JAIL SAY JOY TO ALL—WITH EXCEPTIONS

The 668 men and 31 women in the county jail were one big and comparatively happy family yesterday in their celebration of Christmas. Under the mellowing yuletide influence the prisoners manifested a spirit of malice toward none and charity for all—with a few exceptions.

"Alimony row," made up of 12 men, provided some of the exceptions. Only one had a "merry Christmas" for the ex-wife who put him there.

"The chicken dinner we had today was a sight better than the wife could dish," said John Fardy, 49 years old, 11733 Church street, without the slightest gleam of longing for the former home and fireside in his eye. "I'd have liked a merry Christmas for the five kids but not her, no sir. I've been here 4½ months and I might have to come back after I get out but that will be all right, I guess."

Quits Job for Cell.

"I had to quit my job as a letter carrier to come here," avowed Frank Samp, 48 years old, 2416 Greenview avenue. "My two children are married. I'm puzzled. I don't know what she wants."

"My wife's lawyer told the judge to put me in jail and in two weeks I'd come crawling on my hands and knees—but Old Mac isn't on his hands and knees yet," declared stalwart Alex Macas, 55 years old, a grain elevator worker.

All said they would "just about as soon" be behind bars for the day except Nick Jones, 45 years old, 4852 Cottage Grove avenue, who had a worried look on his face. "Now who would really rather be in jail on Christmas?" he queried.

"In my case it was just a misunderstanding. I'd really like to have Christmas with her and get things straightened out. When I lost my money—I used to own some restaurants—I guess I just wasn't much good to her."

Mrs. Blackledge Sends Greetings.

Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blackledge, former collector of internal revenue, cheerfully knitted on a green skirt and expansively wished the whole world a merry Christmas and a happy new year—all except Mrs. Suzanne E. Nottingham. Mrs. Blackledge is nearing the finish of her six month term for failing to pay Mrs. Nottingham a $7,500 judgment for alienating the affections of Patrolman Norman (Dear Denny) Nottingham. Mrs. Nottingham refused her appeal to be let out for Christmas.

"I can't wish her a merry Christmas," Mrs. Blackledge said. "I'm just sorry for her. No one ever got any happiness through the unhappiness of others."

Merry Christmas to Warden.

Finishing their sumptuous meal at a gaily decorated table when Warden Frank G. Sain appeared at the cell block door, the women prisoners sang a hearty "merry Christmas to you, Warden Sain." Three young women, two married to Americans, are awaiting deportation to Canada for illegal entry 8 to 10 years ago. Mrs. Madeleine Mackey, 28 years old, and Mrs. Ruth Burleigh Gilbert, 23, said they will live the required year in Canada, then return to their husbands and take out their citizenship papers properly.

The county jail population this Christmas, 699, was a record low, Warden Sain said.

He Tries to Help Reconcile Pair; Shot and Wounded

Ben Clark, 35 years old, of Detroit, Mich., was shot and slightly wounded last night in an altercation at a hotel at 1244 North Dearborn street, where he said he went to help effect a reconciliation between Eva Darda, 23 years old, 3023 Clifton avenue, and Sylvan F. Bernstein, 32 years old, of the Dearborn street address. Police said Bernstein wounded Clark, who was taken to the Bridewell hospital. Bernstein and Miss Darda were detained overnight for questioning.

TED HEALY SHOT; LANDS IN JAIL ON ARSON COUNT

The complaint accuses Healy of trying to fire a stack of furniture in the living room of a canyon cottage, where Bonnie Credall, a Hollywood movie dancer of his acquaintance, had been living. Healy told arresting officers, who found him in his hotel room, that he became dazed last night and remembered little or nothing.

His sister, Marcia Nash, a radio writer, told police the cottage belonged to her and that Ted was "acting purely on a Christmas eve impulse." But at the jail Healy exhibited a bandaged left hand and said he thought he had been shot, and the surgeons declared the injury was indeed a bullet wound.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 25.—(AP)—First photographic recordings of five successive disintegrations of an atom of radium were reported today by Dr. T. Russell Wilkins, professor of physics at the University of Rochester.

The photographs were the culmination of 10 years of effort to record in specially sensitized photographic emulsions the tracks of high speed atoms. Each track in the photographs was made by a particle about one trillionth of an inch in diameter and traveling at an approximate rate of 20,000 miles a second.

Elliott Roosevelts' Baby Gets Gifts from President

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 25.—(AP)—A bunny, a tiny table and chairs, a book and a sweater were received from President and Mrs. Roosevelt as Christmas gifts by their 19 months old granddaughter, Ruth Chandler Roosevelt. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, opened the packages at their country home near Benbrook this morning. Christmas greetings were exchanged by telephone.

Port of Chicago Imports Total 39 Million in Year

Merchandise valued at $39,073,871 was imported through the port of Chicago in 1935, Collector of Customs Joseph A. Ziemba reported yesterday. During the same period exports were valued at $3,353,817.

BORROWS LOCOMOTIVE, TAKES WILD RIDE; HITS FREIGHT, LANDS IN JAIL

Mattoon, Ill., Dec. 25.—(AP)—A Christmas eve lark in a borrowed locomotive sent Maurice Spurlin, 32, flying over the rails head on into a freight train and then to jail.

Police said Spurlin "couldn't remember a thing about it," but officials of the Illinois Central railroad reported this was what happened:

He yanked the throttle wide open. The engine clattered through one switch, another, another—five in all—and careened onto the main line. Then, with a bump and a crash, it stopped, the throttle still wide open.

The engine cab of the freight it struck was empty. The crew of three jumped when they saw what was coming. Spurlin was unable to get out of his borrowed engine after the wreck, which the railroad estimated would cost $2,000.

Wades 3 Foot Snow in His Sleepers to Find Santa

SALESMAN HELD IN SLAYING OF WIFE'S ESCORT

Gus Wesley, 22 years old, 2135 West 15th place, an automobile salesman who shot and killed Russell De Franco, 24 years old, 1639 South California avenue, early yesterday, was held at the Marquette police station last night for the inquest today. The police were also holding Wesley's estranged wife, Gertrude, 22 years old, as a witness.

Wesley, who has been separated from his wife for several months, told the police that he followed his wife from her mother's home at 1535 South California avenue to De Franco's residence. When De Franco and Mrs. Wesley left the building together later he walked up to his wife's escort and fired, he said. He accused De Franco of breaking up his home.

Mrs. Wesley declared there was nothing wrong in her association with the slain man. She said that De Franco had invited her to his home to visit his mother and join in a Christmas eve party.

County Schools Outside Chicago Enroll 103,921

Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools, reported yesterday that 103,921 pupils are enrolled in the 200 school districts outside of Chicago. This number is an increase of 2,000 pupils over the number enrolled a year ago. This year 71,507 pupils are in the grade schools and 32,414 in the high schools.

One of Merriest Holidays Since Boom Expected.

With the Christmas season the merriest since the boom days, Chicagoans last night were making plans for one of the liveliest New Year's eve celebrations in the city's history. Hotels reported that advance reservations for the evening were running far ahead of last year and retail sales of liquor and refreshments indicated there will be an increase in the number of private parties throughout the city.

Night clubs and other bright spots in the city and county also forecast capacity crowds for New Year's eve. Several of the clubs and hotels are engaging extra orchestras to accommodate an overflow of celebrants. In general the cover charges will range from $5 to $10 a plate, which include the dinner and souvenirs.

1 A. M. Closing May Be Waived.

Although the police department has not yet made an official announcement, it was expected that the 1 a. m. closing law for taverns and bars will be waived.

At the Stevens hotel, where reservations are reported to be 100 per cent ahead of last year, the crowds will gather in the Continental room and grand ballroom. The Continental room will be adorned with cellophane wreaths and the grand ballroom will be converted into a Moulin Rouge in Parisian setting.

The Hotel Sherman will hold its entertainments in the College Inn, the Bal Tabarin, and the grand ballroom. Several thousand couples are expected to attend. At the Bismarck hotel the Walnut room and the bier stube will be the scenes of festivities.

Mayfair Room to Be Open.

The party at the Blackstone hotel will be held in the Mayfair room, which was not open last year. Reservations for the Gold Coast room at the Drake hotel were reported sold out and overflow crowds will be accommodated in another ballroom.

The Morrison hotel is near a sell out for its party in the Terrace room. All reservations have been taken for the celebration in the Empire room at the Palmer house, and the Chicago room in the hotel will be the scene of another party.

The Congress hotel forecast capacity throngs in the Urban and Pompeiian rooms. The La Salle hotel will have orchestras in both its Hangar and Blue Fountain rooms.

Arthur W. Cutten Quits Hospital After a Month

Arthur W. Cutten, Chicago grain speculator, who had been convalescing at the Passavant hospital from a mild heart attack, returned to his home in Downers Grove two days ago, it was learned last night. Mr. Cutten had been under treatment of Dr. Albert F. Byfield at the hospital since Nov. 28.

THE MASSACRE

Chicago's 1935 Traffic Toll

Over 80 per cent of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

A PERFECT DAY—NO FATAL TRAFIC ACCIDENT, IN CITY

Christmas day in Chicago, despite a driving snowstorm, slippery streets, and subzero weather, did not see a major automobile accident. The motorists who were out on holiday errands drove with such caution that only a few minor accidents, caused in the main by skidding, were reported to police.

Police attributed the clean record to the storm and the consequent necessity for careful driving. It was recalled that in January, 1935, there was a period of several weeks of storm conditions, during which few major accidents occurred.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 994 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1, according to the coroner's office. In the same period 774 were killed and 17,478 injured within the Chicago city limits.

Robert W. Poague, 29 years old, 4047 Kenmore avenue, was killed yesterday twenty-five miles west of Cedar Rapids, Ia., when his car collided with a bus. His sister-in-law, Mrs. Thelma Hill, 25 years old, 3800 Wilton avenue, was injured. They left here Tuesday night to visit Mrs. Hill's husband in Omaha over the holiday.

FIVE DAYS LEFT, POLICE TO WARN AUTOISTS TODAY

The police department will issue warning slips to motorists today informing them that they have only five days left in which to purchase 1936 state and city licenses. More than 175,000 such notices have been distributed to policemen.

Capt. John Prendergast, chief of the uniform rank, asserted yesterday that every motorist who drives his automobile after the first of the year must display both licenses. He said failure to do so will subject the driver to arrest.

Stanley R. Kosinski, in charge of the secretary of state's license office at 120 South Ashland avenue, said the office can handle 20,000 applicants a day without crowding.

Beginning the first of the year owners of trucks and buses registered in other states will be required to pay a mileage fee for traversing Illinois highways or to obtain a state license. The recent session of the legislature provided these requirements, which already are in effect in most states.

HIDDEN STATE PAPERS ON WAR ERA PRESENTED

Munitions Inquiry to Study Documents.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Suppressed state papers of the American and British governments disclosing how the United States was drawn into the world war will be spread before the senate munitions investigation committee upon resumption of the inquiry on Jan. 6.

The documents, obtained from the secret files of the state department and from J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agent for the British government, are described by those who have examined them as sensational in the extreme. They include hitherto unrevealed correspondence of President Wilson, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Walter Hines Page, American ambassador to Great Britain, and other figures of the time, pertinent excerpts from which THE TRIBUNE is enabled to present herewith.

Show Course of "Neutrality."

They show how the attitude of strict neutrality announced at the outbreak of the war in 1914 was abandoned by the Wilson administration in order to foster manufacture and sale of war munitions to the allies.

They show that Secretary Lansing and Secretary of the Treasury William G. McAdoo, now senator from California, engineered the modification of the neutrality policy.

They show that President Wilson gave his consent to the modification orally but avoided putting it in writing.

They show that the enormous munitions business and loans to the allies by the international bankers created an interest that could be protected adequately only by victory for the allies, a victory which the entrance of the United States into the war assured. The documents bearing on this chapter of secret history will be considered by the committee in connection with the formulation of permanent neutrality legislation by Feb. 29, when the present temporary act expires.

To Be Loan Embargo Plea.

They will be used to support the argument in favor of outlawing loans and credits to belligerents, in addition to the export of arms, ammunition and implements of war which the existing act provides. Only by the embargo of loans and credits, it is contended, can any neutrality legislation be relied upon to keep us out of the war threatening Europe.

The secrets of the house of Morgan were obtained by the committee over the protest of Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British ambassador, who represented that the documents are the property of the British government. Under the terms of an understanding that they would not be made public without the consent of Secretary of State Hull, the documents were brought from New York in a guarded truck and lodged in the state department, where the committee was given access to them.

The story revealed by the state department's own confidential files begins with a pronouncement by Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan in August, 1914, that "money is the worst of all contraband, since it commands everything else." In accord with that view Secretary Bryan proclaimed the American neutrality policy on Aug. 15, 1914.

"Neutrality in Thought."

"Loans by American bankers to any foreign nation which is at war are inconsistent with the true spirit of neutrality," said Mr. Bryan.

Four days later came the President's proclamation enjoining his countrymen to "be impartial in thought as well as in action. The United States must be neutral in fact as well as in name."

Within two months thereafter, however, the American munitions business was booming and the allied nations were seeking loans in the United States to finance their purchases. The Bryan neutrality declaration stood in the way of their getting such loans until on Oct. 23 the first modification was made. A distinction was made between loans and credits. While the allies could not obtain loans, they could get credits, the administration decided. American bankers could extend credits and take the securied notes of the allies therefor.

The allies were compelled to content themselves with this arrangement for a year. But in the early fall of 1915 they were clamoring for outright loans. On Sept. 6, 1915, Secretary Lansing wrote Mr. Wilson that Secretary McAdoo deemed it necessary to permit general allied loans to be floated in America in order "to avoid a situation," said Lansing, "which would seriously affect economic conditions in this country."

Urges a Modification.

Mr. Lansing desired the President to modify the neutrality declaration so as to permit outright loans to the allies.

"Can we afford," he said, "to let a declaration as to our conception of 'the true spirit of neutrality' made in the first days of the war stand in the way of our national interests which seem to be seriously threatened? . . . My opinion is that we ought to allow the loans to be made for our own good." The next day after sending this letter to the White House, Mr. Lansing discussed the matter with the President orally. On Sept. 8, Mr. Wilson sent the following note to Mr. Lansing:

"I have no doubt that our oral discussion of this matter yesterday suffices. If it does not will you let me know if you would like a written reply?"

Apparently the oral discussion sufficed. There is no trace of a written reply.

Allies Told It's Okay.

Secretary Lansing informed the allies that outright loans would be permitted. One month later the first allied loan was floated in America—the Anglo-French loan of 500 million dollars. This was floated by American bankers and was subscribed to by the American public. Other allied loans of this character followed. Not till the United States declared war were loans made by the American government to the allies—loans which eventually aggregated 11 billion and in the payment of which all the debtors but Finland are now in default.

For the allies the modification of the American neutrality policy that permitted the Anglo-French loan marked a turning point. They were then confident that the United States eventually would come into the war on their side. Andre Tardieu, former French premier, who was in Washington handling French propaganda, said:

"From that time on, whether desired or not, the victory of the allies became essential to the United States."

Tarif Brings Depression.

In 1914, following the enactment of the Underwood tarif revision, the country was suffering from an incipient depression. From this depression the country was rescued by the demands of the allies for American goods. Two and a half years later the entrance of the United States into the war was being urged by responsible Wilson administration officials as a means of averting another depression. Writing to the state department, March 5, 1917, one month before Mr. Wilson asked congress to declare war on Germany, Ambassador Page said:

"Perhaps our going to war is the only way in which our present pre-eminent trade position can be maintained and a panic averted."

"The Secretary of State,
"Washington,
"September 6, 1915.

"Personal:
"My dear Mr. President:

"Doubtless Secretary McAdoo has discussed with you the necessity of floating government loans for the belligerent nations, which are purchasing such great quantities of goods in this country, in order to avoid a serious financial situation which will not only affect them but this country as well.

"Briefly the situation, as I understand it, is this: Since December 1st, 1914, to June 30, 1915, our exports have exceeded our imports by nearly a billion dollars, and it is estimated that the excess will be from July 1st to December 31, 1915, a billion and three quarters. Thus for the year 1915 the excess will be approximately two and half billions of dollars.

3½ Billions in Vaults.

"It is estimated that the European banks have about three and a half billions of dollars in gold in their vaults. To withdraw any considerable amount would disastrously affect the credit of the European nations, and the consequence would be a general state of bankruptcy.

"If the European countries cannot find means to pay for the excess of goods sold to them over those purchased from them, they will have to stop buying and our present export trade will shrink proportionately. The result would be restriction of outputs, industrial depression, idle capital and idle labor, numerous failures, financial demoralization and general unrest and suffering among the laboring classes.

"Probably a billion and three quarters of the excess of European purchases can be taken care of by the sale of American securities held in Europe and by the transfer of trade balances of oriental countries, but that will leave three quarters of a billion to be met in some other way. Furthermore, even if that is arranged, we will have to face a more serious situation in January, 1916, as the American securities held abroad will have been exhausted.

"I believe that Secretary McAdoo is convinced and I agree with him that there is only one means of avoiding this situation which would so seriously affect economic conditions in this country, and that is the flotation of large bond issues by the belligerent governments.

Banks "Wish to Lend."

"Our financial institutions have the money to loan and wish to do so. On account of the great balance of trade in our favor the proceeds of these loans would be expended here. The result would be a maintenance of the credit of the borrowing nations based on their gold reserve, a continuance of our commerce at its present volume and industrial activity with the consequent employment of capital and labor and national prosperity.

"The difficulty is—and this is what Secretary McAdoo came to see me about—that the government early in the war announced that it considered 'war loans' to be contrary to 'the true spirit of neutrality.' A declaration to this effect was given to the press about Aug. 15, 1914, by Secretary Bryan. The language is as follows: 'In the judgment of this government loans by American bankers to any foreign nation at war is inconsistent with the true spirit of neutrality.'

"In October, 1914, after a conference with you, I gave my 'impressions' to certain New York bankers in reference to 'credit loans,' but the general statement remained unaffected. In drafting the letter of Jan. 20, 1915, to Senator Stone, I sought to leave out a broad statement and to explain merely the reasons for distinguishing between 'general loans' and 'credit loans.' However, Mr. Bryan thought it well to repeat the August declaration and it appears in the first sentence of division 13 of the letter, a copy of which I enclose.

No Action on "Credits."

"On March 31, 1915, another press statement was given out from the department which reads as follows:

"'The state department has from time to time received information directly or indirectly to the effect that belligerent nations had arranged with banks in the United States for credits in various sums. While loans to belligerents have been disapproved, this government has not felt that it was justified in interposing objection to credit arrangements which have been brought to its attention. It has neither approved these nor disapproved—it has simply taken no action in the premises and expressed no opinion.'

"'Manifestly, the government has committed itself to the policy of discouraging general loans to belligerent governments. The practical reasons for the policy at the time we adopted it were sound, but basing it on the ground that loans are 'inconsistent with the true spirit of neutrality' is now a source of embarrassment. This latter ground is as strong today as it was a year ago, while the practical reasons for discouraging loans have largely disappeared. We have more money than we can use. Popular sympathy has become crystalized in favor of one or another of the belligerents to such an extent that the purchase of bonds would in no way increase the bitterness of partisanship or cause a possibly serious situation.

Face "Critical Situation."

"Now on the other hand, we are face to face with what appears to be a critical economic situation, which can only be relieved apparently by the investment of American capital in foreign loans to be used in liquidating the enormous balance of trade in favor of the United States.

"Can we afford to let a declaration as to our conception of 'the true spirit of neutrality' made in the first days of the war stand in the way of our national interests, which seem to be seriously threatened?

"If we cannot afford to do this, how are we to explain away the declaration and maintain a semblance of consistency?

"My opinion is that we ought to allow the loans to be made for our own good, and I have been seeking some means of harmonizing our policy, so unconditionally announced, with the flotation of general loans. As yet I have found no solution to the problems.

"Secretary McAdoo considers that the situation is becoming acute and that something should be done at once to avoid the disastrous results which will follow a continuance of the present policy.

"Faithfully yours,
"ROBERT LANSING."

SUN SPOT THEORY OF SOCIAL PHENOMENA BRANDED 'ANTI-SOVIET'

MOSCOW, Dec. 25.—(AP)—A theory that sun spots cause social phenomena was called counter revolutionary and anti-soviet propaganda by the communist party organ, Pravda, in an attack today on the Russian scientist, Alexander Tchizhevsky.

The newspaper called for an "unmasking" of Tchizhevsky, who, it declared, was seeking to resurrect an ancient faith in a country where "whiches and sorcerers no longer exist."

An article by Tchizhevsky, published in Paris in 1934, attracted world wide attention. Accounts made public here said it claimed that "almost all important moments in the history of humanity coincide with a period of maximum intensity in sun activity."

Pravda took particular exception to a statement attributed to Tchizhevsky that all mass movements are "epidemics of psychosis." This, the newspaper said, was obviously meant to include the bolshevik revolution and therefore was "clearly of a counter-revolutionary nature."

Persia Executes Leader of Bloody July Revolt

MOSCOW, Dec. 25.—(AP)—A dispatch from Teheran, Persia [Iran] said tonight the press there reported the execution of a man convicted of taking a leading part in an attempted revolt last July in which many persons were killed. A section of the populace, said the dispatch, rebelled against an order abolishing the Fez, and rioting broke out in the city of Meshed.

CLAIM NEW DEAL 'SMOTHERS' BILL AIMED AT 'REDS'

Bishops Ask Subversive Plots Be Curbed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Charging the New Deal had "smothered" a "stop alien representation" amendment to the constitution, three Methodist bishops today urged their ministers to coöperate with the American Christian alliance in an effort to defeat "alien conspiracies."

The bishops, Edwin H. Hughes of Washington, D. C.; A. W. Leonard of Pittsburgh, Pa., and E. G. Richardson of Philadelphia, Pa., asserted in a statement that the proposed alien representation amendment "supplies an effective basis for breaking down alien control of American politics, while affording a conclusive acid test of the sincerity of the patriotic American professions of all public officials."

Ask Support "On Record."

They credited the Christian alliance, of which William H. Anderson is general chairman, with originating the amendment and said:

"For obvious reasons we cannot assume responsibility for details of its campaigns, nor for the utterances of its leadership. Yet, on the strength of its record so far, we recommend that our pastors coöperate practically and heartily with the American Christian alliance in arousing a moral consciousness on a fair, sane, honest, constructive, Christian basis in order to defeat all secret, subversive, alien conspiracies against the common good."

Two Bills Now Pending.

The alien representation amendment would exclude aliens from the census count in apportioning each state's representation in congress. It has been introduced on both the senate and house sides of the capitol on a number of occasions.

One by Representative Tarver [Dem., Ga.] is pending before the house judiciary committee, which never has held hearings on it. Senator Capper [Rep., Kas.] introduced a similar amendment in the senate on Jan. 21, 1934. It is pending before the senate judiciary committee.

NEW EXCHANGE RATE, 5 RUBLES TO DOLLAR, BEGINS IN RUSSIA JAN. 1

MOSCOW, Dec. 25.—(AP)—A new exchange rate of five rubles to the dollar will become effective Jan. 1 it was announced tonight. Remittances from abroad with a few exceptions will no longer be paid in foreign currency.

Unless a price readjustment is made in the meantime, observers believed, the cost of living for foreigners will automatically undergo a large increase.

The announcement said all foreign banks doing business with the Soviet state bank have been notified of the change. Special permits, it was stated, will be issued for tourists and persons leaving the Soviet Union to permit them to obtain foreign currency.

State Bar Group Asks Aid in Fight on Communism

The public relations committee of the Illinois Bar association yesterday asked the city and county bar associations, schools and civic groups to coöperate in its campaign to curb the dissemination of communistic and subversive literature. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the committee, urged all organizations to unite during the coming year to further Americanization and to seek a solution of the alien problem. One of the major planks in the association platform is a proposal to set up a system for registration and identification of all citizens.

Revocation of Cabaret's License Is Recommended

Capt. Frank Matchett of the West North avenue police station said yesterday he had recommended to Police Commissioner Allman the revocation of the license for the Par-Mar cabaret, 2610 Chicago avenue, where 28 persons were arrested in a gambling and liquor raid early Sunday. Among the persons arrested was "Tough Tony" Capezio, known as a former Capone gangster. Capt. Matchett said he expected the commissioner would act today on the license revocation.

Theodore Roosevelt Widow Spends Holiday In Hospital

Glen Cove, N. Y., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, widow of the former President, who is in the North Country hospital where she has been confined for several weeks with a fractured hip, received about twenty members of her family at various times today. Her condition, according to Dr. Alexander H. Johnston, is satisfactory but it was considered unwise to permit visits by more than two or three members of her family at one time.

ILLINOIS POLITICS TO BEGIN BOILING AFTER NEW YEAR

Both Parties Preparing for Decisive Moves.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Illinois and Cook county politics, Republican and Democratic, according to the wise men of both parties, will show the first real activity soon after New Year's day. Then the organizations will get down to real business.

The first day for filing nominating petitions is Feb. 8 and it is the belief of the leaders of both parties that starting a month before that date will allow plenty of time for the completion of slates and the collection of signatures.

It is assumed that the first big question to be settled by each of the organizations is the governorship. It is expected that in two or three weeks Gov. Horner probably will be hit by an adverse decision from the organization which put him into office—the Cook county central committee. That decision, it is confidently asserted, will be ratified in some manner by the organization throughout the state.

Senatorship Interests G. O. P.

On the Republican side also there may be some action shortly in reference to the United States senatorship race. Week after week, Charles S. Deneen, former senator, has been putting off his decision whether he will run for his old office. While he was delaying Oscar Nelson of Batavia, former state auditor, announced for the senatorship and that step may have some effect in bringing an answer from Deneen and his factional associates.

There will be a meeting of the Republican county central committee at the Hotel La Salle tomorrow afternoon, but it will limit its consideration to the general assembly situation. It is expected the committee will ratify the decision of the leaders that there should be two Republican nominees for state representative in many legislative districts in which the landslides of 1932 and 1934 seated two Democrats for the first time.

As to the Governorship.

It was said the committee members are not yet ready to tackle the question of indorsing a candidate for the governorship. Many of them admit privately a sense of alarm over the likelihood that there will be such a large field of entrants that Len Small might capture the nomination with less than 40 per cent of the primary vote behind him. Because of this fear some committeemen favor a search for some method of concentrating all available strength behind some one candidate against Small.

Whether the three avowed candidates now out in the open—Senator Earl B. Searcy, John G. Oglesby, former lieutenant governor, and Oscar E. Carlstrom, former attorney general—could be persuaded to enter an elimination arrangement has not been ascertained.

Thumbs Down on Horner?

Among Democrats there is not the least doubt felt that if a meeting of the Cook county central committee is called and the door is opened for such procedure there will be definite action recorded against the second term hopes of Gov. Horner.

A canvass of the members showed an apparently unanimous belief that Gov. Horner cannot be reelected.

Members of the Cook county committee and downstaters believe the statements of Mayor Kelly and Chairman Nash that all questions relative to the selection of a candidate to replace Gov. Horner are still wide open, that there is no hidden choice who will be brought forward at the strategic moment.

There have not been commitments even on the question whether the candidate will be a Cook county man or a downstater. It is still the general opinion of the Chicagoans that if he is to be a Cook county man District Attorney Michael L. Igoe will be the choice.

Downstate Possibilities.

If he is to be a downstater, Speaker John P. Devine, State Treasurer John Stelle, State Chairman Bruce A. Campbell and John C. Martin, former state treasurer, who is now chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, will be considered.

The Chicago leaders and also Gov. Horner's own friends say there is no truth in rumors that he will attempt to build up a complete ticket of his own. One of these reports has been that State's Attorney Courtney will be denied an organization indorsement and will run on a Horner ticket. Those who know most about the attitude of the organization say there is no doubt that Courtney will be indorsed.

So far as the United States senatorship is concerned, the leaders say, there can be no question of a Horner hookup with that office. Senator James Hamilton Lewis has shown a desire to run again and has declared his physical fitness in spite of his years.

LIBERTY LEAGUE GIVES 12 POINT RECOVERY PLAN

Urges Congress Regain Basic Powers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—On Christmas day the American Liberty league proposes a 12 point constitutional recovery program designed to encourage the senate and the house to reassert their constitutional prerogatives and put the nation's house in order.

In its charge the league specifically rejected the demagogical theory that legislation provides cures for all ills. It dissented from the doctrin that rigid regulation, even when given the sugar coated title of "economic planning," has merits superior to the American system of private enterprise.

Takes Thrust at New Deal.

The league held that without freedom of individual initiative the nation could not have achieved its present eminence. It argued that the enactment of legislation should be a deliberative process tempered by the checks and balances of constitutional government.

The league, in a thrust at the New Deal, asserted that action does not necessarily mean progress. It pointed out that ill-considered and unsound laws obstruct the normal course of recovery and even defeat the intended social objectives.

The league's program follows:

1. The budget—Appropriations are the most important matter of the coming session and bear vitally upon the preservation of American institutions. Treasury deficits should be brought to an abrupt end by reducing expenditures to the level of receipts.

2. Relief—A moderate appropriation properly may be made for direct relief for a limited period with provision thereafter for loans to such states as are unable to assume their full responsibility for care of the needy.

Urges End of Boondoggling.

3. Public works—Expenditure of government funds for boondoggling and for local improvements under the guise of work relief should be halted. Provision may be made for a program of productive works with the tests that they be of a character which makes private undertaking impossible and be worth the cost.

4. Taxation—Revision of federal revenue laws should be undertaken with a view to elimination of equalities with the purpose of congress to ease rather than increase the tax burden on business, the home and the individual.

5. Government and business—Such legislation as may be necessary to withdraw the government from competition with private business should be enacted.

Stands Against Inflation.

6. Monetary and banking policies—Congress should plan for a revision of the monetary laws along sound laws as the three year emergency powers granted the President elapse. Inflationary currency proposals and measures extending political control over the banking system should be rejected.

7. Public utilities—The "death sentence" provision applying to holding companies should be repealed. The activities of the TVA should be curbed in so far as they encroach upon the field of private industry or advance socialistic doctrin.

8. Social security—Further study of the social security act should be made along the line of the promises of the 1932 Democratic platform that the problem should be dealt with entirely under state laws. The objectives of the act will be frustrated unless amendments are made.

Seeks Revision of AAA.

9. Agriculture—In the view of many lawyers the AAA is patently unconstitutional. The act and other laws relating to agriculture should be revised with a view to elimination of methods in conflict with the constitution.

10. Reciprocal tariffs—Whether the Canadian or other treaties be good or bad, congress should regain a veto power over treaties with foreign nations, which was made mandatory under the constitution.

11. Executive usurpation—The entire field of executive usurpation of legislative power should be reviewed by congress. The vast burocracy created by executive order should be overhauled. Many units can be abolished.

Cite Duties of Congress.

12. Preservation of the constitution—The elected representatives of the people in congress have a definite responsibility for the preservation of our government. A method is provided for amendment of the constitution and amendments which would break down division of authority in the executive, legislative, and judicial branches are out of harmony with the fundamental principles of the document. They would make possible substitution of dictatorship for democracy.

Husband Frozen to Death as Couple Fights Storm

Jamestown, N. D., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Paul Antonowitz, about 42, was frozen to death last night as he and his wife fought a blizzard in a vain effort to reach their three children at their farm home after a shopping expedition. Mrs. Antonowitz was in a Jamestown hospital today suffering from frozen arms and legs, and from exposure.

GOVERNOR AND JUDGE REVEALED AS EXPERT MECHANICS ON TRAIN

Jefferson City, Mo., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Now it may be told.

Judge C. A. Leedy Jr. of the Missouri Supreme court bought an electric train as a Christmas present for his small son. To keep the secret he had it delivered to his chambers.

One day last week Gov. Guy B. Park called on the judge and was directed to his inner office.

There on the floor — furniture shoved back to make room for the tracks—the jurist was assembling the train.

"Maybe I had better help," suggested the governor.

Joining Judge Leedy on the floor, Gov. Park helped with the tinkering and piloting for an hour and a half—until the train was pronounced O. K.

REPORT BIRTH OF QUINTUPLETS IN NICARAGUA TOWN

(Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.)

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 25.—Canada no longer has a monopoly on quintuplets. From the little town of Matagalpa, on a high plateau in an agricultural region of central Nicaragua, comes word of the birth of three girls and two boys. The mother, Timotea Lalnes, and the children are in good health.

Dionnes Wave to Daughters.

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne said "joyeux Noel" to their quintuplet daughters today by waving at them and talking through the glass window panes of their nursery.

The quintuplets were not allowed to have the family inside their nursery because of the possibility that cold germs might be brought in.

The five elder brothers and sisters and Mr. and Mrs. Dionne had dinner at the hospital but confined their greetings to the quintuplets to gestures and expressions the babies could hardly hear with a glass wall between them.

Quints Have Same Diet.

For all but the quintuplets there was "turkey and all the fixin's." Annette, Cecile, Emilie, Marie, and Yvonne stuck to their regular diet, with a special Christmas dessert of jelly topped with whipped cream.

The event of the day was the excursion of baby Cecile away from the nursery for parts unknown. At a moment when both nurses happened to be out of their room, Cecile managed to open the door leading out to the corridor of the Dafoe hospital and was ready to explore the world beyond when she was overtaken.

Plans were made to have the nursery door knobs elevated beyond the reach of the little tenants.

Need Shatterproof Glass.

The elevated doorknobs will be the third in what promises to be a long series of innovations to avert accident and save money in the nursery. Dr. Dafoe has introduced shatterproof glass for the nursery windows because the quintuplets like to throw dolls through the ordinary glass. He also has brought in unbreakable plates and cups because the children seemed to enjoy bouncing them on the floor after emptying them of food and drink. The broken cups numbered scores before they became unbreakable.

The family all seemed to enjoy the Christmas party, the five elder Dionne children each received gifts from the quintuplets after the dinner. Among other toys, Elder Brother Daniel received a whirligig which particularly pleased him and Elder Sister Pauline was happiest about a doll almost as large as one of the quintuplet sisters.

RELIEF USED FOR POLITICS, CHARGE G. O. P. CHIEFTAINS

Millions Spent in Kentucky Cited.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Use of relief money "to build up the New Deal political machine" was charged today in a statement issued by the national Republican congressional committee.

Hitting at assertions credited to President Roosevelt and other administration spokesmen that its critics were "political profiteers," the statement declared that "the Roosevelt administration has used and continues to use the great power it has acquired to coerce and intimidate those who oppose its plans."

"Relief funds extended to the states," it said, "have been used, under New Deal teamwork, as a political football. In innumerable instances people have been challenged to vote for the New Deal or be denied relief money."

Cite Kentucky Millions.

The Kentucky election last fall, the committee asserted, was marked by the spending in the preceding ten days of "forty-two million dollars in relief money" within the state.

"States having Democratic governors who denounced the vagaries of the New Deal," it continued, "were threatened deliberately and coldheartedly with being cut off from receiving relief funds. There are Gov. Talmadge of Georgia and Gov. Davey of Ohio as examples. And there was also the late Senator Huey P. Long."

The relief administration placed the handling of federal allotments in Georgia, Ohio, and Louisiana under persons appointed by it instead of following its general policy of spending the funds through state agencies.

Recalling the 1934 congressional campaign, the committee asserted that Chairman Farley of the Democratic national committee had "tried to impress on people who had unwittingly been made pawns in his reelection game that relief money came only through the beneficence of President Roosevelt."

Fear Halt of Relief.

"Mr. Farley and his henchmen did not stop at calling attention to relief allotments," it said. "Some were so bold as to declare that relief would be stopped unless recipients voted for the New Deal. President Roosevelt knew about this. His attention was publicly called to it. Public revulsion was great, but President Roosevelt did nothing to stop it."

The statement also charged that federal workers were "exploited" through solicitation of campaign funds, "prohibitory laws notwithstanding."

"In Florida they were told to contribute ten dollars for every thousand dollars they were drawing from the federal treasury," the committee said. "More recently, brash admission was made that federal employés were importuned to help wipe out the Democratic committee's deficit."

No explanation was made of this charge.

Girl, 3, Dies Christmas Eve; Doll Is Placed in Coffin

Pine Bluff, Ark., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Three year old Jeanette Knight got the doll she wanted Santa Claus to bring her—but never saw it. Jeanette died on Christmas eve of injuries received when struck by an automobile. The doll was placed beside her in her coffin.

BACKERS SEE 200 VOTES FOR BORAH AS PARLEY OPENS

Also Forecast Swing on First Deadlock.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Senator Borah's advisers predicted today that the Idaho leader would enter the Republican national convention next June with more than 200 first choice votes. They said also that he would gain a powerful group of delegates from eastern and southern states when a break from uninstructed blocs occurred after early balloting. Delegates claimed for Senator Borah on the first ballot by these advisers are:

State.	Delegates.	State.	Delegates.
Idaho	8	Ohio	52
Maine	23	Oregon	10
Minnesota	22	Wisconsin	24
Montana	6	Utah	6
Nevada	6	Washington	16
New Mexico	6	Wyoming	6
North Carolina	23
North Dakota	8	Total	205

Seek an Early Advantage.

The strategy of those backing Senator Borah is to make him a leading candidate at the outset, with a large section of the west standing strongly behind him. If this can be brought about, it is contended, eastern leaders will be forced to go to him rather than plunge the convention into a struggle that would leave the party divided between liberals and conservatives.

Mr. Hoover is an uncompromising opponent of the Idaho senator. He will oppose him, not in the hope of being selected himself, but to turn the nomination to someone more in line with Hoover views. National Committeemen Hilles and Rorabach of Connecticut are counted against Senator Borah because of his stand on the currency and his demand that they be eliminated from party affairs. The financial and industrial interests of the east are regarded as unfavorable to him because of his "advanced policies," and his insistence that the country is in the grip of monopolies.

Stands Pat on Money.

Mr. Borah is said by his friends to maintain his money views unchanged. It is known that he is opposed to returning to the gold standard.

Indications today were that the western states will demand that one of their delegates be permanent chairman of the convention. Senator Borah is inclined to support Senator McNary of Oregon for that post and is willing to concede the temporary chairmanship to Attorney General Bricker of Ohio. Senator McNary, it is believed, will not be opposed should conditions at convention time justify him in seeking the position. Under the usual practice of the party, the permanent chairman has been a member of congress.

Senator Borah's candidacy is being aided by the silent support of some Republican senators seeking reelection. It is the belief of some of those seeking reelection that, with him as the standard bearer, elections in Wyoming, Maine, Iowa, Minnesota, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Oregon would be more favorable for Republican senatorial candidates.

SUPREME COURT DECISIONS HEAD 'BEST' 1935 NEWS

New York, Dec. 25.—[Special.]—The twelve leading news stories of the year, selected by editors of 128 newspaper and press associations of the country in a poll conducted by the Columbia Broadcasting system, was announced today.

The United States Supreme court rulings affecting the New Deal headed the list. The Italo-Ethiopian war was placed second, the trial and conviction of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, third, and the death of Will Rogers and Wiley Post fourth.

Other stories, in the order of their relative standing on the editorial list, are: Assassination of Senator Huey Long, 123 votes; inauguration of trans-Pacific air mail and passenger service, 89; Florida hurricane and wreck of the S. S. Dixie, 76; stratosphere balloon record flight, 61; the rise of Joe Louis as a boxing championship contender, 50; destruction of the dirigible Macon, 44; rearmament of Germany and return of the Saar, 42, and the kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser at Tacoma, 40.

U. S. IS EXPECTED TO BUY 82 MORE PURSUIT PLANES

Germany's Believed Only Fleet More Modern.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Speeding its program for strengthening the wings of the army, the war department is expected to announce contracts for 82 additional pursuit planes by the end of this week.

Army officers today said completion of this year's purchases will give them an air fleet superior in point of modernity to all other nations with the possible exception of Germany.

The new pursuit plane purchases, plus two transport ships which may be ordered at the same time, will bring to 769 the number of aircraft purchased by the war department since June, 1934, at a cost of 43 million dollars. All but 103 have been ordered this year.

540 Combat Ships in Total.

The total includes 540 combat ships—bombers, attack and pursuit types—with the remainder training, observation, and cargo planes.

"No other world power, with the possible exception of Germany, will have anything comparable to our air fleet on the basis of numbers of modern ships in service," said one high officer who declined to be quoted by name.

"We don't know how much building Germany has done recently—although it is supposed to be extensive—but none of the other large nations has built on anywhere nearly as large a scale as 769 planes in less than two years.

"Some air forces still outnumber us greatly, based on all ships in service, but we will have more new and up to date equipment."

Called "Scarcely Adequate."

This spokesman was quick to add, however, that even this impressive number of new planes scarcely will be adequate for replacement purposes and will augment the army's present air strength only slightly because of the rapidity of obsolescence.

It is estimated that approximately 450 new planes annually are required to replace those wearing out.

For this reason, Secretary Dern has urgently recommended a five year aircraft purchase program calling for 800 new planes a year. He estimated this would give the army adequate equipment for defensive needs.

Map Financial Plans.

Budget officers already are mapping financial plans for submission to congress. It is estimated that the Dern program would cost approximately 70 million dollars annually.

At present, the number of planes of all types in army service is 1,196. The war department's immediate goal is 2,320 by 1937.

Most of the airplanes purchased in the last 18 months are to be delivered in 1936 with delivery dates staggered so as to provide for a steady stream of new ships throughout the year.

$250,000 TOTAL OF DECEMBER GIFTS TO U. OF C.

The University of Chicago received a Christmas gift of $170,550 and 6,000 books for its library shelves, according to an announcement made yesterday by the board of trustees. Donors of $156,000 of the gifts remained anonymous. The entire bequest brought to $250,000 the total benefactions for the month of December. Mrs. Frederick Ives Carpenter and her son gave the library addition, it was revealed, from the library of the late Prof. Carpenter.

ERA WHEN SEAS WERE ONE MILE LOWER IS TOLD

Today's Oceans Seen Overlapping Edges.

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—All the oceans of the earth were a mile below their present level in a new geological picture of the earth's recent history announced tonight by the Geological Society of America on the eve of its annual meeting here.

Today's oceans, all of them, are lapping over their edges, in a world far wetter than a few million years ago, and under the influence of a mechanism still only surmised.

There is no sign of reason for believing that the waters can rise still higher and engulf more dry land in a repetition of the Biblical flood. One basis of the Biblical flood stories, the report indicates, might even be the mile rise of the oceans in the last few millions of years.

Glacial Age Believed Cause.

The unknown mechanism which raises and lowers the waters is believed to be glacial ice, on a newly conceived scale. It might also be aided by movements of the earth itself in which the basins of the oceans enlarge at times so that their water levels fall.

The new evidence for this recent low water level will be presented at the opening session of the society's meeting. It is based partly on the findings of a new deep sea punch, to be described by Charles Snowden Piggot of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

Amazing Story Revealed.

This punch can be dropped on a line a mile and a half deep. Touching bottom, it detonates a small charge of powder, causing the punch to bite off a bit of the bottom. It bites rock as easily as mud.

It has brought to the surface an amazing story. Instead of the mud and sediments which should cover the ocean bottoms if they had been submerged for the millions of years hitherto believed by geologists, the punch has brought up rocks, chipped off underwater palisades, some as deep as those of the Grand canyon of the Colorado.

The punch has revealed that the "continental" shelf of the oceans, the area a few miles to scores of miles off shore, averaging about 600 feet deep, where the true ocean abyss begins, is full of deep canyons and valleys.

A few of these canyons were previously known. But the punch and sounding methods show that they exist all over the world, that they are the rule, or "planetary" in geological language. The conclusion is that they are the ancient and true sea shores, their bottoms representing the former sea levels. These bottoms seem to average a mile below present sea level.

Credited to Harvard Man.

The explorations showing that these canyons occur everywhere is credited to Prof. Reginald A. Daly of Harvard.

"In order," the announcement states, "for all the area of the continental shelf and the continental slope now known to be cut by canyons and valleys, to have been a land area, the sea level must have been lowered and raised 600 feet—and possibly more—in the comparatively short pleistocene, or glacial, epoch, five to ten million years ago.

"It is known that the quantity of water taken from the oceans and locked up in the many thousands of cubic miles of ice which made up the great continental glaciers which formerly existed would lower the level of the sea, but this lowering has hitherto been estimated to be of the magnitude of 400 to 500 feet.

"A corresponding rise is of course assumed to have taken place when the glaciers melted. Dr. Francis P. Shepard of the University of Illinois, who has been giving the matter intensive study for some years, believes the quantity of water removed from the ocean to form the continental ice caps was much greater than had been thought."

2 WOMEN AND 5 MEN HELD AS COUNTERFEIT MONEY DISTRIBUTORS

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—After questioning 14 suspects in connection with the distribution of counterfeit money, secret service operatives tonight announced they plan to hold seven men and women from St. Paul and Minneapolis.

They gave their names as Evelyn Konsella, alias Jean Rogers, 25; Frank Lightfoot, 27; Clinton Schults, alias James Short; Harlan O'Neil, alias Joe O'Neil; John Sullivan, 27; Karen Sullivan, 22, and Jean Ward, alias Marion Adams.

According to officials the suspects, held here, are believed to be part of an organization of counterfeiters operating throughout the country. Federal agents said the gang was believed to have passed 1,000 bogus bills in Minnesota, North Dakota, and Iowa.

POMPOUS 'GOTTA DRAG' BOYS POUR INTO WASHINGTON

Shed Home 'Modesty' To Become 'Somebody'

Low Numbers Mean Privilege.

Low license numbers also give the automobile bearing them the right of way over others. Cabinet members, justices of the Supreme court, chairmen of important congressional committees, social leaders—all receive plates within the sacred circle which includes numbers from 1 to 500. The White House cars, some 20 of them, carry numbers from 100 up.

Spread of the "I-gotta drag" tendency since the advent of President Roosevelt has been evidenced in the fact that formerly only the President's own car bore the presidential seal. Now the presidential secretaries all have the seal on their big cars, which, of course, are provided at public expense.

The "flower racket" also is a new development. For wedding and private social functions any person with a White House connection uses the White House hot house for palms and flowers. Congressmen and department officials use the botanical gardens for the same purpose. A steady procession of trucks carrying rubber plants and flowers depart from these two gardens each day, saving members of the "Drag" club a sizable item in expense and lending impressiveness to their entertainments.

Use U. S. Aids as Servants.

Another neat expedient by which Washington socialites put on swank at the expense of the government is the doubling in brass of Negro government employes. Many Negroes receive good government salaries for light duties, but they earn their money at night by acting as butlers or chefs for the officials in their departments. The Negro you see peacefully dreaming at a desk in a government corridor may open the door for you at a government official's home that evening and impressively bow you in.

The use of government coast guard cutters to transport big officials on summer cruises is well known, the classic example being offered by the minister to Denmark, Ruth Bryan Owen, whose use of a cutter on a northern cruise deprived the coast guard of an essential unit in attempting rescues from the Morro Castle, when it burned off the New Jersey coast.

Members of the naval affairs commitees of both houses frequently command navy vessels for their private purposes, and there is a story that one senator took his riding horse along on one of these cruises.

Then There's the "Lift" Privilege.

Members of investigating committees traveling about the country on junkets usually demand a Pullman drawing room to facilitate their thinking operations on these important missions. Since two full fares must be paid, there is no reason why they should not bring their wives along to take advantage of the extra fare.

Army airplanes often are commandeered by political personages when they want to make haste from here to there.

A comparatively trivial privilege, but one especially enjoyed by senators, is the one concerning their occupancy of an elevator. The senators' expressed preference for a floor takes precedence over all other desires. If a senator wants to go to the third floor, the elevator goes there first and other passengers must wait until the senator is satisfied. Then the ordinary taxpayer may call his floor and get service—unless another senator rings the bell and gives his orders.

Finds Note on Yule Tree; Husband Dead in Cellar

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Mrs. Alline Thompson found a farewell note on her Christmas tree. Then she rushed to the basement of her home and found the body of her 24 year old husband, J. Berry Thompson, who had inhaled carbon monoxide from the exhaust of his motor car. The note said he had lost money gambling and knew "no other way of straightening things out."

LIGGETT KILLING INQUIRY PLEA UP TO LEGISLATURE

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Prospects for enactment of legislation ordering a "cleanup" crime investigation in Minneapolis appeared slim today despite efforts of business men and civic leaders who demanded it following the slaying of Walter W. Liggett, newspaper publisher, Dec. 9.

When the members of the legislature return to the state capitol Monday after their holiday recess they will be faced with new petitions for the inquiry. But those who are most interested in seeing the investigation made already feel that their appeals will be denied.

A resolution providing authority and a $100,000 expense fund for the inquiry was introduced in the state senate more than a week ago. It is still there in the hands of the rules committee which is trying to decide whether such matters can be brought up in the special session on social security legislation.

SEE YESTERDAY'S ECLIPSE? NEITHER DID ANY ONE ELSE

There was an eclipse of the sun yesterday but probably no one saw it because it was visible only in the uninhabited Antarctic region where ships do not venture.

Dr. Philip Fox, director of the Adler planetarium, said it was an annular eclipse, in which the moon is centered on the face of the sun, but not completely covering it, leaving a thin ring of sunlight. It is similar to a penny placed on top of a nickle, he said. The reason the eclipse is annular and not total, he explained, is because the sun is now at a close point to the earth in its orbit while the moon is a far point from the earth in its orbit, thus making the moon's disk smaller and the sun's disk larger.

DIES OF EXPOSURE.

● Every added inch of snow kills more people in auto accidents—sends more persons in pain to hospital beds—wrecks more cars and shatters more nerves.
For snow wets tires and wet rubber always slips. (Try rubbing a dry eraser over glass. Then wet the rubber and feel it slide or skid.) That is why you need steel tire chains for safe driving in snow, sleet or mud. Because steel tire chains grip like cleats on a tractor wheel.
Don't take chances on "getting by" without Weed Chains. Too many drivers try that and as a result driving is worse than war. Auto accidents have killed 388,000 since 1920 while in all our wars since 1776 only 244,000 Americans were killed. This year we are headed for 1,000,000 accidents with 40,000 dead and 1,200,000 injured, involving 1,400,000 cars.
At this rate 1 out of every 17 cars is marked in blood.

BELIEVE 6 DEAD IN HOTEL FIRE; THEATER RAZED

Building Used by Federal Transients Destroyed.

Hot Springs, Ark., Dec. 25.—(AP)—A woman guest in a federal transient hotel was killed and an undetermined number of persons were missing after the walls of a fire-ravaged theater collapsed today on the adjoining hostelry.

Unaccounted for hours after the walls of the empty theater fell on the small, two story brick hotel were five of the 18 persons believed to have spent Christmas eve there.

Fire continued to smolder tonight in the wrecked buildings which occupied sites in the heart of the business section, delaying search for possible victims.

Victim Is Identified.

The dead woman was identified at an undertaking establishment as Mrs. J. K. Love of Jackson, Miss.

Mrs. Pearl Hughes, who said she leased the hotel to the government as one of several transient places operated here, said she believed 18 persons were there for the night.

Five persons were carried to hospitals with injuries received as the crash drove the hotel guests into near freezing weather. Owners of the property estimated their loss at $250,000.

The flames were believed to have originated during the early morning hours in the auditorium of the theater.

Rear Wall Crumbles.

Firemen several blocks away were attracted by the flames bursting through the roof of the building, but the 80 foot rear wall crumbled before they arrived. Fire broke out immediately in the smaller hotel building, adding to the terror.

Four other small hotels, an electrical supply house and a number of smaller places of business were damaged before the fire was brought under control.

Christmas Fire Claims 3.

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Fire, which took the lives of a father and two of his children, disrupted the Christmas celebration of the Leo family.

Philip, the father, was assisting his daughter Fanny, 9, and sons, Vito, 4, and John, 6, to get ready for bed. Fanny saw a sheet of flame spurt in the window.

She spread the alarm, then ran to her uncle's house, where Mrs. Leo and two older children were waiting. The father and younger boys were trapped by smoke and flames.

Three Die in Home.

Wilson, N. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Three members of a farm family lost their lives near here today and two others narrowly escaped as fire, started by the explosion of a kitchen stove, burned their home to the ground.

The tragedy came as the family of Frank Adams gathered in the living room to open Christmas gifts. Adams and his two daughters, Joyce, one and one-half and Marjorie, four, were burned fatally.

REPORT OF TODD THROAT BRUISES QUICKENS PROBE

Grand Jury Will Resume Study Tomorrow.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Inquiry into the death of Thelma Todd focused tonight on a report the blonde actress' throat bore swelling or bruises such as might have been made by the jamming of a bottle neck or a pipe into her mouth.

"I am not inclined to discount anything in this case," declared Deputy District Attorney George Johnson, "but if she was dead the number of hours she was supposed to be, I can easily see how the throat might be affected."

Johnson did not disclose the source of the report. He said he would take up the question with autopsy surgeons, whose report has fixed the cause of death as carbon monoxide.

Hints "Monoxide Murder" Theory.

George Rochester, foreman of the grand jury which adjourned yesterday to reconvene Friday, has said that "murder by monoxide" might be the solution of the case.

Miss Todd's body was found in the front seat of her big chocolate colored phaeton last Monday morning, probably not long after returning to her seaside café from a gay Hollywood party. She operated the café with Roland West, director-producer.

Johnson disclosed he was on the trail of evidence that might refute the stories told by several persons of seeing the actress alive Sunday afternoon and evening.

Hunt Similar Auto.

He said he has a "definite line" on an automobile exactly resembling Miss Todd's in which an attractive blonde and a dark appearing man rode about Hollywood Sunday, Dec. 15. This, he said, would "tend to indicate a case of mistaken identity."

Among others, Jewel Carmen, former actress and wife of West, said she saw a woman resembling Miss Todd with a foreign appearing man in a large automobile in Hollywood that night.

Johnson indicated he believed the grand jury would clear up the case—a matter the coroner's jury failed to do when it found she died by monoxide, but recommended "further investigation."

PARTY ESCORTS SEN. SCHALL'S BODY HOMEWARD

Accompanied by members of the immediate family and a small congressional committee, the body of Thomas D. Schall, blind Republican senator from Minnesota, passed through Chicago last night en route to St. Paul, where funeral services will be held today.

In the party were the widow and three children, Thomas D. Jr., Richard, and Padget; Senator Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota and Senator Lynn Frazier of North Dakota, and Congressmen Theodore Christianson, Harold Knutson, E. J. Ryan, and P. J. Kvale of Minnesota.

Immediately preceding funeral services the body will lie in the Minnesota state capitol building. Burial will be in Minneapolis. Senator Schall died Sunday following injuries incurred in a trafic accident in a suburb of Washington, D. C.

Passenger Trains Collide in Tunnel; One Injured

New York, Dec. 25.—[Special.]—A motorman suffered a broken foot and 200 passengers were frightened and shaken up in a collision tonight between two Long Island passenger trains, one of them empty, in the tunnel near the Brooklyn terminal. The mishap was believed to have been caused by the accidental throwing of a switch.

THE LEAGUE IN ACTION

While the dust of the Laval-Hoare plan's fall is settling, the league of nations reëmerges to the view. Especially among the American people, exhorted as they have been to enter upon its obligations and rebuked for their refusal, the league and its operations deserve attention.

We find that the league, having formally deliberated and solemnly declared that a member has committed an act of aggression in violation of the terms of the league covenant, is still deliberating. We find, indeed, that a new committee has been devised to do some more deliberating. It will "examine"—useful word—the existing situation. The cynic will suggest that when it overtakes this situation and we receive its findings upon it a new situation will exist. Thus a new situation will need examination. The aggressor, it is superfluous to remark, is not deliberating, but getting on with his aggression.

In detail the operations of the league have been: First, to declare a breach of its organic law by one of its members; second, to recommend to its membership measures provided by that law for the restraint of aggressors; third, to receive and examine a plan under which the aggressor would receive more territory belonging to the object of its aggression than the aggressor has been as yet able to take through its acts of aggression. Pending the "examination" of this plan by the league the plan is repudiated by the British parliament, not by the league. The league was examining it.

The league is also examining sanctions, measures to restrain aggressors. Some sanctions have been approved by the league. They are said to be operating. The aggressor also is operating in spite of them. He will go on operating in spite of them, as everybody knows, even in Geneva. There is one sanction that is different. It is the stoppage of oil. It would stop the aggressor. It has not been adopted. It is being examined.

The league, ostensibly or as preached to us, is a substitute for the old diplomacy which failed to prevent or stop the great war. Advocates of the league hold that the old machinery failed because it was too complicated and too slow. The league was ostensibly devised to effectuate prompt and unified action. We have said, under rebuke, that it would not, that its operations would be directed, retarded, defeated by the same influences that govern the old diplomacy, for it represents and registers the same forces, the same complex of interests.

But apart from this inherent character, the league is organically incapable of producing the results expected of it. It is an organ of discussion, not action. It has nothing to act with. It offers a forum where governments may debate and clothe their purposes in the best available guise. It can "resolute till the cows come home," but as the flagrant defiance of Mussolini, to say nothing of the Japanese military hierarchy, has demonstrated, it has no organs of action, even if it could manage to agree upon action. The American congress, the British parliament, the French legislature would be equally ineffectual in the same circumstances.

Thoroughgoing advocates of the league recognize this. Their cure is an armed force to be contributed by the member nations. The present crisis ought to reveal its futility, a gravely mischievous futility. The proposal ignores the factors which have delayed even such suasion or pressure as the league can apply, factors inherent in the actual composition of the league. The Ethiopian crisis ought to be enough to make this clear. It finds great powers and small divided and antagonistic. A league force would register the same division. Where the need for it were greatest it would be the least reliable. It could and would make war within itself and spread the war among all its clashing membership. It would not make peace. A league army made up of contingents from France and Germany, Russia and Poland, China and Japan, Great Britain and Italy, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia, Bolivia and Paraguay may be conceivable as an instrumentality of peace in the minds of ardent pacifists and internationalists. But if it were possible there would be no need of it.

LOCOMOTIVE BREEDS.

Something over one hundred years ago, when the locomotive was a newfangled device, Horatio Allen, president of the South Carolina railroad, was called upon to make a decision as to whether or not his railroad, then about to be opened, would be operated by steam power. "I will decide in favor of the locomotive rather than the horse," remarked this early railroader, "on the broad ground that in the future there is no reason to expect any material improvement in the breed of horses, while the man is not living who knows what the breed of locomotives will place at command." It took ten years to justify his choice, after which fairly good reciprocating engines were available. Perhaps thirty years later this type of power had reached nearly modern efficiency and then appears to have stopped.

A remarkably similar situation exists at the present time. Human ingenuity has again produced a new breed in the internal combustion engine, the Diesel, which is so satisfactorily driving trains on the Burlington, Union Pacific, and many other roads. The assignment of Diesel power to draw the heavier Santa Fe Super-Chief also produced satisfactory results, although unfortunately some one overlooked an engineering detail that produced a fire on one of the initial trips. The engine, however, showed its hardihood by running back to Chicago after the accident.

No railroad can afford to overlook experimentation with this new motive power, and a minimum of government interference at the present time should be the order of the day.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The Illinois Supreme court's decision upholding the judgment of the Criminal court of Cook county in the case of a fifteen year old girl charged with murder clarifies a situation which has been much in need of correction in recent years. Judges of the Criminal court have repeatedly protested against it and disinterested students of our administration of criminal justice have viewed it with disfavor, if not alarm.

The issue in this case was whether the Juvenile court's jurisdiction over adolescents covered crimes committed by them and excluded that of the Criminal court. The Supreme court now determines that it does not, that the legislature did not intend it to, and, if it had, is "without authority to confer upon an inferior court the power to stay a court created by the constitution from proceeding with the trial of a cause jurisdiction of which is expressly granted to it by the constitution."

In short, crimes are to be tried in the courts created to try crimes. The legislature in creating the Juvenile court did not intend otherwise, says the court. It did not intend "that the Juvenile court should be made a haven of refuge where a delinquent child of the age recognized by the law as capable of committing a crime should be immune from punishment for violation of the criminal laws of the state committed by the child subsequent to his or her being declared a delinquent child."

This is the law. If it is unsatisfactory it should be corrected by legislation after discussion and deliberation. It should not be evaded. There is objection to the trial of adolescent crimes in the Criminal court on the ground that a Criminal court does not take into account the nature of the adolescent personality, is unduly harsh through this want of knowledge, and employs tests applicable only to the adult criminal. We think this theory is unfounded. It has resulted in the coddling of dangerous offenders through false sentiment, disparaging the credit of the Juvenile court within the scope of its proper work.

No one claims that the problem of adolescent criminality is solved or its present treatment satisfactory. But sentimental leniency for dangerous youth will not solve the problem, nor has this treatment brought satisfactory results. Our penal or corrective institutions are inadequate. Theorists criticize our methods as lacking in science. Corrupt politics demoralizes and finds opportunity to exploit and abuse the means devised to adjust legal justice to social ends, and much mistaken humanitarianism assists it. The plausible objects of the parole system are perverted until there is a growing conviction that it produces more evil than good. Courts established to deal with the special problems of juvenile delinquency have tried to enlarge their authority and taken on responsibilities they were not intended and are not fitted to assume.

In the field of serious crime this has produced intolerable conditions. Paltering with dangerous offenses is not humanitarian. It is not a protection of youth. On the contrary, it deprives youth of the restraint upon its impulses which certainty of punishment will provide in most cases. It is not conducive to the welfare of the community, for it weakens its existing defenses, inadequate though they may be, without substituting better. It has contributed largely to the startling increase of criminality in recent years.

COMPARATIVE LAW.

A chair in comparative law has been established at the University of Chicago. It came just in time.

"How about the sale of electrical appliances by the TVA?" asked Mr. Justice Butler of the Supreme court the other day.

"I don't think that's constitutional," replied Mr. John L. O'Brian, special counsel for the TVA, "and the government has only done it in a small way."

The professor of comparative law might compare that remark with the defense offered by a holdup man who said the shot he fired had barely grazed his victim's toe and the proceeds had amounted to only 50 cents.

Editorial of the Day

BAD WEATHER AHEAD.

[Cedar Rapids Gazette.]

Twice within twelve months we have had called to our attention natural omens bearing on the weather outlook for the next few monhs. One local gentleman who has seen many moons points out that the one currently gracing the heavens rises far to the northeast. That, he says, is a sign that we are to have a long, hard winter.

Somebody else points to an item in the paper from High Amana, which recounts the finding of a live snake on a country road near there last Saturday. That, the prophets say, is a sign that we are to have a mild winter.

As for us, we go almost entirely by our own private weather signs. We place considerable reliance in the moss on the north side of our typewriter. When it is heavy, look out! We are going to have a long, hard winter. When it is light—ditto.

Our observations of this indicator now tend to confirm the opinion of the gentleman who is looking for a long, hard winter. So far as we are concerned, all winters are long and hard. There is no such thing as a mild winter. Some are just less disagreeable than others, that's all.

Many friends have tried to shake us in this opinion, without success. They have expanded at length on the invigorating crispness of December mornings, the unsurpassed pleasures of winter sports, the comforts of being snowbound to the fireplace, the beauties of ice glazed evergreens. We remain unmoved. All we know is what we like.

HOW THINGS HAVE CHANGED!

Let us mingle our tears with those of Marlene Dietrich, the beauteous cinema queen, who is going to leave this country prone on its back (as the phrase is expressed in the American language) and go to that dear Paris. The trouble with America from Marlene's standpoint is that while she gets a fair salary (and indeed yes) from the movies she has to pay out so much in income tax, special taxes, rents, and clothing that she simply hasn't got much more than a nickel and a canceled three cent postage stamp left after she gets through forking over.

But the thing that will tear the heartstrings of all the movie fans who simply dote on Marlene is when she says: "To get a house with a tennis court and a swimming pool, which are necessary for a child, I have to pay at least $1,000 monthly."

I do my best to sympathize with poor Marlene, but to tell the truth, and I've never before mentioned this to a living soul, and I hang my head now in shame when I speak of it, the house in which I was raised did not have either a tennis court or a swimming pool attached. I didn't play tennis and we considered the white panted collegians who did play the game in summer as sissies and used to throw ripe tomatoes and decayed hen fruit at them.

Our game was shinny, and all we had to provide to play that very strenuous sport was a tin can and a good hickory stick. I have a scar on my forehead yet where I got a bad gash from a battered tin can in a shinny game, and I think I still limp from being often whacked over the ankles by the heavy club of an opposing player accompanied by the harsh admonition, "Shinny on yer own side!"

As for a swimming pool, tut, tut, tut! there was no swimming pool in our yard. The only swimming pool we had was the family washtub, and how we did hate to see it being dragged out on Saturday night.

If I wanted to get in more water than the washtub held I went out to Wilson's brickyard and swam in the old pit from which the clay had been dug. And while I merrily splashed about in the thick, muddy water some of the low hellions from the brickyards would wet the sleeves of my shirt and then tie 'em in a double bowknot and when I got to shore and struggled to untie the knots I would receive raucous cheers from the low brickmakers mixed with jeering admonitions to "chaw beef."

But according to Marlene it is necessary for a child to have a tennis court and a swimming pool in the yard. Well, Marlene, they certainly must be nice, but you've no idea how many of us were raised without 'em.

THERE'S LOTS OF US here in America that are not hilariously in love with England—we've fought two wars with her and the North got mighty mad at England during the Civil War because she didn't declare in its favor and permitted Confederate privateers to be bought in England; and the South was very bitter against England in those days because she didn't recognize the South as a nation and break the blockade. However, I must say that in much roaming around the world I have often been in countries where I backed the bed up against the wall at night and sometimes sat with a cocked and loaded revolver watching the windows—but whenever I reached a place where I saw the flag of England fluttering in the evening breeze I always went to bed without locking the door or putting my pocketbook under the mattress. And I slept as free from alarms as a child in its cradle.

"What is the flag of England? Ye have but my breath to dare, Ye have but my waves to conquer. Go forth, for it is there."

WHITE PATCHES ON THE SKIN.

THERE are many skin diseases that are unsightly. Some are painful, while others indicate serious systemic disease. We may indeed welcome a skin manifestation that has no obvious health significance, although there is some reason to believe that it serves as a signpost pointing the way to a secretion deficiency.

We are aware that the color of the skin is due to the presence of pigment—the more pigment the darker the skin. When we tan, the sun's rays bring about an increase in this coloring matter. Should all pigment be destroyed the body would appear milk white or slightly pinkish.

The condition known as vitiligo is characterized by the gradual absorption of the skin pigment from small areas, particularly on the backs of the hands, the neck, and the face. In some individuals extensive areas of the body are affected and the parts deprived of coloring matter appear as though white paint had been splashed on the skin.

Vitiligo may come in early adult life and exist for years. In fact, once established, it recedes but rarely of its own accord. The patches are irregular in shape, and although they may not be noticeable on light skinned persons are distressingly obvious in those who possess a dark complexion.

The cause appears puzzling, although some thirty years ago I heard an eminent physician remark that he had never found free hydrochloric acid in the stomach of a patient presenting symptoms of vitiligo.

Many forms of treatment have been suggested and tried, the most successful of which has been ultraviolet light. Literally hundreds of drugs have been given without much effect. Chief among these is a salt of gold in which sodium and sulphur are found.

For some time it was thought that this skin disease had to do with a psychosis, as it had been known to appear and disappear following nervous shocks, and occasionally cases have been reported in which improvement occurred spontaneously without any form of treatment.

A few years ago H. W. Francis, a physician, himself a victim of vitiligo, submitted to a careful examination of the gastrointestinal tract and, as a result, it was found that there was a total absence of free hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice. In describing his case he relates that he took the needed acid by mouth "when the spirit moved" [rather infrequently], with no apparent effect on the decolorized areas. A few years later he submitted to a second stomach examination and on this occasion determined to replace the acid deficiency as a regular procedure. This program was faithfully adhered to and within two years all of the nonpigmented areas assumed their original shade.

An otherwise healthy man who, since 20 years of age, had been a victim of vitiligo, under the administration of hydrochloric acid by mouth has had no recurrence of the condition for the last eight years. In a preliminary report Francis mentions three other cases, two of which completely recovered, while the third was markedly improved.

Mention has been made from time to time of the relation of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice to anemia. Unless an adequate amount of free acid is present hemoglobin [the red coloring matter of the blood] may drop in concentration or be reduced in amount, thus lowering the oxygen carrying power of the blood. It is not wide of the mark to assume that a direct relationship may exist between the deposit of pigment in the skin and the presence of the necessary ferments and acid of the gastric juice.

In any attack upon vitiligo via the hydrochloric acid route the dose must be adequate and the physician will base his treatment on the results of careful analyses of the stomach contents. Furthermore, according to the experience of Francis, the acid will need to be continued rather consistently for a considerable period of time.

HOW TO SLEEP.

I. R. writes: What can be done for insomnia?

REPLY.

Self-training is necessary.

The following suggestions may prove helpful: A light evening meal, followed by a period of quiet; a walk in the open air just before retiring; a cupful of hot milk sipped slowly when ready for bed. The bedroom should be cool and dark and the bed comfortable. The bed clothing must not be too heavy. If the feet are cold, wearing bed socks may be beneficial. Learn to relax and to forget the problems of the day, at least for the time being.

DISPOSITION OF PROPERTY.

Plano, Ill., Dec. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A, who has no direct heirs, wishes to leave real estate and holdings to his married niece. He has made this arrangement by deeding the real estate [not recorded] to her and left the deed in escrow. He has also made a will leaving her most of his securities—real estate not being mentioned in will. 1. At A's death would this real estate have to be probated or be subject to inheritance tax? 2. If A were to change to a joint tenancy deed and niece should die first would his home go to court for her children? 3. If niece should become financially involved would his property under joint tenancy deed be subject to attachment? 4. A wishes to leave his property to niece so that there will be the least expense or litigation possible. How can this be done? R. A.

1. Not if the deed has been validly delivered in escrow, but such an arrangement invites litigation over the question as to delivery.

2. In our opinion the joint tenancy arrangement would be less likely to result in litigation.

3. Yes, as to her one-half.

4. See preceding answers.

To create a joint tenancy in real estate the conveyance should expressly declare that title is to pass not in tenancy in common but in joint tenancy. [Ill. revised statutes, chapter 76, section 1.] If title is already in one of the parties it should be deeded to a third person who is not subject to judgment liens. He should then deed back to the two, using a joint tenancy form.

To create a joint tenancy in personal property the "will or other instrument in writing" should express "an intention to create a joint tenancy . . . with the right of survivorship" [section 2]. Under the statute we consider it advisable not to rely on the wording of a stock certificate nor on the fact that the parties have joint access to a safety box. The intention should be expressed in a writing by the owner or owners.

On the death of a joint tenant the property passes to the survivor without necessity for probate and to the exclusion of the heirs or devisees of the one who dies first. The one-half that thus passes by survivorship is subject to inheritance tax.

NOTES, BANKRUPTCY, ETC.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is the [a] difference between a promissory note and a judgment note? [b] Can a garnishment of wage be made on a promissory note? 2. What is the [a] exemption on a wage garnishment allowed the head of a family? [b] Also, who is considered the head of a family, one who is the sole support of one or more? 3. What is a certificate of exemption and when may one be filed? 4. What is the [a] cost of filing bankruptcy? [b] What does bankruptcy consist of? [c] What, if any, exemption for personal property is allowed when filing bankruptcy? [d] If furniture is covered by chattel mortgage and bankruptcy proceedings are filed, is the furniture sold to satisfy the creditors, even though already covered by mortgage? 5. What proceedings are necessary to obtain judgment on [a] a nonjudgment note or [b] promissory note; [c] how long does it take, and [d] on a judgment note. T. D. M.

1. [a] A judgment note is a promissory note to which has been added a clause authorizing the entering of judgment by confession without serving a summons. [b] Yes, after obtaining judgment on it.

2. [a] $20 per week. [b] The statute does not define the term, but the courts would take into account such facts as who is the wage earner of the family.

3. Depends on the context in which the term is used.

4. [a] The court costs are $35. [b] It is a court procedure whereby a debtor surrenders his assets to his creditors, subject to exemptions, and receives a discharge from his debts. [c] Under Illinois law, the personal exemption is $400 worth in the case of a head of a family. [d] A validly recorded chattel mortgage would not be barred by the bankruptcy, but if the value is greater than the mortgage, then the excess could be reached by general creditors.

5. [a] Employ an attorney to enter judgment by confession. [b] An ordinary suit at law. [c] Depends on whether there is a defense, on whether there is a jury demand and on other facts not before us. [d] The judgment could be entered at once, but a motion to vacate might be pending for some time.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—Earmarked to initiate a regular air service between Germany and the United States, the super-airliner LZ 129 is rapidly nearing completion at the Zeppelin works in Friedrichshafen. Weather permitting, the ship's first trial flights are expected to take place soon. Immediately after its completion the work of constructing another air giant of the same type will be started.

After completing its test cruises, the LZ 129 will be employed in the air service to South America together with the veteran dirigible Graf Zeppelin.

Between its flights to South America the LZ 129 will also fly to North America to prepare a regular passenger, mail, and freight air service between Germany and the United States. The one way trip is expected to last from two to two and a half days. Cruises of the new airship to the East Indies and the far east also are contemplated by the German Zeppelin company.

The new Zeppelin is claimed to represent the last word in aerial comfort and safety. As Dr. Hugo Eckener points out, it is the first German airship to be built from the start as a passenger carrying craft. The Graf Zeppelin was originally constructed for experimental purposes.

The space devoted to passenger accommodations on the LZ 129 is four times as large as that of the old Graf. The passengers are accommodated midship in two decks. The upper, or A, deck includes a promenade deck 180 feet long, a dining room 45x15 feet, a writing room and a lobby with a grand piano built of lether and light metals to save weight. The upper deck also contains 25 cabins with twin berths for the accommodation of fifty passengers. On day trips the liner is able to carry 150 passengers. Each cabin is equipped with running hot and cold water. There is a central heating plant. During the day the beds may be converted into couches.

The lower, or B, deck, contains the kitchen, the officers' messroom, the wireless cabin, and a smoking room, the first of its kind to be allowed on an airship. Airtight doors and ash trays, which close automatically as soon as the ashes are deposited, are the precautions taken against fire.

"Safety first" was the principle guiding the constructors of the new Zeppelin from the start. When the British airship R 101 crashed three years ago, the half finished Zeppelin was taken apart and a new start was made to incorporate the lessons of the British disaster.

LZ 129 will be equipped with four motors driven by heavy oil. They aggregate 5,000 horse power, as against 2,700 horse power of the old Graf. The LZ 129 will have a cruising speed of 81 miles an hour, as against 70 miles of its predecessor. The trip from Friedrichshafen to Rio de Janeiro is thus reduced to eighty hours.

The LZ 129 has an approximate length of 750 feet and a diameter of 120 feet. Its 16 gas cells have a capacity of 200,000 cubic meters, as against 120,000 cubic meters of the Graf. The crew numbers forty-five men. The airship is able to carry 20 to 25 tons of freight, including such bulky objects as automobiles and airplanes.

THE LINDBERGH EXILE.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Every sober American will find food for thought in the announcement that the Lindberghs are on their way to establish a home in England. It would be hard to imagine a more terrible indictment of our country.

W. C. H.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—In this mad rush of ours let us pause, if it's possible, for a few moments and cast our thoughts on this Lindbergh exile.

Peace on earth, colonel, that you're trying to find, and good will toward men—except those rats that have torn, crushed, and smashed your heart—those who have caused you to flee the land you helped make famous.

Let us stop and think what we have done to this great boy.

Shame, shame, America, shame, shame!

PAUL J. MONAHAN.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—The headline in your paper for today, to my mind, tells of the greatest disgrace these United States have ever permitted. Our leading American citizen must go to Europe in order to live safely with his family. Shame on our government. We might have deported a few aliens and avoided the disgrace.

This is my first letter to the paper I read, and it probably will be the last, but I could not let such a disgraceful thing pass without expressing my feelings.

G. S. WETMORE.

LAWLESS POLICEMEN.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—An article in your paper this week states: "Police devise a license prod for motorists," a new way of prodding motorists into buying their 1936 license by distributing printed forms to automobile drivers telling them where they can obtain their 1936 license.

I think the idea is a very good one, but why not start housecleaning at home? I listened to Judge Gutknecht in the Trafic court over the radio last Monday night when he called seven police officers at one time before the bar, charged with driving their cars the entire year of 1935 without licenses. These police officers, or "chiselers," as the judge called them, who are hired and paid to uphold the law, certainly do not set a very good example to the public.

Why not post a notice in all police stations stating that any officer driving a car who has not obtained his state and city license by a certain date, be it Jan. 1, Jan. 15, or Feb. 1, will be suspended from the force without pay until such time at which he can produce his license?

J. B. L.

PAID FOR NOT PLAYING.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 21.—Your lengthy article on the musicians who are on the federal pay roll, in which allusion is made to no music being produced, fails to consider that they are being paid for the music they do not render. Would this not be parallel to being paid for not growing crops?

But I don't see where the taxpayer has more cause for complaint than he has when the government sells tax-exempt bonds to a Crœsus, who then receives the taxpayers' money in interest on the bonds. LAWRENCE L. COWAN.

US AND IT.

Crown Point, Ind., Dec. 21.—Your paper must have "It." During the prohibition era you were condemned for your stand on that question. I recall one speaker who said you were so wet that he had to put on hip boots when he read your paper. The irony of it is that these same men are now lined up with you in your battle against the New Deal. It appears that you do mold public opinion. W. G. STUHLMACHER.

CASH RELIEF.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Before cash was given the relief client had to confine his purchases to one store. With cash relief he can shop around and take advantage of advertised bargains and buy where he can get the best value for his money. This is very important considering the amount of money available.

In THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 21 appeared a statement by Leslie Goudie, teamsters' union official, claiming that since the government began giving cash relief the client had been spending more for liquor and less for necessities. In proof of this he states that some milk wagon drivers lost their jobs because families on relief are taking in liquor instead of milk. He is wrong in his deductions. The reason that families are buying less milk from wagons is that they can buy from stores for several cents less per quart for cash.

Most families are so hard pressed to make the amount they receive cover their needs that they must save where they can. The dole is primarily to help the relief client, not the milk wagon drivers.

Goudie seems to think that the interests of the tens of thousands of relief families should be sacrificed for the benefit of his wagon drivers. I think that Goudie is an improper person for a job as commissioner. He is too narrow minded and biased. When we find some one opposed to cash relief we should investigate and find out whom he represents and weigh his objections accordingly. The relief client gets more for his money under the cash system and it is good for his morale, which also is important.

DEMOCRATIC TRIUMPH.

Blue Island, Ill., Dec. 21.—The situation which has arisen in Great Britain from the Hoare-Laval attempt to deal with Italy at the expense of Ethiopia seems to some of us to be one of the greatest triumphs of democracy on record. Even the British government had to bow to the will of the populace. When the late President Woodrow Wilson assured Europe that America would enter the league of nations he made the same mistake as did Sir Samuel Hoare. These instances are striking examples of the power of the popular mind over the government, which should always represent the people.

There is one very serious aspect of the present situation in Great Britain which will doubtless have far-reaching consequences. The British people are up in arms against Mussolini. Perhaps the greatest blunder Italy has made is not in invading Ethiopia, but in her propaganda both at home and abroad against England. Almost overnight the British people have become aware of an enemy, and no matter what may be the opinions of a few, as a whole they are ready for any eventuality that may arise from the present situation in the Mediterranean, and whatever stand for war or application of sanctions the government may take the people are behind it. That is the real meaning of the present situation, is it not? FRANK HANCOCK, Minister, First Methodist Episcopal Church.

MAXIMA AND MINIMA.

Keokuk, Ia., Dec. 18.—Just why so much controversy about how much money our government could owe and still stand on its feet? Wouldn't it be better to seek expert information as to how little we might owe and still be able to carry on, and how to bring about this condition which would be nothing more nor less than balancing the budget?

A member of our reigning family stated some months ago that a girl entering society should first find out how many drinks she could hold and still stand on her feet. The main thought running through this revolution seems to be how much can a boondoggler spend or drink [maximum] if properly regimented and instructed. HOWARD BELL.

CHURCHES MARK CHRISTMAS DAY IN JOYFUL SPIRIT

Point to Success During Last Year.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago answered the summons of "Adeste, Fideles" yesterday in countless throngs. At crêche and altar, whether in humble midcity mission church, vast cathedral, or suburban parish church, these faithful found the source of the joyous Christmas atmosphere which has pervaded the city for many days.

While Cardinal Mundelein was presiding at the climactic feast in Holy Name cathedral, other communions also were drawing sacred observances of the day to a close at the noon hour. Bishop George Craig Stewart of the Episcopal diocese was officiant at the famed Cathedral Shelter where Canon David E. Gibson's benefactions carry on the Christmas spirit throughout the year. Bishop Stewart confirmed a class of forty-four at the shelter.

Review Work of Year.

Baptists, Presbyterians, and Lutherans of the city also found themselves in especially buoyant mood as they reviewed their reports of the year drawing to a close.

Dr. A. M. McDonald, head of the Baptist Association of Chicago, speaking for his church, pointed to 1935 as the centenary of Baptists in this region and also to this year as one which marks the denomination's numerical leadership among federation churches. One hundred years ago, Dr. McDonald said, there were but four Baptist churches in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Indiana. Today, he added, there are 131,000 Baptists in Chicago and immediate suburbs. He made a Christmas announcement that two major building projects will be undertaken in 1936, and that the association maintains a social service program which reaches 24,000 persons each month.

Looks Forward to 1936.

"The general movement is upward," said he. "Although the financial distress has not yet been entirely relieved, signs point to better things. Presbyterians are looking forward with new hope and courage for the new year. Nearly 300 pastors, missionaries and religious workers of the presbytery are expanding their activities and the 13 neighborhood houses indicate that Presbyterianism in Chicago has functioned in a healthy and wholesome fashion during 1935."

Reporting for the Evangelical Lutheran Missouri synod, the Rev. Herbert Kohn of Nazareth Lutheran church, Spaulding avenue and 60th street, declared that the 207 congregations of that denomination in Chicago had the most jubilant Christmas in years. An increase of $124,225 over 1934 for missions' treasuries, he said, was evidence of Lutheran Christmas joy this year. He reported also a gain of 8,540 members in Chicago churches, 3,280 new Sunday school pupils and three new parochial schools, making a total of 125 now in Chicago, with a total of 12,570 pupils.

PROVIDE MERRY DAY FOR THE ILL AND HOMELESS

Shelter Gives Dinner for 1,000.

BY KAY HALL.

Christmas came to thousands of the city's unfortunates yesterday in the form of meal tickets that were redeemed over steaming dinner plates with gratitude. Bishop George Craig Stewart and Canon David E. Gibson, priest in charge of the Cathedral shelter, ate with 1,000 homeless men at the shelter, 850 Washington boulevard.

The day was full of entertainment, gifts and feasting for the 10,000 inmates of all county hospitals and institutions. At Oak Forest infirmary the old people ate of a bounteous fare that included 5,700 pounds of poultry.

Gifts for 3,000 Patients.

There were gifts for all the 3,000 patients in the county hospital, interns donning Santa Claus suits for their presentation. The Bishop Kettler council of the Knights of Columbus sponsored music programs in all the wards.

At the Juvenile home 275 children found their stockings full and had a turkey dinner. A goose dinner was served at the Home for the Blind.

Dinner for 50 Children.

Fifty crippled children from the Children's Memorial hospital were guests of William M. Dewey at a Christmas dinner in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. They were given clothing and toys by the residents of the hotel.

Charles Harry Hepp, owner of Harry's New York cabaret at 400 North Wabash avenue, gave turkey dinners to 400 people in family groups. Tickets were issued to families recommended by six church organizations. Having food and room left after the families were cared for, Hepp and his associates cruised about in the poorer districts to seek wanderers who had no Christmas dinner in sight. Thirty such men were sent to the cabaret in cabs C. O. D.

Carol Programs Concluded.

The last program of THE TRIBUNE'S fifth annual series of outdoor Christmas carol broadcasts from the tower was given yesterday from 11 to 11:45 a. m. The Civic Choral society of Chicago and Len Salvo, W-G-N organist, participated in the program, which was also broadcast through the regular channels of W-G-N. The series began Dec. 20.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Frank Ridgway

To Fatten Steers

December 25, 1935.

STOCK field gleaners have about completed their work at the Tribune Yorkville farm. Two hundred and two hungry steers that have been following the corn pickers all fall have done a thorough job of cleaning the corn fields of fallen ears, stalks and blades.

Next week it is the farm manager's plan to lock the steers up in a dry lot and put them on a fattening ration. During the last few days, while the steers were still allowed to run in the stalk fields, they were started out slowly on dry lot feeds. They are getting about 20 pounds each of corn silage each day. In addition to the roughage they pick up in the field they are fed about one ton of soy bean hay a day.

After the first of the year all the 426 steers now being fattened at the Yorkville place will be kept in dry lots and pushed along quite rapidly until they are ready for the market. None of the steers will be exposed to the severe midwinter storms. Every animal has been provided with a bed of straw indoors. A shed 16 by 160 feet recently was lined to add to the comfort of the 202 steers, though they have been running in the open field all fall and winter.

More and more time is being given to the steers to keep them comfortable, and to supply them with all the water they will drink and all the feed they will eat. A new tank that holds 45 barrels of water has been installed where it can be kept filled with fresh water pumped up the hill by the hydraulic ram several hundred yards away.

Outside of feeding the livestock and doing other necessary chores men at both Tribune farms spent Christmas day with their families. Men and women, too, spent hours and hours down on the floor with their children, winding mechanical toys, building with blocks and sticks, and playing new games brought to the homes by Santa Claus. Christmas dinner was the high spot of the day, many of the families bringing the choicest fruits and vegetables out of their pantries and cellars to serve with turkey.

Tomorrow the workers will get a fresh start on the last of their corn picking task. With favorable weather, wagons will be in the last corn field early. They expect to make the ears fly against the bangboards on the last lap of the corn harvesting task that started early in the fall.

With the old crops almost all harvested and the new year only a few days away, the men already are planning for 1936. They are eager that all other farmers interested in the Tribune Experimental farms' test program for next year send in their suggestions and plans. The deadline is next Wednesday. Farmers and other readers of this column are invited to send in their ideas of interesting things to be tried out in the growing of crops, the breeding and feeding of live stock and other things of practical interest to the farmers of this country. Your ideas will be given careful consideration in formulating the 1936 experimental program to be carried out on the Tribune farms, which total 2,332 acres near Yorkville and Wheaton. Send your letter to the Agricultural Editor, Chicago Tribune.

SUICIDE'S WIFE BATTLES DEATH AFTER SHOOTING

Mrs. Alice Hanson, 35 years old, 42 West Harris avenue, La Grange, who was shot and wounded by her husband, Charles, 40 years old, 523 Catherine street, La Grange Park, a mechanic, early yesterday, was reported in a critical condition at the Hinsdale sanitarium late in the day. Hanson, after shooting his wife, committed suicide.

The tragedy was described to the authorities by Lawrence Barden of Hinsdale, a brother of Mrs. Hanson, in whose automobile the shooting took place. Barden said that the two, who had been separated for a week, had attended a Christmas eve party where they became reconciled.

Barden said that while he was driving them to their home they began to quarrel and the shooting followed. They had been married ten years and have two children, Lorraine, 8 years old, and Charles Jr., 7. An inquest will be held on Hanson's death today.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Dr. D. D. Donovan, 63, osteopathic physician, was injured fatally last night when struck by a train.

An item last Sunday said Alfred Rogers, 3928 North Christiana avenue, was injured when the automobile he was driving skidded into an elevated lines support. Mr. Rogers says he was not the driver of the car but a passenger.

An item yesterday stated that funeral services for Albert Handler, an orchestra leader, will be held this afternoon in a chapel at 909 Foster avenue. The services will be held in a chapel at 5206 Broadway.

STATE PENSIONS WILL AID 65,460 RELIEF FAMILIES

IERC Estimates Cut in Burden.

A report of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission showed yesterday that it has on its rolls 65,460 families in which there are persons eligible for old age pensions or for the proposed pensions for dependent children and the blind under new state legislation. The report seeks to foretell to what extent the IERC burden will be lightened when pensions become effective.

Most of the cases—38,797—would come under the old age pension plan. An estimated 27,301 would be eligible for dependent children's pensions, while only 1,130 are believed to be eligible for blind pensions.

Others to Seek Pensions.

The report points out that much greater demands than here shown will be made upon the state pensions, because the relief rolls constitute a relatively small part of the unemployed group in the state.

"It is quite possible that relatively large numbers of persons not now on relief will prove themselves to be eligible for and receive pensions," the report states.

Neither can the IERC hope to be relieved completely of the burden of supporting cases that receive pensions, the report reveals.

IERC Must Help Out.

For instance, where a relief family now has a comparatively large budget, of perhaps $60 a month, the receipt of one old age pension of $30 a month would leave a need for an additional $30 to be met by the IERC. The average number of prospective pensioners in each case was 1.6, whereas the average number of persons in a relief family is 3.7.

The standards of eligibility used in compiling the data were based on the minimum standards to be adopted by states in order to qualify for federal grants in accordance with the federal social security act. If a state makes it more difficult for a person to obtain a pension than do the federal standards, no federal money will be forthcoming to supplement state pension funds.

SANTA GREETS 2,500 CHILDREN ON COAST FLEET

San Pedro, Cal., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Santa Claus visited all 36 warships of the United States fleet this afternoon and dealt out gifts of complete clothing, outfits, toys, dolls, and candy to 2,500 boys and girls, half of them from poor homes, who were guests at the navy's annual "kids' parties."

Children of crew members of the battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers, and auxiliaries made up the other half of the guests. A turkey dinner was served and navy bands and sailor vaudevillians entertained until Santa arrived by seaplane.

Expenses of the children's feeds, gifts, and trimmings were borne by officers and enlisted men on the ships.

It's our family's whiskey, neighbor—and neighbor, it's your price!

Here's the Wilken Family getting set for when neighbors drop in

I'm the one pouring in the real important part of the nog, and that's Harry Jr. stirring it up and William grating the nutmeg. The boy leaning his head over my arm watching the doings is Tom. He's my son-in-law. When we're not taking time out for a holiday like this, the whole four of us are concerning ourselves with our Family's Whiskey over to the distillery right up till after dark.

Now you can treat your neighbors every inch as good as we old-time distillers treat ours

Most likely it's got around to you by now how me and the boys are putting up our own Family's Whiskey in regular bottles for sale around in different neighborhoods—and how quick it's took hold everywhere that folks can get it. Well I got something I want to tell you about that. I want you to know that this being The Wilken Family's own Family's Whiskey, being personally supervised by me and the boys, you can count on that mildness and smoothness and tastiness being in every bottle you ever get a hold of—and that goes for as long as any of us Wilkens is alive. I've put all I ever got out of my 43 years of distilling experience into that whiskey, and you bet every bottle is going to be just like the other—the smoothest, best tasting whiskey The Wilken Family knows how to turn out for you!

What to do with your Christmas money? Spend it, we'd suggest, at the beauty shop. A facial, perhaps, which does wonders for the spirit as well as the sagging contour—or maybe a new hair style or a reducing course.

We hope you had a perfect Christmas, with the people you love best in all the world around you, a gingerbread man on your tree, and presents that thrilled you to the bone.

And if one of those presents was money we aren't a bit afraid to make a suggestion as to how, if you're feminine, you might spend it. Buy yourself a beauty treat—and if beauty treats are few and far between in your life that's all the more reason for spending it in just that way.

If there's a pretty good sum in an envelope under the tree think of buying beauty in a pretty large way—a course of facials, perhaps, or maybe a course of treatments that will make your figure over along the lines you most admire. But even if it's a few dollars you can do wonders for your looks and for your morale if you do some careful beauty marketing.

We wouldn't be a bit hesitant about recommending that you permit yourself the luxury of a single facial. You can have them about town at various prices—as a matter of fact you can pretty much name your own price. You'll feel it's money well spent, too. And it will be. A professional beauty treatment, even one, does wonders for your complexion and for your spirits.

→

If you're approaching or over 30 you should give the beauty treatment a lot more than a passing thought. That's when contours begin to slip and the facial stays the sagging line more effectively than a lot of us realize. It's a thorough cleansing, too, something city women need frequently, especially if the skin is the delicate kind that grime harms in the obvious way of giving birth to blackheads and pimples.

→

You couldn't do better, we'd say, than spend that Christmas money of yours in the beauty shop. Think it over—or better yet, do it.

Seven Debuts Set a Record for Christmas

BY JUDITH CASS.

SEVEN young ladies were presented to society yesterday, a large number for any day, but a startling number when one realizes that it is only within the last decade that there have been Christmas debuts. Up until about 1925 no one would have thought of presenting her daughter to society on Christmas.

Christmas was a family day and if one wanted to keep open house and serve eggnog or mulled wine or hot Tom and Jerries to callers, well and good, but as for giving a large reception, that just wasn't done.

It was the gradual increase of the debutante list, of course, that finally drove mothers to having Christmas debuts and each year lately there have been a few, but four teas, a dinner-dance and a supper-dance, which there were yesterday, does set a record.

The seven who were introduced were Miss Joan McArthur and Miss Marion Johnson, who had teas in town; Miss Antoinette Dangler and Miss Evelyn Shuman, who were presented at teas in Winnetka; Miss Florence Hermes, whose presentation was a dinner-dance at the Blackstone, and Miss Madalon Search and Miss Caterina Bolognesi, who were introduced at a supper-dance at the Casino. Except for the weather some energetic ones would have made an effort to attend all four teas, ending up at the Shuman one at the Indian Hill club, for it was a tea-dance and the hours were from 4 to 7.

Miss Joan McArthur Wears Poinsettia Red.

Looking as Christmasy and gay as an exquisite poinsettia, Miss Joan McArthur, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Selim McArthur, made her formal bow at a tea at the Fortnightly club. Receiving with her mother and father, the debutante was charming in a poinsettia red stiff velvet gown, made in princess style with short puffed sleeves and a low V at the neck, front and back. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias and sweet peas with sprays of euphorbia touched with red adding a note of brilliant color to the bouquet.

Mrs. McArthur was chic in brown uncut velvet with a yoke and sleeves of gold and silver embroidered chiffon, and a shoulder corsage of three exquisite green and brown orchids. The club was attractively but simply decorated with Christmas trees and wreaths, some of them silver and the others green and red. Miss McArthur, who is a student at Bennington college, does not have to be back at school until Feb. 23, but she is leaving Chicago the Monday after New Year's day to do some work in biology at Sanibel Island, Fla.

Marion Johnson in White Chiffon.

Miss Marion Johnson and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Johnson, received in their home, 522 Hawthorne place, to mark Miss Johnson's formal presentation.

The debutante's white chiffon gown was most effective against the background of the colorful Christmas decorations and her bouquet of sweetheart roses and blue Queen Anne's lace handkerchief was unusually lovely. Mrs. Johnson wore beige crêpe and orchids.

One of the nicest debut parties of the entire season was the tea given yesterday by Dr. and Mrs. Nathan S. Davis III. and Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bolssevain to present Dr. Davis' niece and Mrs. Boissevain's daughter, Miss Antionette Dangler. As a little girl Toinette lived in Lake Forest, but since the death of her father, Henry C. Dangler, and the marriage of her mother to Dr. Boissevain of Colorado Springs, she has been here only for brief visits.

Dangler Debut Has Christmas Atmosphere.

The tea, given at the Davis residence in Winnetka, was a typical Christmas "at home," with eggnog and all the traditional Christmas good things to eat and refreshments.

Easter lilies decorated the tea table, but the living room, where the debutante and her mother and aunt received, was decorated with Christmas greens and the lovely flowers that had been sent to the deb.

Miss Dangler wore a white and silver brocade afternoon gown, tailored, but long and very smart. She carried pink orchids. Her mother was charming in a long gold lamé blouse and black skirt, and Mrs. Davis wore a long blouse of rose brocade and a brown skirt.

Miss Evelyn Shuman Bows at Tea-Dance.

Miss Evelyn Shuman received with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Shuman, at the Indian Hill club.

Miss Shuman was strikingly gowned in turquoise blue crêpe, shot with silver, made in period style, and her mother was smart in brown lace threaded with gold.

Two Dancing Parties Held in Evening.

The debutantes and their beaux were late in arriving at the dance at the Casino last night, for they spent the early hours of the night at the Blackstone, dining and dancing as

A UNIQUE Christmas gift that arrived in Chicago this season was a square of white damask with the royal Austrian arms woven in it. A true royal-

The Emperor's Picnic Napkin— ist souvenir, it is a table napkin once used by Franz Josef, late emperor of Austria-Hungary.

A few evenings before Christmas a young Austrian called on Mrs. Philip Maher in her home on Cedar street. His visit was brief and formal. He bowed, and presented her with the packet containing the napkin.

"My mother sent it to me for you," he said, and told a charming little tale as to how his mother had come into possession of the napkin. Then he clicked his heels ever so slightly, bowed again and departed.

* *

IN a complete recital of the story of the late emperor's table napkin, the Viennese ball given in Chicago last spring—as well as a royal picnic in the country near Vienna—must have part. The young Austrian who called on Mrs. Maher was a guest at the famous Mai im Wien ball in Chicago last spring, his invitation having been arranged by Mrs. Maher. He wrote a glowing account of the party to his mother in Vienna, describing the lovely costumes, the Viennese food and music, and mentioned the charming young woman who had secured his invitation for him. She had, he further informed his mother, painted the royal Austrian coat of arms on the wall as part of the decor for the party, and painted them exactly right. And she had seen to it that he met such personages as Mrs. Charles Swift and Mrs. Frederick Stock.

The mother in Vienna was grateful to the person who had made it possible for her son to have such a happy evening in Chicago. As Christmas approached she wanted to send a symbol of her appreciation. Looking over her treasures, she found the square of napery with the royal coat of arms.

She had acquired it one summer's day when the emperor and his court had picnicked in the open near the little town that was their home. After the picnic, some of the plate and linen was raffled off by the townsfolk. She had won the napkin.

"Please give it with my compliments to the young frau who was so kind to you," she wrote to her son in Chicago. "She might find it amusing to own a table napkin used by our last emperor."

Glenn Hunter Stars in Satire on Red Utopia

"Squaring the Circle" Is of Russian Origin.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The play that restores the Blackstone theater to activity after nine months of disuse presents evidence that the Russians can take their revolution lightly, even satirically. All of the American comrades who write pro-communist verbiage for the New Masses, the New Republic, and other owlish journals of opinion [including the college dailies] should hasten to see this piece, called "Squaring the Circle," in order to rescue their sense of humor. Here the planned Utopia of the Scythian darkness kids its own stuff.

The Russian origin of this genial frolic among Lenin's idolaters is a matter upon which I would be skeptical but for sworn testimony from the play's salaried propagandist. The name of the author, Valentine Katayev, means nothing to me, since I have not yet enlisted among the Intourist pilgrims to Red square. Interior evidence, such as the realism of detail, bears out the announcements, however, and compels me to abandon my doubts. I cheerfully relinquish my suspicions that this was a capitalist job, written by a counter-revolutionist. Moreover, from any point of view, it is a good job of playwriting, gayer than anything that has come out of the Russian drama to the American stage since Gogol's "Inspector-General."

"Squaring the Circle" deals impertinently with the Moscow housing problem and the curious customs of the young people of the soviets, striving to digest their heavy doses of communist indoctrination. It is a comedy of light fabric, stretched over a farcical plot idea. In structure it bears a resemblance to the standard comic forms of the late Victorian era; that is to say, its design is an artifice whose situations may be easily guessed in advance by any experienced play detective. Nevertheless, it has a certain spontaneity of mood and diaglog, and its humor is unforced and natural.

Two young bachelors of the revolution live together in one barren room in a "municipalized" apartment house. Each brings home a bride without informing the other of his intentions. General consternation follows; then adaptation to the environment; then quarrels between the couples; then new romances with the partners shuffled. This will serve to suggest the story, which finds variety through the invasion of other characters typical of the dictatorship of the proletarian, such as a fantastic parasitic poet, a frenzied committeeman, a sage old commissar, and a delegation from the League of Youth.

The dialog is fertile with the jargon of high brow communists, used with ironical intent. "Dialectic," "deviation to the right," "technological irregularity," "workers' solidarity"—these and dozens of similar rubber-stamps are used with a frivolity that will probably shock the soggy young Americans who exude this sort of pseudo-learned chatter.

The acting of "Squaring the Circle" is effective in every role; and the stage direction is skillful. Glenn Hunter, the star, still suffers from his old fault of mawed diction, but has comic energy. Muriel Kirkland is decidedly quaint as a noncommunist bride, and Florence Keady is good as the other, a red flag waver. Hugh Buckler's character study of the jolly commissar is admirable.

Good Morning!

One visions little Miss Shirley Temple viewing "The Payoff" with smouldering eyes! For, in it, her best beloved leading man, James Dunn, is mighty badly treated by a vaifree naughty lady!

→

A nice one makes it up to him in due time—which probably doesn't sit so well either with Miss Temple—because rumor has it that she is a jealous woman where the adored—and adoring!—young Irishman is concerned. O well—it's the breaks, Shirley! And well we all know that you've a place in Jimmie's heart that nobody will ever get away from you.

In "The Payoff" Mr. Dunn appears as Joe McCoy, a smart and honest young sports columnist with a gold digging, unscrupulous wife whom he worships.

Sports racketeers — fellows who "fix" races, fights, etc., are interested in corrupting McCoy. They leave no stones unturned to accomplish their foul designs, finally using Mrs. McCoy as a cat's-paw.

For a long stretch Joe has a hard row to hoe. However, though handicapped at home, there's the aforementioned fluffy-haired reporter at the office who doesn't fail him. . . . ! He takes her as a matter of course till—well till—. THEN—? O, you'll like what happens then. . . .

Mr. Dunn gives a fine, sincere performance. Alan Dinehart is smooth and evil as the chief corrupting influence. Patricia Ellis is nice as the girl who stands by. Claire Dodd plays Joe's "rag, bone, and hank of hair" realistically. She has acquired—maybe just for the rôle—the most annoying habit of perpetually shrugging her shoulders. Supporting players please and direction was adept.

Yuletide Checks Can Help Your Own Wardrobe

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With a twice welcome Christmas check clutched in your hand these calm days which follow the wild frenzy of last week can be used for a real buying binge for yourself. Anything from a luxurious fur cape to some of the newest colored gloves and matching handbags will do wonders for your slightly worn or wilted winter wardrobe.

Or you can plunge madly into the fun of getting a couple of new dinner or dance dresses. The gayly printed silk affairs that were designed for resort wardrobes are new and exciting enough to be used right now. With all the holiday parties ahead you'll need lots of dress parade uniforms.

You'll like the slinky satins, some with the wide pleated skirts, some tricky new models with all the pleats in the front, and some models draped in rather complicated arrangements. But all immensely decorative and irresistible as far as susceptible dancing partners are concerned.

New sleek black satin hats also provide a "lift" for your sagging spirits in the letdown after all the excitement. They are tremendously smart and small. These hats feature flattering bits of brims in front and are cut to fit smoothly and neatly at the back where a fur collar can be pulled up to protect you from wind and weather.

→

The striking new colors in suede gloves and belts will keep you in a ferment until you can try them out with a slim, severely simple, one piece black dress. Cerise, rust, lemon yellow, bright blue, and jade green are positively knockout accents for your midwinter black or navy blue ensembles.

Parents Clash on Conduct of Son in School

BY HUGO WESTERBERG.

They were always discussing the proper training for their child, as parents will, and did not agree. She held that the boy must learn to get along with his playmates without fighting and that what he needed most was a calm and quiet manner of behavior. The father wanted the son to grow up an aggressive and self-confident man who could handle himself effectively in the battle of life.

MARION DAVIES.

One day the boy came home from school with a note from the teacher stating that she could not be responsible for his conduct if the parents did not cooperate. The boy had told her that his father wanted him to fight when another boy affronted him and never to swallow an insult.

The father admitted that he had advised his son to take this attitude, but of course, he did not want him to overdo it. The mother felt it would be a disgrace if her son should become a rowdy.

Both parents made the mistake of judging the matter by their own experiences without considering their son's individual traits. The mother had a long upper lip, denoting self-control, a nose tip that slanted up from the lip, which showed a tendency toward rash and impulsive actions. In her younger days she had followed this last inclination and made enemies of persons she really liked. Knowing her weakness, she now went to the other extreme and tried to keep her temper under all circumstances.

The father had a nose hanging down over the upper lip and had always been overcautious. His upper lip was short, which signifies an inclination to worry about the outcome of his actions, and thus he had been constantly a prey to more aggressive and reckless men. Feeling the handicap deeply, he wished his son to be different. However, he had no reason to fear for the boy in this respect because the inheritance from the mother gave him the necessary trait to form a strong and balanced personality.

→

Marion Davies has the intelligent look that a short, sensitive upper lip and a pointed, critical nose tip gives. The chin is protruding in a side view, and fairly wide in front view, which denotes perseverance in purpose and endurance under trying circumstances. The lower part of the nose is somewhat fleshy and this signifies emotional understanding of people, with a touch of affection in estimation of their worth.

Roosevelts Attend Special Services at Church Federation

Awakened by his 4 year old granddaughter Sara, who burst into his bedroom to find what Santa Claus had placed in her stocking, the President and his family had breakfast and then went to the Foundry M. E. church for special Christmas services under the direction of the Washington Federation of Churches.

After luncheon, when a few flurries of snow flickered in the crisp sky, the members of the family opened their packages.

This evening relatives were present for dinner. It was the first large family occasion when the dinner was served from the new kitchens.

Throughout the capital there were signs that the Christmas celebration was the gayest since the depression. Hotels and restaurants were filled with celebrants and there were many dinners at the embassies, legations and in private homes.

The Briar Pipe

By Stuart Palmer

SYNOPSIS.

Violet Feverel is killed, apparently by having been thrown from her horse Siwash. She was taking an early morning's ride in New York's Central park. Miss Hildegarde Withers, teacher and student of criminology, helps her friend, Inspector Piper, investigate. They suspect murder. Miss Withers finds a briar pipe on the spot where the dead girl had lain. Mrs. Maude Thwaite, and her husband, Rufus, are owners of the stable where Siwash is kept, and Latigo Wells manager. Maude Thwaite desired to own Siwash. At Violet Feverel's apartment Miss Withers and Piper overtake Violet's half sister, Barbara Foley, about to elope with Eddie Fry, Violet's boy friend and a race track gambler. Violet was divorced from Don Gregg and had had him put in alimony jail. Thomas, who, with his wife, Mattie, are old retainers of Don's father, Pat Gregg, comes in search of Violet. Old Mr. Gregg thinks he is going to die. Thomas hints at foul play. Don Gregg had been released from alimony jail on a fake writ before his wife's death, though he has an alibi and is not held. The autopsy of Dr. Bloom, medical examiner, reveals Violet Feverel was killed by a BB bullet which hit her throat. An expert tells Miss Withers that the "murder" pipe's owner has false teeth. She buys apples with which she hopes to find who among the suspects has false teeth. Piper and Miss Withers call at the Gregg home. Pat Gregg hints there may be a second murder after the big race on Saturday at Beaulah Park. Abe Thomas admits it was he who got Don out of jail. Latigo Wells is fired from Thwaites.' The day of the race arrives. Miss Withers and Piper and all the suspects attend. Miss Withers wins on Wallaby, a long shot. She knew he had been Violet Feverel's selection. After the race Miss Withers and Piper head for the Gregg home.

INSTALMENT XI.

A THIRD STROKE FATAL.

There were few taxicabs to be had. Stout Capt. Joel Tinker, Cerberus of the gateway, wouldn't have listened to the idea anyway. "Wait here until I get one of my boys to relieve me and I'll drive you over to the Gregg place."

"That's luck," the inspector said. "Hildegarde, you're batting .300 today."

She nodded. "That's because I threw away my water wings, Oscar. I've forgotten all about People's Exhibit A, the briar pipe. It was my main clew—but it was an hallucination. Didn't somebody say that when the probable becomes impossible then the improbable is the truth?"

"Sounds like Gertrude Stein to me," the inspector protested. And then Capt. Tinker drove up in a battered roadster and flung open the door.

"All aboard for the Gregg homestead!" he sang out cheerily.

"And all aboard for a solution of the Feverel murder," Miss Withers added. "Wasn't that what Pat Gregg promised to give us if we called upon him right after the big race today?" There was a very tiny suspicion in the back of her mind. It involved a dozen "ifs," but all the same it intrigued her tremendously. She toyed with the possibility during the five minute ride to the Gregg homestead. As always, the Gingerbread house stood somnolently among its elms, but in contrast to its usual loneliness three automobiles had been parked in the driveway.

"This is the genuine murder—the other was accidental!"

ing station wagon, and the other a light roadster which Miss Withers recognized as belonging to Eddie Fry.

"Of all people!" Miss Withers said to herself. "You're coming in with us, captain?".

Capt. Tinker thought he might as well wait in the car. "I'll drive you on over to the village when you get through in there," he promised.

The inspector rang the bell, and after an interminable wait Mrs. Mattie Thomas opened the door. Her eyes were red-rimmed with sleep and her shapeless body was sheathed in a bright orange and green coolie coat with woolen slippers beneath.

"I think Mr. Gregg is expecting us," Piper said.

The woman nodded. "Come on in," she said. She managed her sugary smile, but it seemed more strained than usual. She pawed at her hair. "I been having myself a nice nap," she apologized; "that is, I was until this doorbell started ringing. . . . You may as well go in with the others." She pointed toward the living room with its horsehair furniture.

Miss Withers and the inspector came to the doorway and stopped. Within the room was what seemed to be a vast crowd of people. Barbara Foley—Latigo Wells—Eddie Fry—even Don Gregg himself. Latigo and Eddie Fry seemed about to fly at each other's throats.

"It's open house!" said Miss Withers cheerily. "And we're all here to see old Mr. Gregg!" Her voice seemed to calm things.

"We came to try and sell Mr. Gregg my equity in Siwash," Babs hastily announced. "As you suggested . . . Mr. Gregg always wanted to get that horse back."

"And if we can get some dough from him we'll still get married!" added Latigo.

"We were here first!" Eddie Fry insisted. He turned to Don Gregg. "Just let me talk to your father, that's all I ask! He'll give you the money to bet that three horse parlay with me. . . ."

"I rode home with Mr. Fry here," explained Don Gregg, "because Thomas didn't seem to be anywhere around . . . but I tell you all, I doubt if my father has any spare change to put into other people's gambling games—"

"And Thomas isn't here yet?" Miss Withers cut in.

"Yes, he's here," admitted Don Gregg. "He arrived just a moment ago as the four of us were pounding on the door and trying to get Mattie to snap out of her dreams and open up. Thomas is upstairs, trying to find out if the old man is up and can see us. . . ."

It didn't take Thomas long to find out. He came running down the stairs, all expression sponged from his face.

He stopped, clutching at the doorway. "Mr. Gregg!" he babbled. "It's Mr. Gregg—I can't wake him up!"

Nothing but the trump of judgment would suffice to waken Mr. Pat Gregg, the inspector discovered. He led the mad rush up the stairs, down the long hall, and into the old man's bedroom.

Pat Gregg sat calmly in the easy chair at his desk in the tiny cupola room, beside the telescope which was still trained upon the track at Beaulah Park. He was in his shirt sleeves. One arm was stretched across his littered desk, and upon that arm rested the dead man's face.

"Get the doctor!" Abe Thomas was crying.

"Get the police!" Babs Foley screamed.

"Funny thing to find in a flower bed," he observed before they could speak. "I don't see the sense of it."

He was holding a man's blue silk sock. There was sand ground into the sock. Strangely enough, the grains of sand were on the inside rather than the outside where they might have belonged.

. . . . . .

Dr. Peterson came down the narrow stairs which led from the cupola into the bedroom. "And that's that!" said the young doctor.

A barrage of wary eyes met his. "You'll want an autopsy, doctor?" That was Capt. Tinker, no longer jovial.

Dr. Peterson shrugged. "If the family likes. But that was the third attack. It's a clear case of what we call a cerebral accident—burst blood vessel in the brain. I told him there'd be a third if he didn't forego all excitement. He must have died as he was looking through his telescope at the finish of the race. . . ."

"O, no!" cut in Miss Withers. "Gregg was murdered! This is the genuine murder—the other was accidental, insincere! Doctor, can you tell me how long this man has been dead?"

"I'll stake my professional reputation that Mr. Gregg died between the hours of three o'clock and three-fifteen this afternoon," he said. "And he died from excitement—apoplexy, or a kindred ailment. His blood pressure was high, always."

The inspector, who had a prisoner, looked puzzled. "That fits," he admitted. "The big race was run at three o'clock. . . ."

"And I was at the track, so you can let go of my arm!" cried Abe Thomas. He wrenched out of Piper's grasp. "I was standing in the crowd right behind you—and as the race ended I saw Miss Withers here when she pulled out tickets on every horse in the race! She looked at you, inspector, and she said: 'I bought a ticket on each horse—to win!'"

His a Poor Excuse.

"Dear Miss Blake: Out of three dates my beau disappointed me twice. He says he hasn't any money to take me out. ANNE."

A poor excuse. He knew his financial status before he made the date, and should have kept it.

Brief Passion Unworthy of Broken Home

BY DORIS BLAKE.

She's 31, married, and mother of three children. Her family arranged the match. She never loved the man. Until recently she never thought much about it until a young man seven years younger crossed her path and now she writes that she knows what real love is for the first time in her life. Under the circumstances she argues it would be unfair for her to remain with her husband. He will be heartbroken, for he never suspects. She doesn't know what grounds for divorce she could institute, since her husband isn't cruel, hasn't any interest in other women, and has a respected place in the community.

"What is the right thing to do?" she asks with astonishing naivete. As if any woman of 31, mother of three, isn't fully aware of what is the right thing to do. The fact that she courts encouragement from an outsider to do what she wants to do isn't a bad sign. She knows, deep down, that it would be anything but the right thing to do to run off with this flame whose devotion, at best, must be only a temporary thing.

The odds are all against happiness coming out of the proposed plan. The seven year seniority of the woman, coupled with her three children and walking out on a man who obviously is undeserving of such treatment, couldn't possibly breed contentment in the proposed new life. If you were the kind of woman who could up and walk out on all responsibility and moral duty, you wouldn't get any happiness out of the move, anyway. You'd be too cold blooded to be content with anything you'd get out of the foolhardy venture. And if you are the kind of woman whose conscience bothers her sufficiently to beg endorsement of the foolhardy plan, you may be sure you'd never be at peace with yourself.

But don't think we are out of sympathy with your position. You feel you've been cheated out of a great passion, no doubt, because of the family arranged match. But this thing you contemplate is only a temporary flare. It can't be otherwise. Keep your head on your shoulders, woman, and don't do anything that would alienate you from those children of yours.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

Every Skin Requires Washing.

J. P.: One soap and water washing each day is beneficial to any type of skin. Use a mild soap, of course, one that will give a light lather that may be washed off quickly. If your skin is dry, use a nourishing cream after this cleansing.

Seven Debuts Set a Record for Christmas

The debutante was charming in a gown of white net, upon which had been painted silver flowers. The gown, which was over a slip of light blue slipper satin, was an off-the-shoulder model, quaint and old fashioned. Her flowers were white violets.

Mrs. Hermes wore gray crêpe and reddish camellias.

Looking just as youthful and sweet as one imagines a young girl entering adult society should look were Miss Caterina Bolognesi and Miss Madalon Search last night at the supper-dance given for them at the Casino by Mrs. Victor Beaufort.

Miss Bolognesi, daughter of Count and Countess Giulio Bolognesi of Wisconsin, who are spending the winter at the Whitehall, was charming in white taffeta, and Miss Search, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gist Search, was equally charming in white tulle. Both girls wore silver girdles and carried tight bouquets of calla lilies with silvered stems and stamens.

The hostess' stunning gown of sapphire blue velvet fitted into the color scheme perfectly. Silver Christmas trees were used to decorate the club. Supper was served at 2 a. m. and Neapolitan singers entertained the young people while they were eating. Only young people were invited to the party.

Two Debutantes Will Bow Today.

Two young women are being introduced today, Miss Mary Wood, youngest daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of Highland Park, and Miss Anne Burnham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Burnham of Winnetka.

Gen. and Mrs. Wood are presenting their daughter at a supper-dance at the Blackstone which should be one of the gayest parties of the year, for as the Woods already have introduced three daughters they are wise in the way of entertaining for young people. Mr. and Mrs. Burnham are giving a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club to present their daughter.

Miss Wood's older sisters and brothers-in-law who will attend the party are the junior Calvin Fentresses, the James R. Addingtons, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis. The debutante's brother, Robert W. Wood II., arrived at home yesterday from Texas, where he is engaged in business, to spend four days here.

Miss Wood will dine at the Racquet club tonight at a dinner-dance Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon are giving for Miss Frances Glore, debutante daughter of the Charles F. Glores. Miss Wood is a graduate of Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn. She and her mother are leaving for Honolulu in February to spend a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnham and their daughter will receive their guests after 4 o'clock in the lounge of the Indian Hill. The debutante is a graduate of the North Shore Country Day school and now is a student at Vassar. She has invited several debutantes and school friends to assist at the tea tables. They include the Misses Julie Walcott, Elizabeth and Esther Buchen, Evelyn Shuman, Frances Price, Elsie Earle, Margaret Bell, Deborah Leonard, Mary Jean Bartelme, Anne Harding, Carol Buck, and Jean Anderson.

The Misses Buchen and their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walther Buchen, are giving a small dinner tonight at the Tavern, before the Wood ball, to which they have invited Miss Burnham and a few of the Winnetka debutantes.

Give Parties Today. for Sub-deb Set.

Activity in subdebutante circles today includes two parties, one in town and one in Lake Forest. In Chicago Edward Cummings, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, will entertain at dinner in the Cummings apartment at 1500 Lake Shore drive, and afterwards all the young guests will go around the corner to the Astor street home of Edward P. Russell, where Mr. Russell's grandson, Teddy Russell, will be host at a dance.

Eighth graders as well as preparatory school age children have been invited to the Lake Forest Junior assembly tonight at the Onwentsia. The party is to be a dinner-dance, and is eagerly looked forward to by Lake Foresters between the ages of 12 and 16.

Mrs. Knight C. Cowles, Mrs. Lester Armour, Mrs. Julian Armstrong, Mrs. Kent Chandler, Mrs. Alfred T. Carton, Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Mrs. Robert A. Gardner, Mrs. De Forest Hulburd, Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III., Mrs. Henry P. Isham, Mrs. R. Douglas Stuart, and Mrs. Edward De Witt Shumway are members of the committee in charge.

Herbert Markhams Will Entertain.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Markham will be host and hostess at a tea-dance at the South Shore Country club this afternoon which they are giving for their daughter, Miss Florence Markham, and their son, James Markham. Miss Markham, who was graduated from Smith college last June, will be introduced formally to her mother's friends at a tea at home, 5605 Woodlawn avenue, next month. Young Mr. Markham is a student in the senior class at the University of Chicago.

Another party at the South Shore Country club today is one at which boys and girls of preparatory school age will dine and dance. Members of the Colony club have arranged the party for their children, and it will be one of the holiday highlights for the very young.

Wheaton Church Guild Gives Dance Tomorrow.

The Woman's Guild of Trinity Episcopal church in Wheaton will give its 15th annual holiday dance tomorrow night at the parish house. Mrs. George B. Dyche of Wheaton is chairman of the party, which is sponsored by St. Mary's chapter of the guild.

Many of the young people at home from college and preparatory schools will attend the dance. Among those who take an interest in the party are Mrs. Robert R. McCormick, the Chauncey McCormicks, Mr. and Mrs. Albert J. Pardridge, the Horace O. Wetmores, and the Walter S. Underwoods.

Dorothy Snyder to Be Bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder, 2844 Blackhawk road, Wilmette, yesterday announced the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy, to Gilbert J. Stecker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stecker, Appleton, Wis. Both Miss Snyder and Mr. Stecker were graduated from Northwestern university in 1934.

Last summer Miss Snyder accompanied her father, an oil company executive, on an expedition into the wilds of northern Canada. Mr. Stecker is secretary of a construction company in Chicago.

'Winged Squares' Quilt Design Is Simple to Piece

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Winged Squares.

By NANCY CABOT.

Perhaps one of the simplest to piece, yet apparently one of the most difficult of pieced patterns, "Winged Squares" is withal one of the most charming quilt designs. Red and white, with a touch of blue, is a popular color arrangement, with orange, brown, and white running a close second. It is a cheerful quilt to use in a growing boy's room. The three patches necessary for a complete pattern are set together without any trouble. The entire block measures 14 inches square when completed.

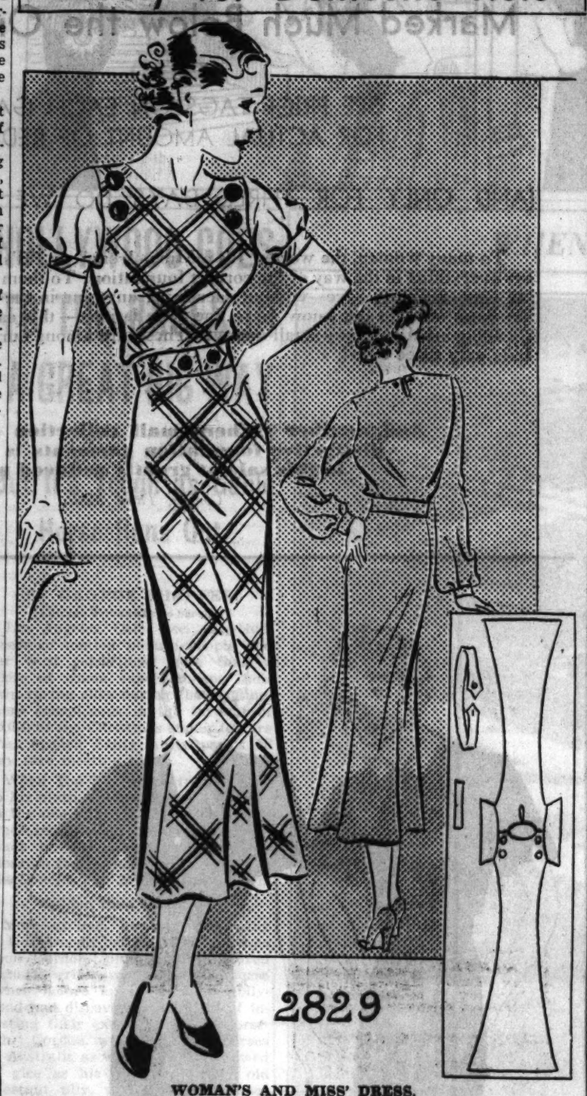
Lovely for Domestic Role



WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

There isn't any reason why women shouldn't be attractively dressed when doing things around the house. Here is a pretty pattern, and just a few yards of one of the lovely printed broadcloths, percales, or wool challis will make a dress for nearly nothing. It may be made with long sleeves if you prefer.

The pattern, No. 2829, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material, with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Novel Desserts Sustain Gayety of Holidays

BY MARY MEADE.

All through holiday vacations there are sweet tooths to be filled before youngsters trek reluctantly back to their schools all over the country.

That's why we've saved two beautifully special desserts for this day after Christmas. They'll appeal to you, we feel sure, because they're neither overly rich nor expensive. They're both exceptionally good at keeping up with holiday gayety and, best of all, they're so simply made that they let you keep up with it, too. The first of these is a frozen cranberry shortcake. The second is a delicate eggnog pie, with a chiffon-like texture and a "Happy New Year" flavor.

Three layers make up the short cake, but don't let that dismay you, for they're all as quickly put together as they are delicious and colorful. The recipe goes like this:

FROZEN CRANBERRY SHORTCAKE.

Line a freezing tray with a long strip of waxed paper, allowing one inch to extend over each end of the tray for easy removal after the cake is frozen. Cut a slice of sponge cake to fit the tray, and slice it to the thickness of a half inch. Cover with the jellied cranberry mixture, which is made from:

1 pint cranberries
½ cup water
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon grated orange rind
1 egg

Simmer the cranberries and water for 10 minutes, force through a sieve, and combine with the sugar and orange rind. Beat in the egg yolk and, when cooled, fold in the stiffly beaten white. After the cranberry layer, top the cake with this mixture:

1 egg
1 tablespoon sugar
2 tablespoons honey
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup heavy cream

Beat the egg white until stiff, and add the sugar. Beat the yolk and honey together, add the vanilla, whip the cream until stiff, and fold all together.

Freeze the dessert as quickly as possible. To serve, lift from the tray with the waxed paper and cut into squares. The shortcake serves six or eight.

Eggnog Pie.

4 eggs
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup hot water
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
2 tablespoons rum
1 teaspoon nutmeg

Combine the egg yolks with half the sugar, the salt, and the hot water, and cook over boiling water until the mixture coats the stirring spoon. Soak the gelatin in the cold water, and combine with the hot custard. Cool. When the mixture begins to congeal, fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, the remaining sugar, the rum [or rum flavoring], and the nutmeg. Turn into a baked pie shell, and chill. Serve spread with a thin layer of whipped cream, and sprinkle with additional nutmeg or chopped roasted almonds.

Chi Psi Ball.

The annual Chi Psi ball will be held tomorrow evening at Pierre's New Continental casino. Mrs. Stanley Wanzer is among those interested in the event.

According to CULBERTSON

INTELLIGENT SLAM BIDDING.

Before the inclusion in the Culbertson system of the "void showing convention," countless hands that contained twelve sure tricks had to be signed off at game levels. There was simply no way to tell whether a partner's advertised tricks corresponded to the other hand's void, making one or the other useless, or were in a fitting suit. When the opponents were kind enough to bid, it is true that an overcall in their suit was effective, but without this friendly assistance, slam bidding suffered acutely.

SOUTH

♣ Q 6 3

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diam'd	Pass	3 hearts	Double
Pass	Pass	4 diam'd	Pass
6 diam'd [final bid].

The moment North heard his partner bid one diamond, slam possibilities were evident. But it was vital to know whether duplication of values was present—that is to say, whether North's void heart suit was duplicated—and vitiated by high honor strength in hearts held by South. In only one way could the information be extracted—by telling South about his own void and letting South decide whether this, with its implications of side strength, was good or bad.

South's jump from four to six diamonds was predicated entirely on the assurance that his spade ace and club queen, not being duplication of values, would be good fitting cards. Had he held the heart ace instead of the spade ace, he would have bid only five diamonds, and there the contract would have rested.

West opened his fourth best heart and dummy ruffed. The other hearts were eliminated from the South hand by ruffs in dummy, during which process the adverse trumps also were drawn. Three rounds of spades voided North and South of that suit. Now declarer led a low club from his hand and played the nine from dummy—whatever the club honor situation chanced to be, this avoided the "guess," and insured that only one trick could be lost.

TODAY'S QUESTION.

Question: I was on lead against three no trump, the bidding having been one no trump by South, three no trump by North—no intervening bids. My hand was: ♠ K Q 9 8 4, ♥ Q 7 2, ♦ 10 9 8, ♣ Q 6. What should I lead, the fourth best spade or the ten of diamonds?

Answer: Neither. The spade king is your best lead. With a five card or longer suit headed by K Q 9, the lead of the king, rather than the fourth best, often is effective. Declarer may hold A J x and the leader's partner the ten. In that case a fourth best lead would immediately give the declarer two tricks in the suit.

Chicago Zionists to Hold Chanukah Dinner Tonight

Members of the Zionist Organization of Chicago will attend the 4th annual Zionist Chanukah dinner at the Hotel La Salle tonight in celebration of the 2,100th anniversary of Chanukah, the celebration of the Jewish liberation from the tyranny of the Syrians. Louis Litsky, honorary president of the Zionist Organization of America and a member of the World Zionist executive committee, will be the speaker.

Store Away Excess Toys After Holidays

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

By yesterday afternoon—or perhaps it will not be until this afternoon—you probably discovered which of the playthings your small son or daughter received that he or she enjoyed the most.

If, like so many children, yours were given for Christmas more gifts than they could assimilate into their play why not quietly abstract the ones that seem to appeal least at the moment?

To be sure, if you have an older child, you can't do it without telling him.

There are two—no, three—advantages in packing away some of the younger child's toys.

First, a child may have a toy that is too complicated. This can be kept until he is older and able to use it. Second, a few toys at a time give more satisfaction to a child than a confusingly large number. When he's "gone stale" on these, the others can be brought out and seem fresh and new.

Third, a reserve supply of toys is a comfort to have for one of those long rainy spells. Producing a gift that has been forgotten will act like a ray of indoor sunshine.

Good Fellows Plan to Extend Campaign for Next Christmas

In the Christmas gladness that enveloped Chicago yesterday there were no happier groups than the 1,173 poor families which received gifts of food and toys for their children from THE TRIBUNE organization of Good Fellows. And it was a merry Christmas, too, for the 926 Good Fellows.

The inception of THE TRIBUNE'S Christmas bounty campaign was in 1909 on the suggestion of the late Edward C. Fitch, who became the first Good Fellow. Fitch, a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at the University of Indiana, enlisted many of his fraternity brothers and received donations from them.

Many fraternity men have been Good Fellows every year. Roy J. Madigan, chairman of the Phi Kappa Psi group in the campaign this year, said yesterday that he hopes to have a thousand Greek letter men on the Good Fellow roster next year.

Beauty Adviser Gives Tips on Trios in Color

Suggests Harmonies for Chic Ensembles.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

They tell us now that it is out of date to dress according to the matching color idea. We must try to use a painter's imagination and go in more for harmonizing colors. A three-color ensemble scheme is in current vogue. Not all of us are blessed with the painter's imagination. I sought some help on this color harmonizing business from a fashion stylist and color expert with the following hints resulting:

Black: With black, a pure vermilion is combined and a flash of gray for a third note. Or with black, periwinkle or cornflower blue with a flash of American beauty thrown in for the trio. Chartreuse green [rather than jade] is used with black. However, in spite of color combination talk I'm told by my authority that solid black is as smart as it ever was.

Blue: With dark blue a terra cotta shade and an almond green make a good color trio. Chamois yellow with blue is striking enough without a third note. Gray with blue should be avoided. Each is a cold color and chills the eye unless one is a vivid person. But the two colors in the flag, red and white, are used time and time again by smart Parisians. Combining the pastel blue with dark blue requires a good eye to get the shade that is warming, not the negative tint so often adopted. Pink is not so good with blue, I learn, as old rose, now coming into high favor.

Wines, Dubonnet, and reds: Brown is excellent with the Dubonnet and darker wines. A girdle of old rose and Alice blue with the wine is good. There's no prettier color with the dark red than delicate pink, pink without yellow in it. A flash of dove gray with this is classic. A flash of turquoise with dark red is good, too. The rust reds are difficult to combine with other shades, but a dark, rich brown and a soft reseda green make a good combination. And dark blue accessories with the rust shade are deservedly popular now.

Shoes from Mayflower Worn by Bride At Wedding Ceremony

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Miss L. Geraldine Stickney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron W. Stickney of Worcester, preserved a tradition at her Christmas wedding this afternoon. For "something old" she wore a pair of 518-year-old shoes as she became the wife of Milton L. Fitch of Granville, O. The ceremony was in the bride's parents' home.

A family heirloom, the shoes are fashioned of green brocade with a white lether piping and were made in England in 1417.

They were brought to this country on the Mayflower by William Brewster and by family custom have been worn by the oldest daughter of the family at her wedding.

New Sea Plant IODINE Strengthens Blood and Glands—Adds Lbs. Quick!

Thousands of skinny, weak, worn-out, run-down men and women who are nervous, sick and ailing hardly realize their principal trouble is very frequently iodine starved glands. When these glands, particularly the glands which control weight and strength building, lack natural iodine (do not confuse this with ordinary chemical iodine which oftentimes is toxic), even diets rich in fats and starches fail to add weight and produce strength and energy. That's why skinny, worn-out, tired folks often have huge appetites and yet the food they eat does them little good. Only when the system gets an adequate supply of iodine can you regulate metabolism—the body's process of converting digested food into firm flesh, new strength and energy.

With Kelpamalt, a mineral concentrate made from a huge 90 foot sea plant, you may be sure of your needed ration of plant iodine in easily assimilable form. 1200 times richer in iodine than oysters, Kelpamalt mixes with your food and helps your food do you good. It stimulates the glands which produce the juices that enable you to get the good out of fats and starches—the weight building foods. With proper assimilation of nourishment you build rugged strength, increase nerve force, banish fatigue and add weight.

Try Kelpamalt for a single week and notice the difference. See flattering extra pounds of "star there flesh" appear in place of skinny hollows. Notice how much better you feel and if you do not gain strength and weight the first week the trial is free. Kelpamalt costs but a few cents a day to use. Get it today.

TOP ROW WINS IN SANTA ANITA OPENING STAKE

Breaks Track Record Before 35,000.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Top Row raced before 35,000 fans to record breaking victory today in the Santa Anita Christmas stakes and added to the more than $100,000 in dividends he has paid A. A. Baroni, who claimed him in 1934 for $3,500.

Before the largest crowd ever to witness a turf program on the western seaboard, the son of Peanuts out of Too High won by a neck over Ariel Cross and set a new track mile mark of 1 minute 35 4-5 seconds. It was four-fifths faster than the mark established by Sweeping Light last February in beating Equipoise.

Third place went to Marv, two lengths back.

Woolf Puts Up Good Ride.

Jocky George Woolf held the four year old bay colt close to the pace throughout the first half of the race and then moved him rapidly to the front. It was a masterful piece of riding by the pilot who brought Azucar home in front here in the $100,000 handicap last February.

The victory was worth $4,600 to Baroni. Top Row paid $4.80, $4.20, and $3.40 on $2 pari-mutuel tickets.

The winner packed his top weight of 124 pounds handily. He dropped some distance to the leaders in the first three furlongs until the mob of ten starters sorted itself out, then moved up to third on the far turn behind Ariel Cross and Marv.

Turns on the Heat.

He answered Woolf's call off the turn and, running wide, came into the stretch second, a length and a half behind Ariel Cross. Then he moved ahead fast.

Fourth, by a head, was Crofter, the other half of the Hatch entry, with Soon Over, one of the favorites, fifth and Regardless sixth.

Born Happy, with No. 1 post position, started fast, but could not hold the pace past the half mile mark as Ariel Cross, Marv and Top Row closed in. Marv, except for difficulty at the start, might have won the race. Away to a good start, he was shut off in the first furlong and needed several hundred yards in which to regain his stride.

Day's Betting Is $492,435.

A total of $89,364 was bet on the event, which drew heavily from Hollywood's motion picture colony. The eight races saw $492,435 bet, almost doubling last year's opening day handle of approximately $259,000.

The crowd exceeded by several thousand the approximately 30,000 who saw the Santa Anita handicap last February.

Snow Fails to Bother Silver Skaters Long

Yesterday's snow storm may handicap the boys and girls who would like to be practicing today for the Silver Skates races which will be held at Garfield park on Jan. 11 and 12. However, most playgrounds and lagoons where skating is permitted, soon will be cleared and since the derbies are more than two weeks distant, there remains ample time for practice.

Mail Entries Now.

Except for practicing for the derbies, the most important item just now is to be certain that your entry is sent to THE TRIBUNE before midnight Jan. 5. Obviously, practice will do no good unless you are entered, but after Jan. 5 no one will be permitted to register for any of the seven classes.

Individual entries have been received from a score of adjacent towns and cities as well as from Chicago. One entry for the boys' midget division has been received from Syracuse, N. Y. It isn't likely that this youngster's enthusiasm will bring him that distance to Chicago for the derbies since each skater pays his own expenses, but if he, or anyone else from any distance, is in Chicago, and has registered, he may compete for one of the pairs of Silver Skates.

Make Plans at Park.

Preliminary plans have been drawn up for the accommodation of the Silver Skates contestants at Garfield park. Nathan Balter, district supervisor, and P. H. Leiderman, director of Garfield park recreational activities, not only have promised cooperation, but they have outlined plans for reception of the army of amateur skaters on the afternoons of Jan. 11 and 12.

HOLLYWOOD GOES TO THE RACES IN A GREAT BIG WAY

But It's Tough as Gable Horse Runs Out.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 25.—Hundreds of motion picture people and far west celebrities, more than a score of whom expect to see their own racing silks during the meeting, were conspicuous in the turnout of 35,000 at the Christmas stakes feature that opened Santa Anita park's 58 day race meeting today.

Gordon Puts One Over.

More excited, however, than any of Hollywood's befurred beauties was Leon Gordon, plump, curly haired scenario writer, who was a race horse owner before any others in Hollywood had discovered the thrill of investing their excess salary in horseflesh. Gordon, who owns race horses in Australia as well as here, bellowed in glee as his Mumsie, 4 year old chestnut filly, won the fourth race at 9.80 for $2.

Al Jolson and Ruby Keeler were there an hour before the first race. They had luncheon in their box. Others who came early to escape trafic were the Chico Marxes, Mrs. Jane Reynolds [the former Jane Lawson, golfer]; Gene Fowler, the Joe E. Browns, and Gertrude Olmsted, film favorite of silent days, who wore a fur hat to match her fur coat and came with her husband, Director Robert Leonard.

Leo Forbstein, orchestra leader, could be spotted from any distance by his checkered cap. The Ernst Lubitschs and the Mervyn Leroys [Doris Warner] were in a party. Claire Dodd gleamed in a gray ensemble.

Lowe Goes for Checks.

What the well dressed actor should wear was exemplified by Edmund Lowe in a wide checkered suit and overcoat to match. He brought Rita Kaufman, dress designer for film studios.

Bert Wheeler squired Sally Haines as usual. Then there were the Ted Lewis' and Eddie Cantors in a party; Lucille Ball, Wini Shaw, the Hawaiian-American dancer, Roland Brown, Howard J. Green, the writer who, incidentally owns some horses, and Mrs. Green; Arthur Sheekman and Gloria Stuart, the Frank Borzages, Bill Conselman, and the John McCormicks.

Mrs. Clark Gable was with Lady Victor Paget, Mrs. Russell Mack and Mrs. Milton Breen. They made a party in the Turf club lounge. Cedric Gibbons, art director for Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford, ordered lunch at the same place for Dolores del Rio, his wife. Miss Del Rio wore a poke bonnet with veil.

Carmelita Geraghty, completely recovered from her recent mysterious accident, and her husband, Carey Wilson, were in the party with Del Rio and Gibbons. Gail Patrick, wearing a large corsage of orchids, was with Bob Cobb and at their table were Carole Lombard and Robert Riskin.

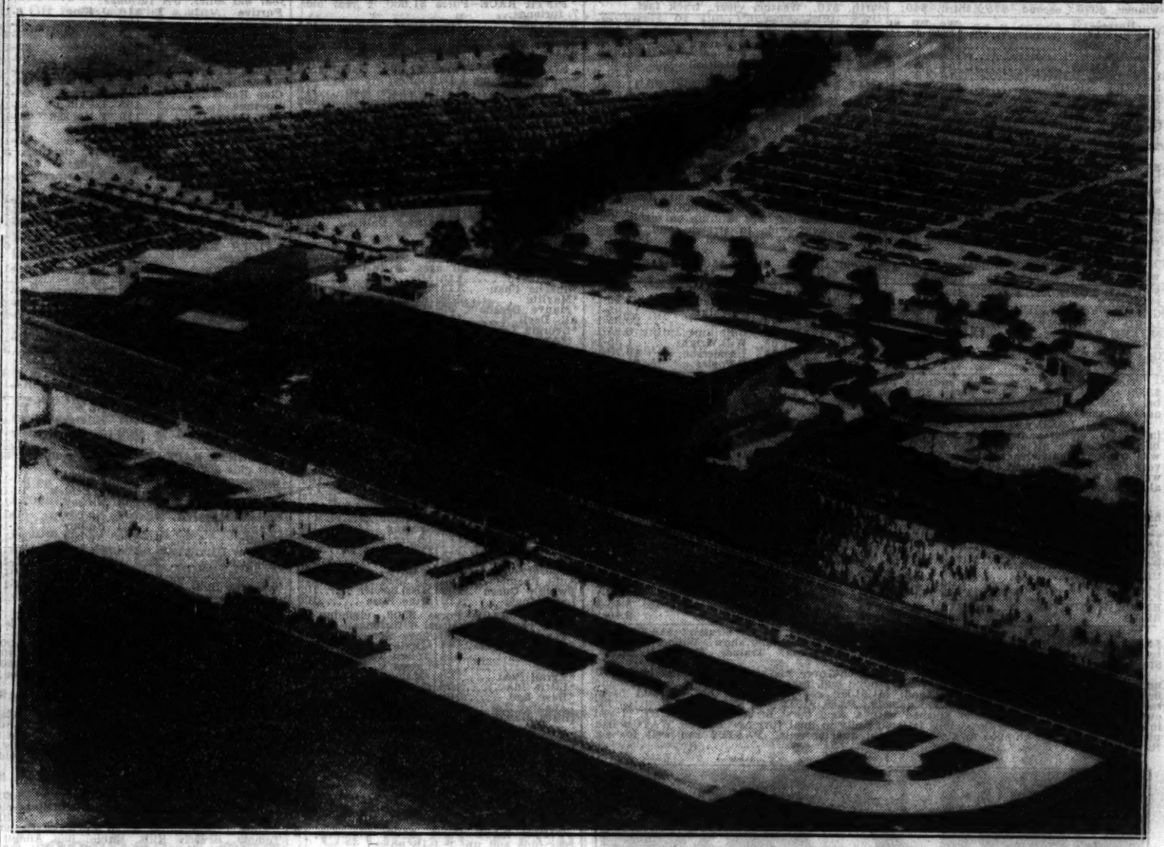
Glenda Farrell There.

Glenda Farrell and her fiancé, Addison Randall, were together. Benjamin Glazer and red headed Sharon Lynne were there. Eleanore Whitney was with her holidaying boy friend from Yale, Luther Davis of New York, Cesar Romero, Rosalind Keith and her fiancé, Abbey Dreyfus, Edward Everett Horton and a large group of friends; Claire Windsor, and Carl Laemmle Jr., were others noticed.

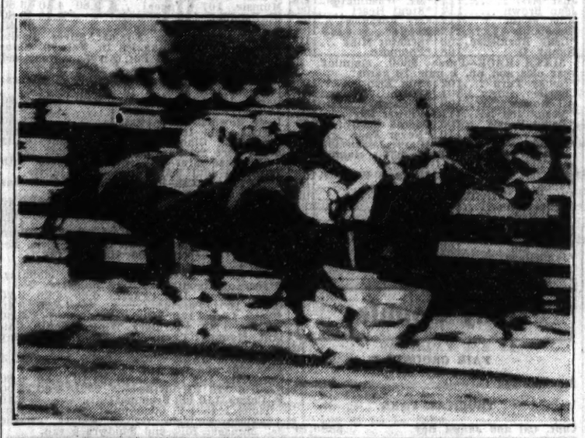
One interesting couple was Playwright Jack Kirkland ["Tobacco Road"] with June Travis [June Grabiner of Chicago]. Patsy Ruth Miller was with John Mahin, the writer.

The eastern contingent was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pike, well known in Chicago. Following their racers around the country they saw Jubilee Jim win the first and Ebony Lady take show money in the seventh race.

WHEN'S THE NEXT TRAIN TO CALIFORNIA?



Opening day at the Santa Anita race track, Arcadia, Cal., as seen from the air. The horses are nearing the finish in the first race yesterday while the crowd of 35,000, packed into every corner of the place, look on. Numerous movie celebrities were in the throng.



Top Row, the little bay that beat Discovery twice this year, flashes to the finish line in $5,000 Christmas stakes, sixth race on the program, while Ariel Cross gets second money. It was Top Row's ninth major victory of the year. [Associated Press Wirephotos.]

CRUICE INJURED; MAY MISS EAST, WEST BATTLE

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Walt Cruice of Northwestern dislocated a knee in Christmas day scrimmage of the eastern squad at Berkeley and the injury probably will keep him on the bench during the annual East-West charity football game here New Year's day.

Dick Crayne, University of Iowa full back, will be shifted to Cruice's post at right half, Coaches Andy Kerr and Dick Hanley said.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1935: By The Chicago Tribune.]

HAROLD OLSEN, basketball coach at Ohio State, has almost concluded that his team can get along without his leadership. . . . The Buckeyes played recently at Muskingum and his first string lineup piled up a big score. . . . He sent in a reserve squad five minutes before the end of the half. . . . In the dressing room between halves he instructed the substitutes, who were holding their own, to begin the second half. . . . The players left for the floor and Olsen and his assistant went into the washroom. . . . The door accidentally locked from the outside and the coaches were unable to escape and it was a 25 foot jump from the only window in the room to the ground. . . . After eight minutes of the second half had elapsed the Ohio State trainer observed that neither coach was on the bench. . . . He hurried downstairs to the dressing room and heard them hammering on the washroom door. . . . Twelve minutes of the second period had been played before the coaches rejoined their team. . . . Meanwhile the reserve lineup had increased its lead. . . . From which you may gather that a good team doesn't need coaching—maybe. . . .

On his recent tour of the country Champion Jimmy Braddock drew his biggest gate in Hollywood, $4,361, and even then Joe E. Brown, as referee, stole the show. . . . Jimmy Crowley of Fordham will be among the scouts who will attend the Stanford-Southern Methodist Rose bowl game. . . . Fordham plays the Mustangs in New York next season. . . . The author has been extended an invitation to attend the athletic directors' sessions at the N. C. A. A. meet on the basis that he has employed as many famous coaches as any man in sport. . . . Our staf includes Noble Kizer, Dick Hanley, and Jimmy Crowley of the 1934 All-Star coaching board, and Frank Thomas, Charles Bachman, Dr. C. W. Spears and Slip Madigan, who handled the 1935 all-Americans. . . . Hazen Cuyler's middle name is Shirley. . . . The Detroit Lions will play their 1936 games at Navin field, home of the Tigers, instead of University of Detroit stadium, which is seven miles from downtown Detroit. . . .

Bob Woodworth, Purdue's athletic publicity director, thinks there is a conspiracy afoot to keep him away from his team's games. . . . He attempted to walk through the gate at Dyche stadium last fall with Coach Kizer when Purdue played Northwestern. . . . The gateman opened the way for Kizer but refused to pass Woodworth. . . . Ted Payseur, Northwestern's new ticket manager, rushed up to explain to the attendant that Woodworth was an official of the Purdue staf, but his efforts were in vain, for the gateman wasn't able to identify Payseur. . . . At the recent Purdue-Butler basketball game in Indianapolis Woodworth again was stopped at the gate and had to purchase four tickets for his party. . . . Tony Hinkle, Butler coach, refunded the $3.75 admission charge to Woodworth when he attended the Purdue-Notre Dame game at Lafayette Monday night. . . .

Two hundred pari-mutuel machines are in operation at Santa Anita. . . . There were 138 last year. . . . Howard Jones, probably the most conservative coach in football, who seldom or never says anything good or bad about his associates, surprised Los Angeles newspaper correspondents on the way home from the Notre Dame-Southern California game by remarking: "I like that fellow Layden." . . .

Ten Years Ago Today—The West All-Stars defeated the East All-Stars, 6 to 0, in the annual charity game on the coast. . . . It was rumored that Bill Ingram, Indiana football coach, was going to the Navy. . . .

PREP QUINTETS START MIDWAY TOURNEY TODAY

32 Teams to Battle for Championship.

Tourney Schedule

1 p. m.—Amundsen vs. Austin.
2 p. m.—Old Phillips vs. Englewood.
3 p. m.—Parker vs. Farragut.
4 p. m.—Sullivan vs. Marshall.
5 p. m.—Lakeview vs. Kalvyn Park.
7 p. m.—Hirsch vs. New Phillips.
8 p. m.—Senn vs. Foreman.
9 p. m.—Fenger vs. Lindblom.

The annual holiday basketball derby for Chicago's prep teams will begin at 1 p. m. today at the University of Chicago field house. All but four of the 36 schools in the city league have been given places in the bracket of the sixth annual tournament. Sixteen teams will square off today in the first round, and sixteen more will complete an initial round tomorrow. Each school is permitted to draw upon both heavy and lightweight squad material for its tourney team.

Amundsen and Austin will lead off in today's eight hours of play. From 1 p. m. until 10 p. m. the air at the midway fieldhouse will be filled with basketballs, with the exception of an hour's respite for dinner from 6 to 7. Shortened quarters permit starting fresh games every hour on the hour.

Sections Well Represented.

Pairings have been made so that it is possible that the semi-finals may bring together representatives of each of the sections of the city league, north, west, central, and south. Each section is well represented in today's matches. Because of the inclusion of lightweight players predictions on the basis of records to date are uncertain, but Austin and Marshall in today's bracket and Lane, Hyde Park, and Roosevelt in tomorrow's are among those favored to survive the early rounds.

Second round matches will be played Saturday afternoon and evening, quarter-finals Monday, semi-finals Tuesday, New Year's eve, and finals Wednesday, New Year's day.

Officials Are Named.

Tomorrow's games:

1 p. m.—Waller vs. Crane.
2 p. m.—Calumet vs. Kelly.
3 p. m.—Von Steuben vs. Tilden.
4 p. m.—Hyde Park vs. McKinley.
5 p. m.—Lane vs. Wells.
7 p. m.—Morgan Park vs. Tuley.
8 p. m.—Roosevelt vs. Manley.
9 p. m.—Bowen vs. Steinmetz.

ETTORE DEFEATS SMITH EASILY AT TEN ROUNDS

Ettore, won about as he pleased and was the aggressor from the start to finish.

Ettore, who scaled 191, giving away 19 pounds to his opponent, was ahead in every round except the ninth, and even in that frame he stayed even. Six thousand fans turned out for the holiday card.

THIRD PERIOD.

No scoring.
Penalties—Morenz [charging]. Stops—Smith, 12; Karakas, 18.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Chicago Blackhawks, behind a stout defense which withstood a furious third period attack, defeated the Detroit Red Wings, 2 to 0, here tonight in a National Hocky league game before 7,200.

Both of the goals came in the second period. The first, by Howie Morenz, was a break for the Hawks, the puck hitting Larry Aurie's skate and sliding into the Detroit cage before Goalie Smith could see the play.

The second Hawk counter was a pretty solo dash by Johnny Gottselig, with teammate Cook in the penalty box. Gottselig raced down, got around Howe, pulled Smith out, and slid the puck home as he crashed into the boards.

Use Five Man Attack.

Detroit used a four and five man attack throughout the third period, but the Hawk defense, led by Goalie Mike Karakas, was too good.

The first five minutes found the Red Wings and Hawks playing a close checking game which kept action between the lines for the most part. Chicago let the Wings do most of the attacking, with little success. Then Art Coulter roughed Howe near the Wing net and was penalized. Five Wings went down the ice but Karakas and the rest of the Hawks defense stopped them.

Morenz Pass Intercepted.

Morenz showed a great burst of speed to get around right wing, but his pass out was intercepted by Bruneteau, who raced down and drove a hard shot off Karakas' pads. Gottselig rattled a drive off Smith's stick and a second later Morenz and Bowman, engaging in a little checking argument behind the Detroit net, were penalized for high sticks. The bell sounded seconds after they entered the box.

Smith Makes Great Stop.

Donie McFadyen, on a pass from Coulter, made Smith make a great stop to save on his drive from the penalty shot circle, the Wing goalie just reaching the puck with his skate. Then Howe tripped Wiebe and was sent off. Only McFadyen and Morenz got shots before Howe was back, and almost at the instant the Red Wing jumped back on the ice the Hawks had a goal.

In a scramble for the puck around the Wing net Morenz slapped at the rubber. It caromed off Aurie's skate and slid into the Wing net before Smith saw the play. The goal came at 10:55.

Play became rougher. Lewis, March, Gottselig, and Goodfellow were sent spinning in rapid succession. After several Wing drives had been smashed at the line, Lewis was tripped by Cook, who was penalized. Karakas then gave a great exhibition by stopping hard shots by Goodfellow, Barry, and Lewis.

Gottselig Gets Goal.

A second later, with Cook still off the ice, Chicago got another goal. Gottselig took the puck at his own blue line and went down behind Howe, who evidently thought Johnnie had little chance to get by him. The Chicago player then raced around the Red Wings and in on Smith, who was beaten cleanly at 17:50.

The Wings opened the third period evidently determined to get back into the game, using four-man drives repeatedly. Sorrell twice lost goals on great stops by Karakas before Gottselig broke loose and got in on Smith, who contributed a great save.

Time after time the Hawks shot the puck down the ice to stop Detroit rushes as the crowd howled its disapproval. Then, with only Bowman to beat, Thompson broke away and only a great stop by Smith saved Detroit from going farther behind.

DEAN IS TOO BIG FOR O'MAHONEY, SOME FANS SAY

Question to Be Settled at Stadium Tomorrow.

Wrestling fans hold that Man Mountain Dean, 317 pound globe trotter, is too strong for Champion Dan O'Mahoney, 218. For that reason they predict Dean may hand the champion his first defeat in a year in their main event at Chicago Stadium tomorrow.

To the uninitiated, Dean appeared unbeatable in three previous appearances here, all of which he won. It took him only 2 minutes and 39 seconds to beat Floyd Marshall, 237 pounds, in his Chicago debut at the Stadium Oct. 21. His second encounter against Bill Beth, 240, at the Coliseum Nov. 11 didn't last much longer. Beth was pinned in 3 minutes, 37 seconds. Hans Steinke, 245, was the Man Mountain's third victim in a windup at the Stadium Dec. 9. The time was 15:41, but Dean's superiority was obvious throughout.

Fans Are Unimpressed.

On the other hand O'Mahoney has failed to impress fans with his skill, which is unusual inasmuch as he won all his starts here. Dan defeated Gino Garibaldi in his first local appearance, at the Coliseum, before he dethroned Jim Londos at Boston last June. Included among other victims here are Joe Savoldi, Chief Little Wolf, and George Zaharias.

Still there are folks who are pessimistic over O'Mahoney's ability to beat Dean. These partisans point to the Man Mountain's and the champion's bouts against Floyd Marshall and Ernie Dusek as a means of showing the former's apparent superiority. O'Mahoney failed to defeat Marshall at Worcester, Mass., July 19 as quickly as it took Dean to accomplish the trick. The record also shows that Dusek wrestled the champion to a draw last month whereas the Man Mountain beat Ernie in less than six minutes at St. Louis Dec. 5.

Outmaneuvered by Lewis.

O'Mahoney adherents counter with Dean's ill luck in a bout against Strangler Lewis at St. Louis Dec. 19. Lewis won when he maneuvered his rival near the ropes and pushed him out of the ring for the count after only a few minutes. The referee gave the decision to Dean on a foul, but it was reversed by a member of the Missouri commission. Irish Dan whipped Lewis twice, the first time in 1 minute and 4 seconds at Boston Oct. 12 and the second at Montreal Dec. 9.

And so the controversy continues, putting mat followers in such a state of uncertainty that a crowd of 8,000 is expected to attend. Ticket Manager Billy Burke expects an assemblage of this size to gross $15,000. Supporting matches have been arranged as follows:

Pete Mehringer vs. Orville Brown.
Hans Steinke vs. Lou Plummer.
Pat Murphy vs. Andy Rascher.
Bobby Bruns vs. Big Bill Beth.

Everett Rightmire, Sioux City, Ia., and Winfrid Mullins, Vincennes, Ind., continued training yesterday in preparation for their featherweight elimination contest at Marigold Gardens Monday despite the Christmas holiday. Mullins appears stronger and more rugged for the bout, the first at twelve rounds in Illinois since boxing became legal in 1926, but Everett holds an advantage. Whereas Winfrid never has fought more than ten rounds, Rightmire twice has engaged in battles at 15 rounds. He scored a victory over Frank Wolfram at Sioux City Aug. 19 in his first effort at this distance. In the other he beat Frankie Genaro at Sioux City Oct. 16. Everett weighed 124½ pounds for the first and 126, the stipulated weight for Monday's scrap for the second. F. M.

Louis Has Merry Christmas Just Counting Money

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 25.—(AP)—"How to get rich in the boxing business," the unwritten story of Joe Louis' rise to wealth with a pair of lether boxing gloves, would be among the best sellers of 1936 if the former Golden Gloves champion should suddenly turn author.

Statisticians here quit counting Louis' unbroken string of ring victories to check up on the wealth he has accumulated in the 18 months of his professional career, and their calculations indicate that the heavyweight sensation has collected $371,645 for 26 ring appearances.

Louis started out as a $50 preliminary fighter in Chicago on July 4, 1934, after winning the light heavyweight championship in the Chicago Tribune's Golden Gloves tournament. That first $50 was given him for knocking out Jack Kracken. His second fight brought him $60 and the promoters paid him $75 for his third.

Quick knockouts, plus the ring cunning he displayed in his early engagements, brought him increasing prominence and increasing purses, and in November, 1934, he jumped into the $300 class for knocking out Stanley Poreda at Chicago.

That was the tip-off that Louis was coming up through the heavyweights with a rush, and two weeks after the Poreda scrap he received $1,000 for beating Charley Massere.

Louis' purses began increasing by $2,000 and $3,000 after his first fight with Lee Ramage in Chicago, and then suddenly jumped to $44,000 for his knockout victory over Primo Carnera in New York.

The brown bomber hit the top of his 1935 earnings when he took $215,378 out of the Max Baer fight in New York, the bout that brought back the golden days of the Rickard-Dempsey era.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—POOR SERVICE ON THIS LINER

225 to Race in C. Y. O. Ice Derby Sunday

Receipt of entries from the Northwest Skating club, the Norwegian-American Skating club, the Olympic Skating club and Tilden Tech High school during the last few days has increased the number of entries in the first annual C. Y. O. Skating Derby to more than 225, Pete Miller, director of the Derby, announced yesterday.

The C. Y. O. Skating Derby will be run off Sunday afternoon in Garfield park, the first event scheduled to get under way at 1:30 o'clock. The program calls for 19 events.

Northwest Names 41.

The largest club representation entered in the meet to date besides the 50 C. Y. O. entrants is from the Northwest Skating club, which will have 41 contestants vying for team honors against the representatives from the Norwegian-American Skating club, the Olympic Skating club, the Sleipner Athletic club, the T. J. Bowler A. C., a representation from Tilden Tech and other representations from amateur organizations and clubs in the metropolitan area.

The Norwegian-American club has entered 20 entrants to date, Tilden Tech has also entered 20, the Olympic club 13 and the C. Y. O. Skating club 50. Entry blanks from the others are expected to reach the C. Y. O. Derby headquarters, 31 East Congress street, within the next few days. According to information released yesterday from the Catholic Youth organization athletic office, post entries will be accepted. A small charge of twenty-five cents is made with each entry.

Freisinger to Skate.

A special exhibition by Leo Freisinger, 19 year old Chicago boy who earned a berth on the United States Olympic team two weeks ago in special trials held at Minneapolis, will feature the C. Y. O. Skating Derby Sunday. Freisinger, who is captain of the C. Y. O. team, will endeavor to shatter existing records in the 500 and 1,500 meter events. Immediately after his demonstration Sunday afternoon, Freisinger will board a plane for New York, whence he is to sail for Germany to skate in the Winter Olympics.

STEVENSON RIDES TWO WINNERS; 196 FOR YEAR

New Orleans, La., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Apprentice Jocky Charley Stevenson boosted his total of winners for 1935 to 196 today when he rode Catwalk in the third race and Oican in the sixth to victory at the Fair Grounds.

Stevenson failed to increase his lead over Wayne Wright, his leading rival for national honors. Wright, who was up on two winners today at Tropical Park, remained seven behind.

Astride Miss A. Marlman's Oican, a 3 year old dark brown gelding, Stevenson won the featured $1,500 handicap for all ages at one mile and 70 yards. The much improved plater came from nowhere to win by a length in the stretch drive over Mrs. J. R. Gregory's Thomasville. S. J. Molay's Fire Advance was third.

EXPECT 35 CARS IN MIDGET AUTO RACES SUNDAY

One of the most important cards of the current indoor auto racing season at the 124th Field Artillery armory, Cottage Grove avenue and 52d street, has been announced for next Sunday night. Thorne Donnelley, president of the Chicago Auto Racing association, sponsor of the weekly meets, has listed substantial purses for two feature events and entries to date indicating that more than 35 cars will be seen in action in the eleven contests on the program.

Chicago drivers include Chuck Niesel, Jimmy Snyder, Wally Zale, Emil Andres, Ted Tetterton, Shorty Sorenson, Harry Lewis, Ray Richards, Carl Peterson, Johnny Baldwin, and Pete Romcevich. Milwaukee will be represented by Tony Willaman, Johnny Sawyer, and Frank Brisko.

JOHNNY M.	113	11	11	11ns	11	11	11	S.Coulie	260.40-1

Time, 1:04 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Capt. Cal, $12.60 straight, $7.00 place, $8.90 show; Sandy Boot, $6.40 place, $8.70 show; Bellum, $3.30 show. Winner, b. c., 3 by Cavalrius-Lady Capulet. Owner, Tranquility Farm. Trainer, C. Irby. Start poor; won easily; place driving.

CAPT. CAL broke running, was sent to the front with a rush, and, displaying good speed, drew away around the turn and held on well. SANDY BOOT, well up, made a game effort. BELLUM, a bit slow in breaking, was sent up on inside, and was taken to outside turning out of back stretch, went wide in stretch, and finished very fast. WAR GAMES came from far back. GAY DOG ran good race. DOUBLE FINESSE broke slow.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Three years old and up. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $40; fourth, $10.

STEPBROTHER	111	1	8	8	8	8	8	E.Porter	91.35-1

Time, 1:11 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Feudal Lord, $10.80 straight, $4.20 place, $3.00 show; Portden, $3.80 place, $3.10 show; Granny's Trade, $4.70 show. Winner, br. c., 5 by Stefan the Great-Dustwhirl. Owner, J. E. Smallman. Trainer, G. Alexandra. Start bad; won driving; place same.

FEUDAL LORD was lucky at the start and hustled along, was taken to the outside in stretch, closed gamely, and just lasted to win. PORTDEN broke fast but dropped back. He made up ground and would have won but for the stride. GRANNY'S TRADE was a stout contender all the way and ra a good race. LORD TOURNAMENT set a very fast pace, but tired suddenly in last sixteenth. MOANE KEALA was well up all the way. KAWAGOE was practically left and had no chance. STEPBROTHER just galloped along back of the field.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Three year olds and up. Purse $500. Net value to winner, $375; second, $75; third, $40; fourth, $10.

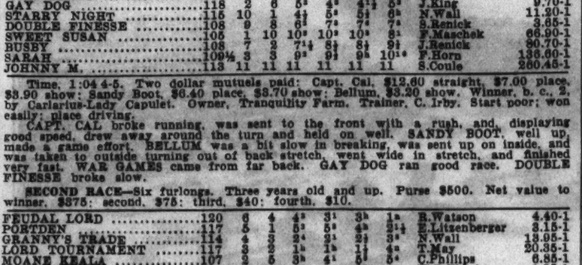
BHAD	107	3	7	7½	8	8	8	J.Dunbar	8.40-1

Time, 1:39 3-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: James Boy, $27.60 straight, $12.80 place, $4.90 show; Muslet, $4.40 place, $3.00 show; Pass Shot, $2.90 show. Winner, b. c., 4, by St. James-Daughter of Zeus. Owner, G. L. Hamilton. Trainer, G. L. Hamilton. Start good; won easily; place driving.

JAMES BOY, showing remarkable improvement over his recent race, was kept well up to far turn, where he began to close ground and, taken to the outside, came around field, took lead, and won nicely in hand. MUSLET got away well, but dropped back, rated along to the stretch, and closed gamely. PASS SHOT was allowed to drop too far out of it in early part, but he finished with a good burst of speed. URBAINE moved into lead middle of the turn, but faltered badly in final furlong. BLACK WATCH had plenty of speed, but stopped to a walk in final quarter mile. PARITY ran well for six furlongs.



Hymn (nearest rail) takes the lead in fourth race stretch and goes on to win. Irish Play (nearest camera) finished third when Muscle In, whose jocky is visible above Irish Play's neck, came up from behind to take second.

Time, 1:40. Two dollar mutuels paid: Hymn, $35.80 straight, $14.60 place, $8.80 show; Muscle In, $6.50 place, $4.50 show; Irish Play, $6.00 show. Winner, b. h., 2, by Royal Minstrel-Resplendant. Owner, Starmount Stable. Trainer, M. F. Milburn. Start good; won driving; place same.

HYMN, outrun for the first half mile, was sent up on the outside going into far turn, circled field, and won going away. MUSCLE IN, on the inside and in the deep going, took lead entering stretch, but tired. IRISH PLAY was taken the overland route for the entire trip. BOMBASTIC closed a big gap. CICARY had speed for seven furlongs, then quit.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. All ages. Purse $1,500, added. Christmas handicap. Net value to winner, $1,100; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50.

BASKET COACHES NOW RATE SPEED AS BEST ASSET

Teams No Longer Depend on Tall Players.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Basketball has undergone a change almost as complete as when a butterfly emerges from the cocoon. This modern basketball, which began its metamorphosis when the first restriction was levied on the soc-called pivot play, and when the offense was ordered to advance to mid-floor in ten seconds, now has reacted to new restrictions on the pivot play so that it accents speed.

Height still is important for recovery of the ball from the backboard. It is important, perhaps, to secure possession at the center jumps although these have been reduced nearly one half. But speed, being most important, the tall, gangling, center, unless he be agile, is relegated to the bench.

Speed Brings Opportunity.

Under present rules, speed will offer scoring opportunities. Quick breaks, wild rushes, and ability to outrun the defense will yield more chances under the back board than a deliberate attack which occasionally breaks through. That is, speed will score if the men can handle a basketball while moving at top speed.

Sometimes a player moves so fast he loses control of the ball while passing, dribbling or receiving a pass. He must slow up to be accurate. Others lack ability to score when shooting off balance. But very obviously, the player who can shoot from any position, and can control the ball while racing down court at his fastest gait, will be more valuable than the player who must slow up to dribble, or stop to shoot accurately.

Substitutes Are Important.

Forty minutes of fast basketball also has made the substitutes more important. The faster the game, the more opportunities for fouls and four personal fouls still disqualify for further competition. In every game we have seen this year, there have been at least two or more players disqualified for fouling.

There are two other factors that are of ranking importance in basketball. Occasionally these offset natural advantages and in the main they account for the inability of any basketball team to go through a season undefeated.

After speed, or well planned plays has furnished a scoring opportunity, there is no assurance that a field goal will result. One evening, a player may hit consistently, even get as many as five out of every ten medium distance shots. And on another evening, the same man, shooting from the same relative positions, will not get a point.

Shooting Is Inconsistent.

This is true of shooting penalty shots. One night a player is "hot." Another evenig he can't score. Bob Kessler, of Purdue, for instance, was second high scorer in the Western conference last year. He will, over a given period, get his average of shots. But despite his excellent play against Notre Dame Monday night, Kessler missed five of six attempts from the free throw line. He was just out of luck, as basketball players say.

The other factor is officiating. Basketball is unique in that the officials award points [at least the try for point] and may take points away [no goal if the player violates the rule on traveling; steps over the restraining line while shooting a free throw]. Now we do not mean that the officials deliberately alter the decisions from time to time. But it is true, that no official can call all fouls. The game would become a free throwing contest if he did. Consequently, there always is a variance even when the same men are working the game. The difference in a "closely called" game and a "loose game" may directly affect the result.

Home Court Important.

Now if you wish to add still another factor, consider the value of the home court. It may be psychological, but at any rate the players in the Big Ten will be glad to tell you that Illinois is always is most difficult to whip in its home court. The home court is a factor and perhaps this accounts for a series of games being divided when the teams are fairly evenly matched.

Comparative scores mean less in basketball than in football. The season has just started and already there are contradictory results. For instance, Northwestern defeated Pittsburgh; Pitt defeated Butler; Butler defeated Purdue; Purdue defeated Notre Dame, and Notre Dame defeated Northwestern. You can pick out these round robins by the score in another month.

Coach's Job Is Hard.

It is no wonder, then, that basketball coaches get grey haired. Their job defies comparison with that of a football coach. Their teams play 20 or more games, and no matter how good the material or how well coached, no game can be considered won until the last shot has been taken.

JUNIOR AND BOYS TENNIS TOURNEYS WILL OPEN TODAY

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Play in the national junior and boys' singles tennis tournament will start tomorrow on the board courts of the Seventh Regiment armory here. Both tournaments will end New Year's day.

Donald Leavens of Northwestern university is the top-seeded player in the junior tournament. He received a first round bye, and in the second round will be opposed by William Cullen Fay of New York.

The top-seeded performer in the boys' division is Isadore Bellis of Central High school, Philadelphia. His first round opposition will be furnished by Jack Townsend of the Lawrenceville, N. J., school.

Purdue and California to Meet Tonight

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—Purdue's basketball squad will make its last home appearance in nearly three weeks here tomorrow night when it tackles California's Golden Bears.

The Boilermakers will head eastward immediately after the game to meet New York university in Madison Square Garden on Saturday night and Temple at Philadelphia Monday. They will not be at home again until they open the local Big Ten season against Michigan on Jan. 13.

Tomorrow's clash will provide the first opportunity for local fans to contrast the Pacific coast brand of basketball with the Big Ten brand, and the Bears are admittedly representative of the best that the Pacific coast produces, for in the past eleven years they have won five championships, one southern division title, and one tie for the division title.

Once again the Boilermakers will be pitting the speed of their attack against superior height, for the Californians will take the floor with a starting quintet that will average six feet two inches in height.

Development of a defense continues to provide the biggest problem for Cach Ward Lambert in rebuilding the Big Ten co-title defenders, for the lack of height of the squad as a whole has made it difficult to retain control of the ball against rangier foes.

13,000 See Rangers Beat Bruins, 3 to 2

Boston, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The veteran Bill Cook set the pace for the New York Rangers as they came from behind to gain their second triumph in four days over the Boston Bruins, 3 to 2, tonight before 13,000 at the Boston Garden.

Three goals in about 16 minutes of third period play accounted for the New York victory; Bill Cook slammed in a pair of tallies and Lynn Patrick, speedy son of the Ranger's manager, clinched the game with a brilliant solo rush.

The Bruins scored in the first period, Charlie Sands driving a long shot that bounced off Goalie Dave Kerr's pads and dropped into the net to end a lively scrimmage in the visitors zone. The second Boston tally was made during the last three minutes of play when the Bruins put on a gallant closing drive. Bill Cowley and Eddie Shore handled the puck before it was poked through the Ranger's defense to Peggy O'Neil, who found a large opening for his closeup shot.

LYMAN SIGNS 19 TO PLAY LIONS AT DENVER ON JAN. 1

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Roy [Link] Lyman, assistant varsity football coach at the University of Nebraska and former Chicago Bears player, announced tonight 19 players, including himself, have signed to play with his all-star team against the Detroit Lions at Denver New Year's day.

Lyman said practices will begin at Denver Saturday morning and the players will work out twice daily until they meet the Detroit team, champions of the National Professional league, on Jan. 1.

The Nebraska coach, who played pro football for more than 10 years, said Don Hutson of the Green Bay Packers probably would play with his team, although he has not signed a contract yet.

Lyman said his team included:

ENDS—Steve Hokuf, Boston Red Skins; Jim Mooney, Chicago Cardinals; Robinson, ex-Utah, and Hutson.

GUARDS—Ray Richards, Chicago Bears; Forrest McPherson, Philadelphia Eagles; Dan McMullen, Memphis; Croft, Brooklyn Dodgers.

CENTERS—Pete Rausch, Boston Red Skins; McDonald, Brooklyn Dodgers.

FULL BACK—George Henry Sauer, Green Bay Packers.

UNTRIMMING THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

I think the whole year's saddest chore
Is untrimming the Christmas tree,
Taking down with a furtive sigh
What went up with such hope and glee.
The little toy horns and the bright gay balls
And the reindeer of silvery glass,
Are all tucked away and forgotten
Till another year shall pass.

It's sad to me because, I think,
That life is much that way—
The hopes and dreams so gayly born
Oft make so brief a stay.
And then they, too, like the Christmas toys,
Are tearfully packed away—
With the hope we'll be able to dust them off
Once more on a brighter day.

Here and There.

Visit of the University of California team to Champaign next Monday night will be the first for the Golden Bear basketball players. Berkeley track and baseball squads have been there before, the track team winning a dual meet in 1895, 55 to 43, and the baseball nine a 9-5 contest in 1920.

Summary of that track meet shows a 1 mile bicycle race on the program. Also the pole vault was won by N. C. Coffeen of Illinois at 10 feet, a new Illinois record. Bob Edgren of California, now a noted sports writer, won the hammer throw at 123 feet, within 9½ inches of the then world record.

Lee Ramage, whom Joe Louis knocked out in two rounds last winter in Los Angeles after disposing of him in 8 rounds in Chicago, recently drove from San Diego to Los Angeles to query sports writers whether they thought he should engage in "just one or two more fights," emerging from retirement following the Louis reverses. Ramage said he was receiving attractive offers from promoters.

Critic Paul Zimmerman asked Lee how much money he and his brother made the previous month in their grocery business. "About $1,500," replied Ramage. "Better stick to it then," advised Paul. "You may handle cauliflower in your grocery line, but you won't get cauliflower ears."

Beldame, the great Octagon filly which August Belmont sold to Newton Bennington as a 2 year old, established a great record in stakes for her sex in 1904. Beldame was a mean tempered miss and would have nothing to do with any one. According to stories told at the time, however, she took a fancy to a white rabbit and lavished her affections on bunny. When bunny was around she could be approached with moderate safety.

Coaches Take Up Problem of Athletes, Pay

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—College athletics in general and football in particular will command the attention of 500 coaches and sports leaders from all parts of the country here in a three day meeting starting tomorrow.

Official groups which will be in session include the National Collegiate Athletic association, the Football Coaches association, the Track Coaches association, Physical Education and Student Health associations, and the Sportsmanship brotherhood.

The general welfare of the college athlete will come in for a major share of discussion. One of the principal topics will be an appraisal of the new deal proposed by the Southeastern conference, which includes thirteen of the oldest and biggest colleges in the deep south.

Expect Sharp Criticism.

This group already has adopted a system whereby athletes will receive financial or scholarship assistance openly and above board on the same basis as any other student. This step, a drastic advance in an attempt to deal with a situation in which the facts are well known but rarely admitted, is certain to meet with sharp criticism.

The Southeastern associations plan will come up for discussion at a round table which will be conducted by Dean E. L. Mercer of the University of Pennsylvania. The question of subsidization and recruiting was gone into thoroughly at last year's sessions which produced a "nine point" program branding as "unjustifiable" any monetary subsidies for athletes.

Want Posts Back on Line.

Football rules and regulations will be taken up by coaches of the sport. Agitation already has been started to bring goal posts back to the goal line chiefly with a view to stimulate the apparently lost art of field goal kicking and to give these artists the same opportunity that kickers have in professional football.

Dan McGugin, who spent 30 years coaching at Vanderbilt, is coming up from the south with a three point proposal. He would [1] set a standard penalty for interference with pass receivers rather than give the ball to the offensive team where the interference occurred; [2] provide a penalty for roughing the passer just as the kicker is protected by a penalty; [3] reduce the penalty on the offensive team when a pass strikes an ineligible receiver.

"I'd say a 15 yard penalty for pass interference would be sufficient," McGugin said. "The interference rule as it now stands puts the outcome of the game too much in the hands of the officials."

The spectator, mainly the football variety, will come in for a share of the discussion. The Sportsmanship brotherhood will discuss this phase of sports at a luncheon tomorrow.

Danowski Tops Pro League in Passing Skill

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Green Bay, New York and Cardinal players held the leading positions in the forward passing statistics for the season of 1935 released yesterday by the National Professional Football league.

Ed Danowski, the Giants' all-around quarter back, led in passess attempted and completed, with Arnie Herber, of Green Bay, second, and Bob Monnett of the Packers, and Phil Sarboe of the Cardinals tied for third in completions.

Receivers were led by Tod Goodwin, the Giants' freshmen end, with Johnny Blood, veteran Green Bay half back, second, and Bill Smith, the Cardinals' star end, third.

Six men had perfect passing records, each throwing one pass and completing it. They were Johnny Sisk of the Bears, Hanson of Philadelphia, Bruder of Green Bay, Cook of the Cardinals, and Lackman of Philadelphia.

Danowski threw 113 passes, two less than Herber attempted, to lead the league in 1934, and completed 57 of them for an average of .504. His 57 completions netted 759 yards, or an average of 13.9 yards.

Herber had a better average gain, netting 18.2 yards per completion.

WALKER, TIGER FIELDER, GETS OUT OF HOSPITAL

Hattiesburg, Miss., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Gerald Walker, outfielder for the world's champion Detroit Tigers who was injured in an automobile crash near here Friday night, was reported "considerably improved" today.

His injuries, physicians said, were not of a permanent nature. He suffered a deep gash on the lower part of his face, slight contusions of the chest and leg and arm bruises.

The accident happened, Walker said, when he was blinded by the lights of a parked car on the highway three miles from Hattiesburg. Walker was accompanied by Pooley Hubert, head coach at State Teachers college here, and Mrs. Hubert. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hubert were painfully but not critically injured.

FASHIONS FOR MEN ONLY

If you would like information about modes for men, especially about articles described in this column, write to the Men's Fashion department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Illinois. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your letter.

COMPLIMENT TO THE LADIES

WHETHER it be a function or a frolic, women step out for the evening bedecked and bejeweled, befitting the formality of the occasion. Men pay them the compliment of dressing in clothes reserved for their company. Ever since the girls relinquished the idea that abbreviated skirts enhanced their allure, and turned to more classic lines, men have felt the urge, growing stronger every year, to return to the equally classic tailcoat as a more fitting companion to feminine formality. Even in communities in which tuxedos are worn in lieu of tailcoats, there are indications that another season will find tails meeting with more favor.

Even those who favor more than a usual nonchalance in their clothes for daily wear must capitulate and wear their tails in the well tailored and fitted manner. The tails, irrespective of whether one is tall or short or has a bit of surplus around the waist, should strike just below the bend of the knee. The double stripes of silk on the trouser leg are the mark of the correct tailcoat trouser. A wine colored carnation may be worn for all except the most formal functions, and the breast pocket has been eliminated on the tailcoat. The preferred shirt is open front with two studs, or the one stud is acceptable. Tailcoats and dinner jackets of midnight blue fabric will appear intense black under artificial lighting.

PERMANENT PEAKS

in detail to the tailcoat, is permanently fashionable for those who wear dinner jackets in lieu of tailcoats. A vest of black ribbed silk is recommended in the model shown, or it may be of the same fabric as the suit or, if you prefer, of white pique to match the shirt.

DOUBLES HAVE IT

acceptable for all evening overcoat purposes. The double-breasted shawl collar dinner jacket is an excellent choice for those who use their evening clothes for less formal activities.

THE TOPS

is tops for all formal evening wear. With the tuxedo, you may elect to use a black or midnight blue Homburg. Your derby should be reserved for daytime purposes. White string knit gloves are correct and practical, and easy to keep immaculate—as they wash like a handkerchief.

The most distinguished coat for evening wear is an Inverness cape. The modern conception is made in the manner of a military collar, raglan shouldered topcoat with a silk lining that shows a bit of its luxury when the top button is left open. Inside, a couple of straps are placed so that you may throw this coat over your shoulders for a short jump from one night club to another.

SPECIAL GARB IMPORTANT FOR SOUTHERN TOUR

Odd Sport Jacket Held One Needed Item.

BY HARRISON HOWARD.

Where shall it be this winter—Bermuda, Florida, California, or a general cruise?

There was a time when such a question applied only to a limited number. The last few winters, however, have seen more and more persons going away for winter vacations. Many have switched from summer vacations, feeling they were more in need of sunshine and rest during the gruelling cold weather. Executives and others who are their own bosses are fast recognizing the value to themselves and important employés of two rest periods a year, and still others shift activities to the southland, where living costs are less.

In any event, there are certain articles of wearing apparel which are needed for a southern trip. Those fundamentals can form the base as well as some of the extras for warm, sunny weather activities, both socially and in sports.

Odd Sport Jacket Liked.

Chief among them, for informal wear, is the odd sport jacket, usually in brown or gray, depending upon one's own liking or coloring, and in any of the small check or herringbone designs and patterns. There is a big turn to plain models in odd coats without either belt or plaits, although both types are acceptable.

Second in importance is a pair or several pair, if possible, of white flannel slacks. Together, the odd coat and flannel trousers, plus a few essentials in accessories, can see one through any number of social occasions, sports spectators, and even sports activities themselves, such as golf and tennis. It may be that the odd jacket in standard blue is preferred which, with the flannel slacks, is suitable also for many evening parties.

An appropriate suit that will fill in well with the above outfit is the gabardine, once the choice of a few northerners, now popular for southern wear in nearly all quarters. Conservative men prefer it in a plain model. Others do not feel "swanky" unless it has the half belt and plaits.

An all around type of shoe for winter resort wear and which matches well either of the above outfits is the brown buckskin in nearly any of the popular models, including the regular brogue design, plain, or monk front buckle and strap, which some like because of the ease and simplicity in fastening and the freedom from laces.

Loose Scarfs Are Worn.

In marked evidence in accessories is the fancy scarf twisted in loose folds or ascot tied in place of the regular neckties. Neckwear permits a wide choice of colors, especially regimental stripes to meet and match almost every type of ensemble.

Shirts, too, especially those with collar attached, which, of course, are the big favorites, offer patterns, designs, and colors to suit every taste. Button down polo collars, wide spread duke of Kent collars, and plain tab collars in various length points share in popularity.

Lightweight wool hose, wool and lisle, silk and lisle, and plain silk or lisle socks complete the basic wardrobe, although jerseys, sport shirts, and, of course, swim suits, at least trunks, are usable, if not necessary, to most travelers.

THOS. W. LAMONT MAKES $500,000 GIFT TO HARVARD

Banker Endows Chair in Political Economy.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Harvard university received a half million dollar Christmas present today from Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co., to establish a new chair in political economy.

The 65 year old banker, a Harvard graduate and former overseer of the college, gave the money for one of a series of new university professorships toward which alumni are being asked to contribute in recognition of Harvard's 300th anniversary next year.

Lamont's gift and others will establish interdepartmental "roving" professorships of a new type, and create large annual national prize scholarships.

Hopes for Great Scholar.

The banker, who is a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said "it would be a great satisfaction if the [Harvard] corporation were able to call to this chair a scholar preëminent in the field of political economy."

He stipulated that there was no restriction whatsoever to his gift, but since the university ordinarily follows a donor's suggestions in such matters, it appeared likely the $500,000 would be used for a professorship in political economy.

Wants Whole Scope Covered.

Explaining his views on that study, Lamont said:

"This vital subject has to do, I take it, with the fundamental principles which govern human affairs, as they concern the state and as they concern individuals. Political economy concerns itself as much with the behavior of man as a social animal as it does with any known laws of industry and trade and agriculture and finance.

"And when I speak of fundamental principles I do not mean old principles or new ones, nor conservative principles any more than radical principles, but rather those principles which take into account the experiences of the past and are at the same time alive to the needs and aspirations of the present."

LEONE CAETANI, ITALIAN DUKE OF SERMONETA, DIES

VANCOUVER, B. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Leone Caetani, duke of Sermoneta, a member of high Italian nobility, died today. Born in Rome in 1869, he was the eldest of five brothers. He became the head of the old Roman house, whose history dates back more than 1,200 years, on the death of his father, the 15th duke, in 1917. Among other notables the family has had two popes, Boniface VIII. and Gelasius II.

The duke wrote the Annali Dell' Islam, a history of Islam in many volumes. He was made a member of the oldest Italian academy. He was a prominent Socialist in the Italian parliament.

During the war the duke and his brother, Don Gelasio, engineer, and later Italian ambassador to Washington, executed the spectacular blowing up of the Col Di Lana mountain, defended by the Austrians.

The duke settled in Vernon, B. C., several years ago and became a Canadian citizen. The body, however, will be taken to Italy for burial. Sir Ronald Lindsay, British ambassador to the United States, is a first cousin of the duke.

FUNERAL SERVICE THIS MORNING FOR DR. T. J. LIDDELL

Funeral services for Dr. Tully J. Liddell, executive officer of the United States Marine hospital, will be held this morning from the hospital, 4141 Clarendon avenue. The body then will be taken to Arlington National cemetery, Washington, D. C., for burial.

Dr. Liddell died Sunday night at the hospital. He had been in the public health service 22 years. At the time of his death he had the rating of surgeon, corresponding to the rank of major in the United States army. He held the post of executive officer here for two years, coming here from New Orleans, where he was in charge of the quarantine station.

He was born in Fayette, Miss., and entered the public health service shortly after he graduated from Tulane university. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Frances Nichols Liddell, formerly of Harpers Ferry, W. Va., and five children. Three brothers also survive.

AXEL NYSTROM, RETIRED PASTOR IS DEAD AT 63

The Rev. Axel L. Nystrom, 63 years old, died yesterday in his home at 4509 Oakenwald avenue. He was a member of the Swedish Mission Covenant for 40 years and for 12 years was pastor of the Englewood Mission church. For the last few years he had been in retirement. Funeral services will be held Saturday at the Englewood Mission church. Burial will be in Oak Hill cemetery. Surviving are the widow, one son and two daughters.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Wanta Buy a Doc?

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

It was Elinor Harriot, a Duluth girl, who said "I do" when Ruby Taylor became the bride of Amos Jones in the Amos 'n' Andy broadcast last evening. Edith Davis, wife of Dr. Loyal Davis, played the part of Brother Crawford's wife. Freeman Gosden [Amos] himself took the parts of both the preacher and the bridegroom. Whether Amos' bride will continue to speak during the broadcasts has not been determined yet, Gosden explained yesterday. Nor is it settled whether Miss Harriot will continue in the part if it is written into the script regularly.

ELINOR HARRIOT.

Miss Harriot is a free lance actress appearing in W-G-N shows, including "The Couple Next Door," in which she plays the feminine lead, and on both NBC and CBS. She dates her theatrical career from the day she was called on to substitute for Dorothy Gish in the Broadway production of "The Bride the Sun Shines On." May the sun shine on Amos and his bride, Ruby!

Olga Albani abandoned her plans to go south for Christmas and flew instead to New York to attend the funeral of Sophie Braslau who was her first mentor. . . . The cigaret sponsor of "Your Hit Parade" on Saturday evening over NBC, featuring Al Goodman, is planning to move this show to CBS, and is trying to clear a Wednesday evening spot on NBC for another program with Carl Hoff's orchestra and a flock of soloists. . . . Paul Ash has landed a sponsor who will put him on the air shortly after the first of the year, time and network yet to be determined.

First guest on Paul Whiteman's new series opening Sunday, Jan 5, will be Harry Richman. . . . After all these years at CBS Fred Waring plans to move a half hour of his show to NBC middle of next month. His new schedule will be 9 p. m. Tuesdays on CBS; 8 Fridays on NBC. . . . A Leap Year's eve party will be staged by a flock of the bachelors from CBS Chicago staf at the College inn. Truman Bradley will be the master of ceremonies and Pat O'Malley, who has dodged matrimony on several continents, will give a talk on "How to Avoid Wives, At Home and Abroad."

First broadcast from Lichtenstein, small central European monarchy, will be aired via CBS at 11:45 next Sunday morning. Program will originate in Vaduz, the capital. . . . Sir Thomas Beecham, noted British conductor, will take over the podium of the New York Philharmonic symphony on Jan. 5.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper will revive their great success, "The Champ," on Saturday evening's broadcast . . . Noble Cain's three daughters, Marian, Harriet and Charlotte, will make their radio bow this morning at 10:30 on the NBC Carnival. They are singers.

3 PROMINENT SPRINGFIELD RESIDENTS DIE

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Death claimed two prominent Springfield physicians today.

Dr. Walter G. Bain, 59, pathologist at St. John's hospital and nationally known for his work in hospital laboratory, died in the hospital where for many years he contributed to the advancement of science.

Another prominent Springfield resident who died today was James R. Kincaid, 73.

A leader in the development of the coal industry in Christian county, the town of Kincaid, one of the principal mining communities in central Illinois, was named after him.

R. K. Brownlie, 86, Member of Pioneer Iowa Clan, Dies

Davenport, Ia., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—R. K. Brownlie, 86, of Long Grove, Ia., a member of the second white family to settle in that portion of Scott county in 1838, died last night at a Davenport hospital. Mr. Brownlie was a life resident of Winfield township and well known throughout the county as a grain buyer. He was a former president of the Long Grove Telephone company and the Long Grove Stockmen's Savings bank.

C. W. Colton Dies; Former Winnebago County Official

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—C. W. Colton, 75, former member of the Winnebago county board of supervisors, died at St. Anthony hospital here today. He was an elder of the Bethany Presbyterian church.

SIDNEY GORHAM'S FUNERAL TODAY IN LA GRANGE

Funeral services will be held in La Grange at 2:30 p. m. today for Sidney S. Gorham, widely known attorney and expert on municipal corporation law, who died on Monday. The services will be conducted from Emmanuel church, Kensington and Elm streets, La Grange, by Dean Irvin Goddard, the pastor. The body will be cremated in Oak Woods cemetery. The family home is at 436 South Stone avenue, La Grange.

Active pallbearers will be law partners of Mr. Gorham in the firm of Miller, Gorham, Wales & Adams. They are Ames C. Miller, Frederick O. Mason, Edward R. Adams, Robert W. Wales, Joseph C. Lamy, Robert T. Sherman, and Herbert C. De Young.

Attorney Gorham, who was 61 years old, died of a heart attack at a meeting of the board of directors of the John R. Thompson Restaurant company at 350 North Clark street. He had practiced law in Chicago for 40 years. Frequently his aid in drafting municipal legislation was requested by the city. On occasion he acted as a special assistant corporation counsel. He wrote the present Illinois state motor vehicle act, which was passed in 1919.

President Herbert M. Lautmann of the Chicago Bar association yesterday appointed a committee of 28 lawyers to represent the bar at the funeral.

RUFUS STEELE, AUTHOR, MOVIE PRODUCER, DIES

Boston, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Rufus Steele, 58, widely known author, producer of motion pictures, and a member of the editorial board of the Christian Science Monitor, died here today.

Since September, 1931, Steele had written a daily front page column for the Monitor entitled "The March of the Nations," an interpretative comment on the world's news.

Steele began his newspaper career in Redding, Cal., where he was editor of the Free Press from 1900 to 1902. He then became a reporter on the San Francisco Chronicle, was made Sunday editor in 1904, and two years later became Sunday editor of the San Francisco Call.

He wrote several plays and a number of books, including "Rule G," "Aces for Industry," and a biography of Glenn H. Curtiss, the pioneer aviator. He also wrote many articles dealing with the motion picture industry, aviation, and outdoor life, and was the producer of several films.

On America's entry into the war he became editor of the division of films of the Creel committee. In 1927 he was coach in special article writing at the University of Miami. Two years later he was appointed associate professor of English.

WEYERHAEUSER DAUGHTER, 2 SONS TO GET WEALTH

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 25.—[Special.]—The bulk of the John P. Weyerhaeuser fortune is left in trust to a daughter and two sons, according to ancillary probate proceedings on file in Rock Island county Probate court.

John P. Weyerhaeuser was outstanding in the Weyerhaeuser-Denkmann lumber and coal interests throughout the northwest and south of the United States. He died May 16 in his Tacoma, Wash., residence. His 9 year old grandson, George Weyerhaeuser, was kidnaped a week later but was returned on payment of $200,000 ransom.

The daughter and two sons who will receive the bulk of the estate, estimated at many millions, are Mrs. Elizabeth Titcomb of Tacoma and J. Philip and Frederick K. Weyerhaeuser, both of St. Paul, Minn.

CUDAHY BLAMES EARNINGS SLASH UPON NEW DEAL

Animal Shortage Causes Lowest Net in Years.

The Cudahy Packing company last night reported sharply reduced earnings for the fiscal year ended Nov. 2, 1935. Net profits amounted to only $1,211,073, which was the smallest annual return in the last decade except for 1932. After preferred requirements this was equal to $1.38 a share on the common stock compared with $2.97 a share for the previous year, when net of $1,968,262 was reported.

E. A. CUDAHY. [Blank-Stoller Photo.]

E. A. Cudahy, chairman of the board, placed the blame for the decreased earnings squarely on the live stock shortage caused by government curtailment of production and the drouth.

He dubbed the earnings somewhat disappointing, but "not at all discouraging in view of the unusual conditions under which we had to operate during the last year."

Live Stock Turnover Drops.

The increase in sales from $151,390,723 in 1934 to $180,218,129 this year was attributed entirely to higher prices. Total weight of live stock purchases was down 17 per cent. Cost of sales rose from $146,076,558 to $175,370,365.

"The earnings of the company," said Cudahy, "in great measure are dependent on a plentiful supply of live stock. Unfortunately, the devastating drouth of 1934, following the initiation of the government corn-hog adjustment program, further reduced the available supply of animals to the lowest figure in 50 years.

"The shortage in hogs particularly affected our business, for while the number killed at U. S. government inspected plants as reported by the bureau of animal industry of the department of agriculture for our fiscal year 1935 was 35 per cent under that of the preceding year, the number killed at some of our plants declined approximately 50 per cent.

Overhead Remains High.

"Our overhead expenses could not be reduced in the same ratio, nor could the expenses of our distributing branches be reduced in proportion to the curtailed supply."

"While it seems fairly certain that high live stock and meat prices will continue through the greater part of the coming year," he added in optimistic vein, "I am inclined to think that the worst is over, and that before the close of 1936 we may look for larger live stock receipts and more satisfactory markets.

"The item of United States processing tax, $3,224,618, shown on the balance sheet as a current liability, represents the amount of processing tax unpaid but fully accrued to Nov. 2, 1935.

"Recently we obtained an injunction from the federal court restraining the government from enforcing collection of processing taxes, and the above amount has been placed on deposit in Chicago banks to the order of the court.

Hopes for Court Relief.

"I am hazarding no conjecture as to what the decision of the Supreme court will be in regard to the constitutionality of processing taxes, but I am not without hope that it may be of material benefit to the company. In any event, should the decision be unfavorable, we have in our accounting fully provided for the obligation."

Reference is made in the report to refunding operations during the year as making for substantial savings in interest and further strengthening of the company's financial structure.

At the end of the previous fiscal year, long term debt included $10,602,500 in 5½ per cent debentures and $6,421,200 in 5 per cent bonds. As of Nov. 2, 1935, this included $19,825,000 3¾ per cent bonds and $4,937,500 4 per cent debentures.

Through use of additional funds obtained in issuance of the new securities, notes payable to banks and others were cut from $10,949,500 to $4,958,000 during the year.

Balance Sheet Improves.

Current assets amounted to $35,975,942 as against $35,125,366 a year ago, including $5,933,343 cash as against $5,549,012 a year ago. Current liabilities were cut materially from $15,116,993 to $10,540,973—principally because of reduction of bank loans and in spite of processing tax accruals more than double those a year ago.

Income not from operations was down, as were interest charges, the latter dropping from $1,299,708 to $1,194,774. Federal income tax provision was down from $414,000 to $80,932. Depreciation, other taxes, and bad debts increased.

Dividends on preferred and common stocks amounted to $1,747,281, which was more than net income for the year, causing reduction of earned surplus from $7,742,867 to $7,206,659. Total surplus was $8,927,073.

Makers of Machine Tools See Continued Expansion

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The National Machine Tool Builders' association, in submitting findings of a national survey, says that a $938,000,000 program of plant modernization and expansion projects initiated by American industry during the last six months "provides the most tangible assurance of continuance of the current business revival and foreshadows an era of lower prices for manufactured products." The survey is based on reports from 500 companies located in all parts of the country.

No Political Santa Claus, You'll Learn

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Santa Claus has come and gone, leaving his annual sockfuls of cheer for the kids, but the old man knows that he came through the back door, rather than the chimney, and that each apparently gratuitous present either was paid for on the line or came under the eagle eye of some credit manager and will have to be settled for out of future pay checks.

Before another Christmas comes the political "Santa Claus" will be scraping the soot out of several million chimneys all over the country. And in millions of others his presence will be demanded.

* *

The chief purpose of political spending is to get votes, and to be successful in attaining that end it is necessary to give the impression that the political gifts have no strings attached to them. As long as voters can be kept convinced that there is a Santa Claus and that it is possible to "get something for nothing," the scheme works. The minute the recipient receives a bill for the gift, the political "Santa Claus" loses his false whiskers and the vote getting powers of the system collapse.

During the last three years, according to the national industrial conference board, governments in the United States—federal, state, and local—have spent 11,000 million dollars more than they have taken in. By spending this vast sum over and above the amount of ordinary revenues, politicians have been able to give to a lot of people many of the things they have demanded.

* *

Between a quarter and a half billion dollars have been spent to help silver producers to get a higher price for the 20 million dollars' worth of silver which they mine annually in this country. Hundreds of additional millions have been given outright to certain groups of farmers as rewards for not producing the raw materials from which food and clothing are made.

Billions have been spent to build finer postoffices, although the old ones were fine enough, or to erect hydro-electric plants where existing electric production plants were not being worked to capacity. More billions have been handed out to idle workers in return for their services in plucking dead leaves from one side of the road and laying them on the other side.

* *

These handouts have, temporarily, accomplished their political purpose, because each of the recipients, although suspecting that somebody was paying the bill, figured that he was getting more out of the pot than he was putting in.

As long as the money that the federal government is spending in excess of its income is being borrowed from the banks and insurance companies, that feeling is bound to prevail. Sooner or later, however, if disastrous currency inflation is to be avoided, the government must make its income equal its outgo. When that time comes the increase in taxes and the curtailment of government handouts will disclose to the ordinary citizen the fact that he himself is paying the bill for Santa Claus' largesse.

The city housewife already has discovered that when she pays for three pork chops she gets two and the tax collector takes the third.

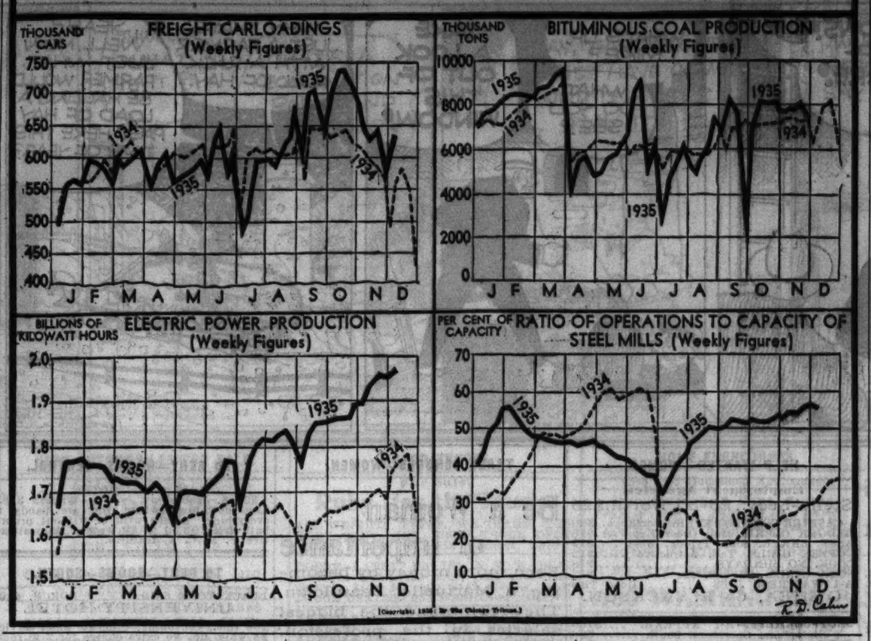
BANK ROBBERIES FEWER AS GAINS ARE WIPED OUT

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Extermination of gangsters "of the John Dillinger type and habits" has lowered bank robbery totals to the lowest level in five years, James E. Baum, deputy manager of the American Bankers association's protective committee, said today.

In a recent report the ABA figures for the fiscal year 1935 showed only 311 bank robberies with a total loot of $1,414,783, against 407 robberies and a $1,992,766 total loss for 1934. The peak year was 1932 with 631 bank robberies, of which 516 were daylight holdups.

The reduction, Baum said in an interview, was due largely to the extension of the Department of Justice's jurisdiction over robberies in FDIC banks.

Stage of Business as Reflected in 4 Leading Barometers



Foresee Rail Profit Gaining in New Year

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Railroads in the last year slowly emerged from depression lethargy and high officials looking into the new year foresee continuation of the recovery process.

In the forefront as an index of advancement are car loadings, which in 50 weeks of 1935 amounted to 30,452,160 cars, an increase of 2.1 per cent over the same period of 1934.

That movement of freight did two things—it increased gross revenue and it wore out equipment.

For the first 10 months of the year the total revenue of 30 class 1 carriers was between 3.2 and 3.5 per cent greater than for the same period of 1934, and the first 11 roads to report for 11 full months displayed the same trend.

Maintenance Costs Rise.

But during the 10 month period class 1 roads spent nearly 7 per cent more on maintenance of way and structure and over 4 per cent more on maintenance of equipment, including depreciation and retirement, than for the same months of 1934.

In all three cases the rate of gain in the latter months and weeks of 1935 increased. In the 50th week of this year car loadings were 6 per cent higher than the corresponding 1934 week. Gross revenue of the first 11 reporting roads rose 16.6 per cent and net operating income 56.07 per cent in November, compared with November of 1934, and expenditures or plans for spending on equipment increased considerably.

Sales of equipment are a blessing to equipment makers, but the spending is a pain to stockholders, and the faster the locomotives pull rattling freight cars around the country the sooner these stockholders and road officials must prepare to spend money for new rolling stock and other necessaries.

Seek Passenger Revival.

One way to find funds is by jiggling rates. The interstate commerce commission granted some increases in freight charges earlier in the year, which accrued to the eastern roads for the most part, and now there are predictions that the I. C. C. will cut passenger fares sharply to revive the movement of human freight.

Many railroads in 1935 discussed seriously the possibilities of bankruptcy. Thirteen commenced operations directed by trustees or receivers appointed under section 77 of the federal bankruptcy act.

Financing costs were pared by the millions and further savings were sought through refunding of bonds into loans bearing lower interest rates. The Reconstruction Finance corporation in recent days stepped into that picture with two offers to carriers contemplating refunding to do the job more cheaply than private financial interests.

American Can.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly send me a report on American Can stock?—Miss F. M.

Answer: American Can company was established in 1901. It has since grown to be the largest organization in the tin can industry, accounting for about 40 to 45 per cent of this country's production.

Its present position was accomplished through reinvestment of profits in expansion.

There are two major lines of containers. They are the packers' cans, used for perishable food products, such as milk, fruits, vegetables, etc., and general line cans, used for oils, paints, chemicals, tobaccos, etc.

Earnings for 1934 were helped substantially by increased vegetable packs and by profit on the large tin inventory acquired at low prices during 1933. The tin inventory has had to be replaced at higher prices during 1934, but a bumper crop of fruit and vegetables was packed this year.

The company, like other can manufacturers, has developed a tin beer container. Present daily output of beer cans is currently estimated to be equal to about 38 per cent of the entire output of cans for vegetables. Because American Can was the first in the field with the metal beer container, it is believed that it will show the best results for the year among can manufacturers from this item.

In 1934 the company earned the equivalent of $6.72 per common share, against $5.04 in 1933, $3.26 in 1932, $5.11 in 1931, and $8.08 in 1930. Current position at the close of the year was strong. Working capital was sufficient to pay off all liabilities and retire almost all the preferred stock. Book value per common share was $60.81.

Capitalization consists of 412,333 shares of 7 per cent $100 per preferred and 2,473,998 shares of $25 par value common. The preferred is noncallable. The common pays regular dividends of $1 a quarter.

An extra of $1 a share is payable Feb. 15. In November, 1934, an extra of $1 a share was paid.

Both the preferred and common are high grade.

Baxter Laundries, Inc.

Investors' Guide: It is my understanding that Baxter Laundries stock is valueless. Can you confirm this?—B. C.

Answer: On Jan. 8, 1933, Baxter Laundries, Inc., was adjudicated bankrupt. Its properties were sold at auction on July 27, 1934, in furtherance of a reorganization plan in which no provision was made for the preferred or common stock. The amount realized from the sale of the assets was less than the amount of debts outstanding. We regard the stock as worthless.

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW GAIN OF 15 PCT. OVER SAME WEEK LAST YEAR

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Total bank clearings for 22 leading cities of the United States for the five days ended Dec. 24 rose 15 per cent over the same period a year ago, according to the report of Dun & Bradstreet issued today.

The total for the 22 cities was $4,050,000, against $3,991,666,000 a year ago. For the preceding week, the gain over a year ago was 1.5 per cent. The week's total showed a decline of $1,661,928,000 from that of the preceding week.

At New York City clearings were $2,929,677,000, an increase of 14.9 per cent over the amount reported last year. The aggregate for centers outside New York City was $1,660,373,000, a gain of 15.2 per cent over last year.

Crises Abroad Pour Flood of Gold Into U. S.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Federal reserve board reported tonight that $750,000,000 of foreign gold had found its way to American caches between the middle of September through Dec. 5.

"Part of this gold has been drawn from such sources as mines and private hoards, but the bulk of it has come from government and central bank holdings in Europe," the board said in its monthly bulletin. The board said the principal outflow of capital recently has been from France.

The gold import movement from the central reserves of European countries was described as reflecting three major influences, one being of recent development.

War Causes Gold Transfer.

The disturbed European situation which preceded and accompanied the outbreak of hostilities in Ethiopia led to a transfer of liquid balances from London to New York, the board said. This movement, which started in September, was described by the board as reaching its heighth early in October and subsiding toward the end of that month.

The second factor in the movement was said to be of somewhat longer duration.

"Foreign purchases of American securities began to exceed sales last May," the board explained, "and the net inflow of foreign funds into American securities has continued practically without interruption up to the present time. The intensification of this movement in the autumn is attributable in some degree to disturbed political conditions abroad.

Buy American Securities.

"The movement as a whole appears to reflect a feeling among foreign investors that an opportunity for profitable investment of their funds is offered by the American market."

The third factor was said to be the international position of the gold bloc countries.

"A special problem has been created for these countries by the general abandonment elsewhere in the world of previously existing exchange parities and the introduction of exchange control by several countries that still officially adhere to the old parities," the board said. "Capital in the gold bloc countries has proved to be more sensitive to the condition of national budgets and to political difficulties than in the countries that have altered their currencies during the depression. A series of crises has occurred, differing in intensity, but each characterized by a sharp outward movement of capital and gold."

PREDICTS CREDIT GROUPS' AID FOR RURAL MERCHANT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The country merchant—from time immemorial the financial backbone of many a farm community—may soon be relieved of the necessity for granting long term credit to his customers.

Gov. W. I. Myers of the farm credit administration predicted today the merchant will get cash as a result of the rapidly growing business of production credit associations, or farmers will be able to borrow from banks and other institutions.

He announced that short term loans to farmers in 1935 aggregated $517,000,000, of which $210,000,000 was lent by production credit associations. The total short term financing contrasts with $446,000,000 lent in 1934.

Illinois Central's Income Tops November, Last Year

The Illinois Central system yesterday announced an increase of $154,982 in net operating income for November over a year ago, amounting to $1,107,020, compared with $952,038 last year and $1,329,187 in November, 1933. Gross operating revenues for the month at $8,505,740 compared with $7,494,991 in 1934, an increase of $1,010,749. This brought the net operating income for the first eleven months of the year to $10,555,789, or $1,224,111 under the $11,779,900 for the corresponding months of last year.

Banks and Markets Reopen Today

All banks and markets in the United States will be open for business today after closing for the Christmas holiday yesterday. London banks and exchanges, and the Winnipeg grain market will not open until tomorrow morning.

Cost of Living Going Up for Wage Earner

Washington, D. C., Dec. 25.—(AP)—An average increase of 0.4 per cent in the cost of living for wage earners in large cities from July 15 to Oct. 15 was reported today by the labor department.

Items covered in the survey are those the department says the average wage earner needs to keep the family. The same amount of those items—such as food and clothing—which cost $1 in 1923-'25 cost 80.8 cents on Oct. 15, compared with 80.4 cents on July 15.

Food costs, the department said, remained practically unchanged. Clothing went up 0.3 per cent; rent, 0.9 per cent; fuel and light, 3.6 per cent, and furniture, 1 per cent. Miscellaneous items dropped 0.1 per cent.

Sharp Rise Over 1913 Shown.

With 100 taken as the index for the cost of these same items in 1913, the department figured the index for Oct. 15 at 140.8.

Meanwhile the AAA said today in a special study that the 1,000,000 employed railroad workers can now buy 16 per cent more food than in 1929. Earnings of the railroad workers were 93 per cent as large as they were in 1929. Retail food prices, it added, are only 80 per cent of the 1929 level.

However, only 61 per cent as many persons are employed by the railroads as there were in 1919, the statement said. On class 1 railroads in 1929 employment totaled 1,690,000, compared to 1,030,000 in October, 1935.

Future Employment Is Factor.

"Further industrial progress," the AAA contended, "depends not on readjustment in food prices which on the average are in balance with employed workers' earnings, but a rather substantial lift in industrial activity and employment."

The labor department survey covered thirty-two cities. Twenty-five reported increases. The largest was 1.6 per cent, shared by Kansas City, Atlanta, and Birmingham. In seventeen cities the cost of food dropped. The greatest, 3.6 per cent, was reported by Minneapolis. Detroit noted a rise of 8.4 per cent in rents, the greatest in the country. Twenty-four of the thirty-two cities reported increases.

The department said seasonal increases in coal prices brought up the cost of fuel and light.

GULF OIL PLANS COURT FIGHT ON ADDITIONAL TAX

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Officials of the Mellon controled Gulf Oil corporation plan a court campaign to combat a threatened $2,250,000 additional state tax assessment for 1933-'34-'35.

Secretary of Revenue Harry E. Kalodner said a state survey of the oil concern's books caused him to decide it should pay a five mill personal property tax on $245,000,000 "loaned" to thirteen subsidiaries.

"The dispute involves an interpretation of the law that will have to be threshed out in the regular order of procedure," a spokesman for the company asserted. "The company has paid all taxes justly due."

Kalodner claimed a settlement made on Dec. 21, 1934, in which Gulf Oil paid $48,000 was based upon "incorrect information." He asks $705,000 additional for 1933 and $750,000 or more for the last two years.

VIEW CONDITIONS IN OIL INDUSTRY BEST SINCE 1930

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Christmas cheer capped a year of gains for the oil industry today. Expert observers, saying improvements during the year have brought the oil business to the best condition since 1930, cited the following points in support of their claim:

3. Refinery prices are substantially higher than a year ago.

4. Stocks have been reduced to 300,000,000 barrels—the lowest level in nine years.

Copper and Brass Industry Expects Rise in Building

New York, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Opinion in the copper and brass industry, states Bertram B. Caddle, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research association, is that the volume of business in the building field during 1936 will more than double that of 1935, "with the result that perhaps some 200,000,000 pounds of copper will be consumed." The recent sales of building materials made from copper and its alloys exceeded that of any year since the depression was first felt, he reported.

STEEL OUTPUT FALLS; PLANTS TAKE HOLIDAY

Quick Recovery Predicted with New Year.

Closing of steel plants for the Christmas holiday brought a sharp reduction in the national operating rate, dropping 7 points to 48½ per cent of capacity, the magazine Iron Age announced in the issue published yesterday.

However, with the underlying general trend of business still upward, quick recoveries of both ingot production and finished steel output are expected in the first week of the new year.

Automobile Demand Steady.

Almost no recession has been shown in steel shipments to the motor car industry, while deliveries of products on which price advances will become effective Jan. 1 have increased rather than declined. Pig iron shipments in December will exceed those of November, the previous banner month this year, the magazine says.

The movement of semi-finished steel is so heavy that mills find it physically impossible to complete shipments this month and will extend deliveries into January. Similarly, the movement of track spikes and bolts has been stimulated and, to a lesser extent, shipments of cold finished bars have been accelerated.

Tractor Plants at Capacity.

Tractor plants are now operating at capacity and farm implement manufacturers will start 1936 with schedules calling for a 25 per cent increase over 1935 output, the journal says. It is also pointed out that a growing railroad demand for steel is reflected in the award of 10,000 tons by the Wabash and the filling of an application by the New York Central with the interstate commerce commission for authority to purchase 35,000 tons of rails and track accessories.
